ITALY SAYS ITS CHARGES ARE IGNORED IN LEAGUE

Accusation Made in Document at Geneva Against Five-Power Committee Which Submitted Report Concerning Ethiopia.

'NO MEANS FOUND IN THE COVENANT'

It Is Declared Pact Does Not Contemplate Cases of Nations Unworthy of Membership but Insisting on Their Rights.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 25.—An accusation that the League of Nations Italian-Ethiopian Committee did not take into consideration specific charges brought by Italy against Ethiopia, made in oral observations to the committee by Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy, was published today by the League.

The document issued by the League presented a historical narrative of the committee's activities, including the text of the League's program for peace in East Africa, Ethiopia's reply in acceptance and Italy's "observations," which constituted rejection.

In its observations, Italy said the committee did not consider whether Ethiopia was still worthy to belong to the League when it had not fulfilled its obligations and had openly violated others.

Problem as Put by Italy.

The observations said Italy's memorandum to the League on the Ethiopian conflict demonstrated that, if the committee's efforts at conciliation were to be at all satisfactory, the Ethiopian problem should have been put in this form:

1. The Ethiopian state, properly so-called, should be placed in such a position that it can do no injury to its neighbors, and its administration should be reformed so as to raise the country to a higher level of civilization.

2. The different peoples which are subject to tyranny in Ethiopia and live on frontiers of the country under inhuman conditions should be rescued therefrom.

Further Contentions.

Italy contended that these frontier peoples should be safeguarded once and for all "from the misgovernment of a country which is not and never will be able to discharge in respect to them the mission incumbent upon a state that contains peoples of different races."

The Italian memorandum objected to the committee's proposals as being limited in offering to Ethiopia assistance, which, although more extensive in certain aspects, did not differ in principle from assistance offered by the League to other states in temporary difficulties.

"In the case of a country where conditions of barbarism are accompanied by powerful modern armament, international supervision cannot be regarded as a solution to aims that must be pursued both by the League, as a last effort to lift Ethiopia to a higher degree of civilization, and by Italy, who sees in Ethiopia her special, most dangerous enemy," the memorandum said.

No Means in Covenant.

Italy contended that the Ethiopian question could not be settled through means provided by the League Covenant. Its memorandum said the Covenant did not contemplate the cases of countries unworthy and incapable of participation in the League, but continuing to claim League rights and to demand observance of obligations.

If some elasticity had been allowed, Italy argued, a solution to the problem would have been brought nearer, but the Council refrained from this and based its solution on assistance which Italy considered inadequate in Ethiopia's case.

"It is true that this assistance provides for organization of police and gendarmerie by dispatch of a mission of foreign specialists," the memorandum said. "But there have already been enough—indeed, too many—of these specialists in Ethiopia.

"All they have done is to raise the armed forces of Ethiopia to a modern degree of efficiency, and consequently to make Ethiopia more dangerous to her neighbors, particularly Italy.

Five Other Men Injured Before Colonel Shoots Animals With Machine Gun.

By the Associated Press.

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 25.—Five of Emperor Haile Selassie's big lions escaped today, killed one sentry and injured five more, two gravely.

In their rush for freedom they devoured several of the Emperor's pedigreed Australian sheep and killed two horses.

Colonel Mekouria, the commander of the Imperial Guard, seized a machine gun and shot all five beasts in succession.

During the night, the lion keeper apparently had allowed the cage door to remain open, permitting the animals to escape from the communicating cages. Soon the entire neighborhood of the Emperor's old palace, where the cages are, was thrown into an uproar. The lion hunt ensued in the darkness.

One of the escaped beasts approached a palace sentry who, thinking it was merely a large dog, struck it with a stick. The lion sprang and killed the man with a single thrust of his paw to the stomach. The Emperor decorated the Colonel for bravery and pensioned the family of the sentry who was killed.

ENGLISH WOMAN ACCUSED OF TRYING TO KILL MOTHER

Police Charge That She Gave Overdose of Drug to Patient in Mental Hospital.

By the Associated Press

SUTTON, Surrey, England, Sept. 25.—A 22-year-old stenographer, Muriel Wilson, charged by police with attempting to kill her mother, a patient in a mental hospital, by an overdose of drugs, was remanded today for further investigation.

Police alleged that the girl gave her mother a sedative when she visited the hospital Monday.

"My mother will never be well again and I did not want to see her linger any longer," officers quoted the girl.

The mother was still unconscious today, and the daughter's case was put over for eight days.

PROF. POUND TO QUIT AS DEAN OF LAW SCHOOL AT HARVARD

Will Retire Next September to Devote More Time to Writing Book on Jurisprudence.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 25.—Roscoe C. Pound, famous Harvard school authority, announced last night his resignation as dean of the faculty of law, to take effect next September. His resignation was only from the deanship and not from the faculty.

Dean Pound said he was retiring in order to devote more time to writing a book on jurisprudence. He would continue, he said, to hold the chair of Carter professorship of law.

When Pound retires next September he will have finished 20 years as dean of the law faculty and will be 66 years old.

LEGION SELECTS CLEVELAND FOR 1936 CONVENTION

DEPORTING OF ALIEN RADICALS ADVOCATED

Resolutions Also Call for 10-Year Bar on Immigration, Canceling of Soviet Recognition.

Cleveland today won the American Legion convention of 1936, after a contest which took four ballots of the seventeenth national convention of the Legion, at the Municipal Auditorium Opera House.

Los Angeles was the next closest contender for next year's gathering. Denver withdrew after three ballots. Atlantic City, though running a bad third, stayed in, and the final ballot was: Cleveland, 612; Los Angeles, 475; Atlantic City, 113. The convention has a voting strength of 1207.

A dispute over the vote of Illinois, which was delayed, came while the last ballot was being counted. Commander Frank N. Belgrano Jr., first ruled that Illinois had waited too long to vote, but a California representative, John Quinn, moved in the interest of harmony that the Illinois vote, which was for Cleveland, be permitted. Cleveland's victory followed.

Today's session adjourned at 2:45 o'clock without acting on the bonus question, which, together with election of officers, will come up at tomorrow's concluding session. Several committee reports were laid over until tomorrow. Only a handful of delegates and spectators remained at adjournment time. Commander Belgrano told reporters the bonus matter was laid over because so few delegates were left.

Resolutions Adopted.

Before selecting the city in which next year's convention will be held the delegates adopted resolutions calling for the closing of all immigration for a 10-year period and immediate deportation of aliens belonging to organizations which propose to overthrow the American Government by force.

Another resolution which was included in those adopted on recommendation of the Americanism Committee, proposed the finger-printing of "all persons." A proposal for a universal requirement for identification cards was not included by the committee, which stated that finger-printing would include a sufficient record.

Resolutions favoring Army and Navy increases, upholding the neutrality resolution adopted by Congress and demanding efforts to collect European war debts to the United States, also were adopted without opposition.

Restricting Use of Schools.

The Americanism resolutions were presented by J. J. Twomey of Massachusetts. The committee presented, in 21 proposals, a summary of 65 which had been submitted to it.

Formation of education committees by Legion posts and co-operation with educational organizations, were recommended. It was urged that school authorities be more careful as to the organizations to which they grant the use of school buildings.

The Legion, it was stated, vigorously opposed Communist summer camps for youths. The Legion was declared to be opposed also to Nazism and Fascism, as contrary to American democracy.

A paragraph on Soviet Russia stated that the Legion opposed recognition of the Soviet Government by the United States; that promises were made that propaganda directed from Russia to the United States would cease; that it has not ceased, but has greatly increased. "The Legion," it was stated, "now urges revision of the recognition of the Soviet Republic by the United States."

Declaration on Radicals.

"Radical activities for destruction of constitutional government are increasing," another section stated. "Agitators and agents are trying to corrupt the morals of our youth, and are financed by subjects of another nation."

The recommendation for 10-year suspension of immigration followed, and was received with applause. Besides deportation of alien radicals, it was urged that all destitute aliens, and those of illegal entry, be deported at once.

Other resolutions of the Americanism Committee related to high school oratorical contests, support of the Boy Scout movement and

DOCTOR WHO SAID MRS. MUENCH BORE CHILD NEVER EXAMINED HER; ANOTHER HELD AS FORGER

MUENCHES DENY BABY IS ANNA WARE'S; DO NOT CLAIM IT AS THEIR OWN

WHAT WRIT DIRECTED TO MUENCHES AND OTHERS BY JUDGE BECKER SAYS

THE text of the writ issued Monday by Judge William Dee Becker, and directed to Dr. and Mrs. Muench, among others, follows:

"You and each of you are hereby commanded that the body of a male child now located in the residence of Ludwig O. Muench and Nelle Tipton Muench at 4736 Westminster place in the City of St. Louis, Mo., and said to be the child of Anna Ware, under your custody detained, under safe and secure conduct, together with the day and cause of him being so by you detained, by whatsoever name the child may be known, you have before Hon. William Dee Becker, Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, new Civil Courts Building, St Louis, Mo., on Wednesday, the 25th day of September, 1935, at 10 a. m. then and there to be dealt with according to law, and have you then and there this writ and hereof fail not at your peril."

Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, defendant in the Kelley kidnaping case, and her husband, Dr. Ludwig O. Muench, appeared before Judge William Dee Becker in the St. Louis Court of Appeals this afternoon in the habeas corpus proceeding designed to determine whether the baby in her home at 4736 Westminster place is hers, as she claims, or the son of Anna Ware, 19-year-old unmarried mother.

They did not produce the baby in court, as the writ had peremptorily ordered them to do.

In their answer to the writ, filed today, Dr. and Mrs. Muench asserted the baby in their possession was not the baby of Anna Ware, but they did not assert it was their child.

Dr. and Mrs. Muench had disregarded the writ for their appearance when the court convened at 10 a. m. for the forenoon session. Instead, their attorney had asked for a 10-day delay in filing a return, on the ground that Mrs. Muench would be occupied next week in the trial of the kidnaping case at Mexico, Mo.

Whereupon Judge Becker, after hearing long arguments, ordered Dr. and Mrs. Muench to be in the court at the afternoon session, beginning at 2 o'clock. Their appearance was in response to this order, issued verbally from the bench.

Mrs. Muench Enters Court.

Mrs. Muench wore a black silk dress with a large white lace collar and a closely fitting black hat, below which her bobbed auburn hair showed. She spoke to no one as she strode briskly with her husband and lawyer down the twelfth-floor corridor through a lane of about 75 spectators and entered the courtroom.

Mrs. Muench and her husband took seats alongside the Ware sisters. Anna Ware regarded Mrs. Muench fixedly as she took her seat and glanced at her at intervals during the proceedings, but Mrs. Muench kept her face to the front, following everything that was said by Court and counsel. At one time during the proceedings Mrs. Muench put her handkerchief to her face and her shoulders shook.

Thomas Bond, counsel for Anna Ware, began the afternoon session by going over the Muenches' answer, repeating its allegations that the Muenches do not have Anna Ware's child. This return, he declared, was to the original application, but not to the writ, in which they were specifically ordered to produce in court the child now in their home.

The answer of Dr. Muench and his wife had been filed just before the afternoon session began. In it they denied that they had ever seen Anna Ware's baby and declared they "had no knowledge on which to bottom a belief that Anna Ware ever had a child." For these reasons, it was stated in the return, they were unable to produce the child of Anna Ware in court.

Attorney Bond argued that this was beside the point and that they were bound to bring to court the baby described in the writ. With this Judge Becker said he did not agree.

Judge Becker's Ruling.

"My ruling," he said, "is that the return is in compliance with the statute, as the first pleading in the case. We have no further information in this case except what is now in court. I don't know what issue is to be made. The petitioners may even be satisfied that they are in error.

"If they are not, their answer will present the issue upon which this case is to be decided. The Court has no jurisdiction to force any child to be produced except the child the petitioners (the Ware sisters) seek.

"The next step, therefore, is for the petitioners to file their answer to the return made this afternoon. Friday I shall have my brother Judges on the bench with me to try these issues, if by that time they have been presented.

Attorney Bond demurred to this ruling, saying that it appeared illogical to proceed without having the body of the baby in court.

Next Move Up to the Wares.

"I am glad you brought that up," the Court rejoined, "because it is only by your answer that we can get the body into court. Were I to go ahead with that step without the issue being raised by your answer, the Supreme Court would likely issue a writ of prohibition to

STORM WRECKS ENGLISH TRAWLER; 11 THOUGHT LOST

Boat Pounded to Pieces on Rocks of Speeton Cliff in North Sea.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—A fierce storm in the North Sea pounded the trawler Skegness to pieces today on the rocks of Speeton Cliff, near Bridlington. All hope was abandoned for the crew of 11 men.

Coast Guardsmen tried to rescue the crew with rocket lines. Seeing lights aboard the doomed vessel under the cliff, they launched three lifeboats, but were unable to approach it. Later, Coast Guardsmen standing on the cliff-top succeeded in shooting a line over the Skegness, but there were then no signs of life aboard.

The trawler went ashore during the terrific southeaster at a point where the cliff is 400 feet high. The gale whipped up high seas on the English Channel, as well as in the North Sea, driving ships to port. Heavy rain reduced visibility to a few yards.

'NON-ARYAN' OFFICIAL LOSES GERMAN DIPLOMATIC POST

Siegfried Hey Out of Foreign Service; Two Others Go On Extended Leaves.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 25.—A spokesman for the Foreign Office acknowledged today that Siegfried Hey, deputy chief of the Eastern division, had left Government service because of his non-Aryan status.

Richard Mayer and Robert Ulrich, financial experts of the economic section, were given extended leaves of absence which are interpreted as retirement.

These three men were officials of high standing whose ability and experience had hitherto spared them from the restrictions imposed on other Jews. Under the new legislation proclaimed at Nurnberg Sept. 15 their positions became untenable.

MAN ELECTROCUTED WHEN OPERATING FLOOR POLISHER

Frank Fortune, 24 years old, 4539 Swan avenue, was electrocuted this morning while operating a grinding machine in the basement of a home under construction at 10 Lake Forest, Richmond Heights.

He was found by other workers at 11:15 a. m. Inhalators failed to revive him.

Harry Vollmar, contractor of 39 Broadview drive, Clayton, who was building the home for himself, said he saw Fortune at 9:30 a. m. and the machine was working in good order at that time. It was used to polish the terrazzo flooring.

The head of an electrical supply company was quoted by police as saying the machine was improperly grounded.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO, Mo., Sept. 25.—Selection of a special panel of 40 veniremen has been begun for the trial next Monday of Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench of St. Louis on a charge of kidnaping Dr. Isaac D. Kelley for ransom.

The special panel was ordered summoned by Circuit Judge W. C. Hughes yesterday. Sheriff E. S. Haycraft, in charge of the selection, said members of the regular jury panel serving in the September term of court would not be summoned to serve on the panel for the trial of Mrs. Muench.

The case was transferred from St. Louis County on the application of Mrs. Muench for a change of venue.

HURRICANE WARNING ISSUED FOR WESTERN CARIBBEAN

Meteorologist Estimates High Pressure Area Will Bar Storm From Florida for Two Days.

By the Associated Press.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 25.—Gordon E. Dunn, meteorologist at the Weather Bureau office here, said today an area of high pressure drifting southward "should act as an effective barrier against any tropical storms passing over the Florida mainland within the next two days." He said the future course of a disturbance in the Western Caribbean Sea was "very uncertain." The storm, believed to have winds of hurricane force over a small area, was plotted today about 300 to 350 miles southwest of Kingston, Jamaica.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Navy radio communications sent warning of a threatened hurricane in the West Indies to all points along the Atlantic seaboard south of New York today. The message warned ships of the Dominican republic and Nicaragua, particularly, to be on the alert for a hurricane during the next 24 hours.

GETS THREE-YEAR TERM FOR $8800 EMBEZZLEMENT

Roy F. Wehmueller, Former Employe of First National Bank Pleads Guilty.

Roy F. Wehmueller, former bookkeeper for the First National Bank, pleaded guilty of embezzling $8800 in Federal Court today and was sentenced by Judge Moore to three years in the Federal Reformatory at Chillicothe, O.

Wehmueller, who is 28 years old and resides at 5637 Park lane, made no statement as he stood before the bench. His counsel, likewise, was silent.

Wehmueller was discharged last February when a shortage in his accounts was suspected.

Wehmueller's mother, wife and 3-year-old child were in court with him when he was sentenced.

DR. THOMPSON UNDER CHARGES IN COUNTY AND CITY

He Gives Bond at Clayton and Is Brought to St. Louis—'I've Been Damn Fool,' He Declares.

Dr. Maurice Thompson, one of the two physicians who signed certificates that in their opinion Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench had recently given birth to a child, was arrested early today near his home in Kirkwood on three warrants charging him with issuing small checks, knowing that he had insufficient funds in the bank on which they were drawn.

Later in the day Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Herman Willer of St. Louis issued a warrant charging Dr. Thompson with obtaining money under false pretenses by passing a worthless check and announced that he would issue three others making the same charge as soon as the papers could be prepared.

Previous Arrest Disclosed.

Dr. Thompson's arrest today disclosed that last Friday he had been arrested on a charge of uttering and passing a forged check, a fact which had not become known previously because on that occasion he gave his name as Dr. John M. Thompson, and his residence as 320 North Grand boulevard. Dr. Thompson's home is at 603 South Kirkwood road, and his office is at the Grand boulevard address. His full name is John Maurice Thompson, but he has generally used the middle name.

After the first arrest, a Post-Dispatch reporter talked with Dr. Thompson over the telephone. On that occasion the physician denied that he was the Dr. Thompson who had been arested.

Other Warrants Not Yet Served.

It was learned also that two warrants charging Dr. Thompson with writing and passing worthless checks have been issued in St. Louis County but not served. None of the checks involved was for more than $10. The forgery charge is a felony, the others are misdemeanors.

Following his release on bond at 4 a. m. today, Dr. Thompson was rearrested at the Sheriff's office in Clayton by St. Louis policemen. "Probably because I've got a couple of checks out in St. Louis, too," the physician said to a Post-Dispatch reporter who asked if he knew why he was wanted in St. Louis.

At Police Headquarters in the city, Dr. Thompson was held for

DR. PITZMAN CERTIFIED ON FAITH AND FRIENDSHIP

Signed Statement Does Not Say He Examined Woman But Recites Merely That He Had 'Seen' Her Several Times a Week.

FRIEND OF MUENCHES FOR SEVERAL YEARS

His Opinion Dated After That of Dr. Maurice Thompson—He Is Not at Home and Family Reports He Departed Monday.

Copyright, 1935, by the Pulitzer Publishing Co.—All rights reserved under Federal protection of property rights in news.

The Post-Dispatch learned today that Dr. Marsh Pitzman, one of the two physicians who signed certificates stating that Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench recently gave birth to a baby, did not in fact examine her, but signed the certificate on faith and belief.

These certificates were the first defense publicly offered by Mrs. Muench to the charge that she had not given birth to a baby and that the infant in her house was in fact the child of Anna Ware.

The other physician who gave the service of his signature to the colorful defendant in the Kelley kidnaping case, Dr. Maurice Thompson, has just been arrested for forgery, as reported in another column.

An Old Friend of Muenches.

Pitzman, as has been told, is a friend of the Muenches. This friendship beginning in 1932 (subsequent to the Kelley kidnaping) has a romantic setting. Briefly, it was the devoted and efficient care which Mrs. Muench gave to the musician, Carl Auer, who suffered amputation and who has been a virtual member of the Muench family for some time, that won Dr. Pitzman's admiration and regard. Dr. Pitzman was associated with Dr. Muench in the treatment of Auer's difficult case.

It is a matter of common knowledge in the immediate neighborhood of the Muench home, 4736 Westminster place, where the comings and goings of numerous visitors have been a matter of comment since the indictment of Mrs. Muench in the Kelley kidnaping case in March, 1934, that Dr. Pitzman, one of the most frequent callers, ceased his visits late in the summer of 1934. It was also noted that these visits were resumed in May, 1935. It was in this month that Mrs. Muench, so far as is known, first told a few persons that she was expecting a baby.

Dr. Thompson's Statement.

Dr. Thompson's certificate contains the statement he examined Mrs. Muench and that the examination took place on Sept. 14. This was the day following publication in the Post-Dispatch of the beginning of the grand jury investigation to determine the truth or falsity of Dr. Muench's report of a child having been born to his wife.

The newspapers reported Mrs. Rebecca Winner, midwife, as one of the witnesses and told that she was before the grand jury several hours. What was known to the Muenches but not to the public on that day was that Mrs. Winner, with her cousin, Carl Dubinsky, a lawyer, had visited Mrs. Muench the day before she testified. Mrs. Winner was the midwife who procured Anna Ware's baby and gave it to Jones a few hours before the

ITALY 'WELCOMES' BRITAIN'S MOVE FOR FRIENDSHIP

LATTER IS CITED AS 'OLD FRIEND'

Declares He Is "Particularly Desirous of Eliminating All Useless Misunderstanding" of Nations.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 25.—The Italian Government announced in an official communique today that Sir Samuel Hoare, British Foreign Minister, had told Premier Mussolini of Italy that Great Britain was particularly desirous of eliminating all useless misunderstanding between the two countries."

The communique said this statement was a personal message delivered Monday through Sir Eric Drummond, the British Ambassador to Rome.

The official announcement said Italy never would be the first to transfer the Italian-Ethiopian conflict to Europe.

Sir Samuel was stated to have expressed himself in his message to Mussolini as "an old friend of Italy." The Premier responded, asking Ambassador Drummond to make it known in London that he welcomed Sir Samuel's communication.

Move "Appreciated" in Italy.

The communique added that Sir Samuel's message would "be appreciated by the public opinion of Italy" because official and unofficial declarations have explained many times that Italy "has not and does not wish to have any differences with England—the difference that exists is between Italy and Ethiopia."

The colonial character of this difference is so evident, said the communique, that "it seems impossible and absurd in the eyes of every man of good common sense to transpose it to the European sector in such fashion as to alter Italian-British relations."

The communique added: "In any event, it will never be Italy which will make the first step in this direction. British public opinion ought to be convinced of this and take note of it."

Political sources interpreted the communique as a strong bid for British neutrality in the impending struggle between Italy and Ethiopia. It is the latest of a series of such declarations made in the last few days by Government spokesmen and others.

Policy of "Patience."

Officials said today they had adopted a policy of "patience," waiting to see whether League of Nations developments would encourage them in an unhampered East African campaign or thrust on them again the prospect of a European conflict.

"The next move is up to the League," said Government spokesmen.

They expressed confidence, however, that the official communique on yesterday's Cabinet meeting, which showed Italy's "willingness to give the League a chance," would act against an immediate revival of tension with Great Britain or any other League member.

One spokesman expressed an opinion that the problem could be discussed further under many articles of the League Covenant — among them those referring to territorial integrity, social regulations, mandates and League membership privileges—before Italy would need to break with the League.

Officials appeared confident that all these possibilities would be considered by the League and that Italy would not be forced to stand alone against any Council decision.

The Government spokesman warned, however, that Italy's optimism did not involve any yielding of its viewpoint. He said the conciliatory measures presumed in the Cabinet communique were based on appreciation of changes in view evident among member nations of the League.

Cabinet Meeting Saturday.

The Cabinet decided to meet again Saturday. High Blackshirt authorities said the one-day mobilization of 10,000,000 Fascists might be called the same day if developments at Geneva or elsewhere warranted. The test mobilization of national strength had been postponed by the Government, said informed circles, because of the sudden hopeful turn of events.

It was declared such a manifestation would not be necessary until a definite course—either conciliation or a rupture between Italy and the League—became evident.

The newspaper Il Popolo di Roma says "felicitous diplomatic extensions, determined by England's clarification of her movements in the Mediterranean, must not be confused with the Italian-Ethiopian conflict, the bases of which remain unchanged."

Reflecting official opinion, the newspaper says: "In addition to that living document entitled 'Barbaric Ethiopia,' there is now added another document, namely, the official confession of the criminal."

The newspaper says this confession is embodied in Ethiopia's acceptance of the League Five-Power Committee's report, indicating the East African empire should be subjected to the tutelage of a civilized nation.

"It is not possible to find any League solution of the conflict if Geneva does not decide to go beyond the rigidity of the pact and the formalism of its articles," says the authoritative Giornale d'Italia.

"As long as Ethiopia shall be considered as any other member of the League of Nations, despite its continuance of slavery and its own definition as a country more than barbarous and incapable, every effort regarding it will lack reality."

British Press Expects Important Official Statement.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—An important pronouncement of Great Britain's foreign policy, particularly as its affects the Government's attitude toward obligations in Europe, was forecast today by the British press.

The statement was said to be likely within a few days as a note to the French Ambassador, amplifying and reaffirming Sir Samuel Hoare's declaration that Britain would remain faithful to its European obligations so long as the League of Nations is an effective body.

Briton Declares Nations United Can Prevent War, Even Without France's Aid.

By the Associated Press.

BRISTOL, England, Sept. 25.—David Lloyd George told a regional meeting of the Council of Action for Peace and Reconstruction today that he was "very doubtful" that France would take sufficiently strong action to deter Premier Mussolini in Africa. He said, however, that other nations in Europe could stop him without France's help.

"Mussolini is sufficiently a realist to understand that if all the countries of Europe, even without France, are prepared to take two steps to deter him, he cannot go on," Lloyd George said.

"The two steps are that all countries should agree to cut off the communications between Italy and Ethiopia and to combine to say that under no conditions will they permit the bombing of villages and the killing of innocent women and children.

"Among the many follies we have committed recently is the running down of our own navy. It is not in the least true. There is no fleet in the world better than ours.

"If we and the rest of Europe said we would use the force at our disposal to cut off communications, I believe we would stop it (the impending war)."

ROOSEVELT ISSUES WAR EMBARGO LIST

Mentions Only Arms, Ammunition and Fighting Implements in Proclamation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25. — A proclamation was issued today by President Roosevelt listing arms and munitions which later could be kept out of export trade to belligerent nations.

Until a later proclamation is issued, it will be necessary for dealers in the enumerated articles to obtain licenses for their export from the new munitions control board. The board, at present, has no authority to deny a license for such shipments.

The proclamation set forth six categories and confined the barred items to arms, ammunition and implements of war.

In the first category were rifles, machine guns, ammunition for arms, grenades, tanks and the like.

The second category listed "vessels of war of all kinds, including aircraft carriers and submarines."

The third category included aircraft "assembled or dismantled" which "are designed, adapted and intended for aerial combat by the use of machine guns or of artillery or for the carrying and dropping of bombs—or otherwise adapted for war use.

The fourth category included "revolvers and automatic pistols of a weight in excess of one pound six ounces (630 grams) using ammunition in excess of Cal. 26.5, and ammunition therefor."

The fifth category barred aircraft engines and aircraft "assembled or dismantled, both heavier and lighter than air, other than those included in category three."

The sixth category extended to mustard gas, and flame throwers.

No mention is made of raw materials which might be manufactured into war munitions.

SIX FISHERMEN LOST IN GALE

Vessels Reported in Distress Off Coast of Holland.

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands, Sept. 25.—Six fishermen were lost in a gale off the Frisian coast and a Swedish steamer was reported in distress off the Isle of Terschelling today. An unoccupied boat, in which the fishermen had set out in the North Sea, was washed ashore.

A tug and lifeboat went to the assistance of the steamer Sverrenergaard, a 1030-ton vessel which was buffeted by a gale.

"Mother" Bloor to Serve Sentence.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 25—"Mother" Ella Reeve Bloor, 73 years old, arrived here today from New York, to serve a jail term in Nebraska on charges of "brutally attacking" a group of vigilantes at a Loup City (Neb.) chicken pickers' strike and "inciting a riot." "Mother" Bloor, veteran of 35 arrests, must serve 30 days in jail and pay a fine of $100 or serve out the fine by remaining 100 days in jail. She will be taken to Grand Island, Neb., tomorrow, where, she said, she will serve her time as Loup City has no jail suitable for her confinement. She is a member of the Communist Party Central Committee.

WITNESS ASSERTS HE WAS ASKED TO 'FRAME' MOONEY

Israel Weinberg Relates Detective Swanson, Now Dead, Tried to Get Him to Testify for State.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25.—Israel Weinberg, Cleveland, O., garment manufacturer, testified at Tom Mooney's habeas corpus hearing today that Martin Swanson, public utility detective, had tried to get him to help "frame" Mooney for the alleged bombing of the power lines of the United Railways here.

The former San Francisco jitney driver, who was acquitted of charges of implication in the bombing of the 1916 preparedness day parade, testified in answer to questions by Frank P. Walsh, New York attorney for Mooney.

Swanson, now dead, boarded Weinberg's car, five days before the parade bombing, the witness said, and asked him to drive him to Seven Mile House.

"Swanson asked me whether I knew Mooney and I said I did," Weinberg testified. "He asked me whether I had been at a labor meeting with Mooney about the street car strike and I again told him I had. Then he pulled out a notice offering $5000 reward for the arrest and conviction of anyone for the bombing of the railways power lines. I said I didn't know anything about it.

"He asked me to testify against Mooney and said: 'You are a friend of his, you won't have to say very much, because you know him and are his friend. It will just take a little circumstantial evidence to convict him.'

"I told him I was sorry but that I didn't know anything about the bombing.

"Two or three days later he again got on my jitney and asked whether I had thought over his offer. I told him there wasn't anything for me to think over as I didn't know anything about the matter."

Billings and Mooney Meet.

Warren K. Billings and Mooney, convicted 1916 Preparedness day parade bombers who had not seen each other for 19 years, met yesterday at the Hall of Justice, scene of Mooney's habeas corpus hearing.

The men seemed overcome momentarily by emotion.

Then they exchanged sudden greetings, "Hello, Tom," "Hello, Warren," and embraced.

In a shaking voice, Mooney said: "After 19 years, Warren, we've come together. We've had differences, it's true, and we've had hard words, too, but we're still friends, aren't we, boy?"

Billings, who had regained his composure, replied: "Yes, and the whole truth of the 'frameup' will be proved."

Mooney Back on Stand.

Mooney's hearing, halted while Billings was en route from Folsom Prison in custody of Warden Court Smith on an order of the State Supreme Court, was resumed before Referee A. E. Shaw.

Mooney returned to the witness stand in his efforts to prove he was convicted and sent to prison through perjured testimony. Billings sat at the counsel table.

Mooney identified telegrams to E. W. Mahon of Detroit, president of the Amalgamated Association of Street Car Employes, regarding correspondence concerning organization of street car employes.

"Without the benefit of having the correspondence which the authorities stole from my home and kept from me 19 years," Mooney exclaimed, "I answered to the best of my ability. Now that I have read some of the letters, I admit I was mistaken about the date last week."

the Legion's highway safety program.

A report by the National Defense Committee, expressing gratification over adoption of recent national defense legislation and urging further steps to strengthen the country's military protection, was adopted unanimously, as the first piece of business of the convention. It was presented by the committee chairman, Dr. T. H. Healy of Washington.

A national defense strong enough to keep the country at peace but to protect the country if war should be forced on it, has been the Legion's aim, the report related, adding that bills passed by Congress in the last few months carried out "substantially every major national defense recommendation made by the Legion at its last convention."

However, the Legion recommended that the present status of defense be "retained, consolidated and expanded to logical conclusions."

Group's Recommendations.

For the army—165,000 enlisted men; 14,000 officers and an enlisted reserve as recommended by the general staff; for the regular army, 210,000 enlisted men; National Guard, 48 paid weekly drills annually and 15-day annual encampments; 128,000 officers for the Reserve Corps, with annual training periods for 30,000 of them; Reserve Officers' Training Corps units for every college desiring them, with provision for six-week summer camps, and the Legion inveighed against all efforts to undermine the R. O. T. C.; one month of summer training camps annually for 50,000 youths of the Citizens' Military Training Camps; continuation of the national rifle matches; provision of adequate peacetime supplies and for procurement of wartime supplies; appropriate continuation of motorization and mechanization of the army.

For the Navy—Establishment of a "treaty navy" with men to man it, as soon as possible; a force of 92,000 enlisted men and 17,000 officers in a Navy and merchant marine reserve; adequate drill and training for the Navy and Marine Corps Reserve; development of the merchant marine from its present "inadequate position" as an adjunct for the Navy in time of need.

For the air forces—The aviation subcommittee recommended against any consolidation of the air service of the army, navy and marine corps within a single department. Adequate coast air defense was demanded. Other recommendations were for continuance of the training of naval aviation cadets: annual procurement of 800 completely-equipped military planes, until a force of 2500 is developed; training of a civilian air reserve, and "every reasonable assistance" to commercial aviation.

The report also called for National Defense committees in every department of the Legion.

Support for Neutrality.

Resolutions adopted on recommendation of the Resolutions Committee whose report was presented by Chairman D. John Markey of Maryland, included:

A declaration that the Legion wishes the United States to remain at peace with all nations, pledging support for maintenance of absolute neutrality by the United States Government and commending the neutrality resolution adopted by the last Congress.

Expression of confidence that peace is possible and offering all of the Legion's efforts for its practical accomplishments. This resolution repeated the belief in the individual's duty to his country in time of war, and in the universal draft.

Approval of efforts by the American Government to collect the war debts from European nations, without extension or reduction. Joseph Granier of Paris, official representative of the French Government at the convention, was on the stage when this was adopted. He sat silent.

Protest against British tariff preparations and Canadian subsidies, tending to operate against the interests of American ports and shipping. This was the only resolution not adopted unanimously, there being a scattering of negative votes on it.

An expression of sympathy to the Belgian royal family on the recent accidental death of Queen Astrid.

Spectators Fill Gallery.

During the morning program the balcony filled with spectators. Nearly all the lower floor seats were filled before adjournment, marking an attendance of nearly 3500.

Mayor Houde of Montreal, Canada, speaking to the delegates, renewed his city's invitation to the convention of 1937. He said that, while the convention of that year was scheduled to go outside the United States, he understood that it would not go to Europe. "We know the reason for this," he said, and the delegates applauded.

The reason, he then made clear, was that France and other allied nations of Europe had failed to pay their debts to the United States. "That is not true of Canada," Mayor Houde said. "We are paying all our debts." This brought further applause.

The question of selection of the 1936 convention city, which has attracted unusually keen rivalry among Legionnaires from various sections of the country, was brought up in the forenoon.

Chairman Paul J. McGahan of Washington, of the Time and Place Committee, reported that spokesmen of the four contenders—Atlantic City, Cleveland, Denver and Los Angeles—had described arrangements to the committee, deposited checks to prove ability to pay expenses, and given detailed statements. Each city has established a convention corporation similar to that which has operated in St. Louis and has made tentative contracts for hotels and other housing.

The committee said there had been more extensive advance work in the effort to obtain the 1936 convention than ever before. It recommended that the convention ballot to choose the city, leaving fixing of the date to the National Executive Committee.

Attention was called also in the report to the following invitations for meetings of future years: New York, Washington, Montreal, Que., France and Italy, 1937; Chicago, 1938; Minneapolis and Oklahoma City, 1939; Kansas City, 1941. The report was adopted unanimously.

The order for addressing the convention was chosen by lot. Governors of the four states whose cities sought the gathering, were the principal speakers. They were Ed C. Johnson, Colorado; Harold G. Hoffman, New Jersey, a Legionnaire; Martin L. Davey, Ohio, and Frank F. Merriam, California.

As Gov. Hoffman took the rostrum a large photograph of Atlantic City's beach and skyline dropped from the stage flies. Hoffman said delegates could smoke in the Atlantic City convention hall (unilke the rule here) and that a parade on the board walk could go right through the hall.

Gov. Davey, with evident thought of the $1.50 charge for parade seats here, said Cleveland would furnish free parade seats. He took occasion to advocate immediate payment of the bonus.

Los Angeles Demonstration.

Gov. Merriam, also urging the bonus payment, said if the question of expense of the trip to California was raised, the anticipated bonus could be used to pay the fare.

As he finished speaking a band which had filed into a side aisle, broke into the strains of "California, Here I Come." This aroused the first noisy demonstration of the meeting. At the same time, supporters of Los Angeles tossed among the delegates hundreds of Missouri sales tax mills marked on the back, "Also good in Los Angeles, 1936."

There was spirited applause and cheering during the first ballot, taken shortly after noon, in which Cleveland received 517 votes with 604 needed for a majority.

Missouri as host this time split its vote evenly among the four cities.

There was talk of a hurried caucus of delegations on the floor to settle the question while tellers counted the votes. It was announced that Los Angeles received 340 votes, Denver 179 and Atlantic City 165.

Mayor LaGuardia Speaks.

Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York, a Legionnaire, spoke to the convention while the tellers still were busy. He brought the invitation of New York for the 1937 convention. LaGuardia, short, swarthy and jovial, wore a Legion cap, but said he had never before attended a national convention, having never been sent to one by his post. "So I managed to get elected Mayor," he said, "and here I am."

He paid a tribute to the late Champ Clark, who was Speaker of the House when LaGuardia, as a young Congressman, went to war.

"These Governors who have been talking to you," he said, "want to get you in 1936, when you get the bonus in your pockets. New York is willing to wait until you have spent it, and will welcome you just the same. Go wherever you want to next year, but in 1937, the twentieth anniversary of your sailing for France, come to New York and march again on Fifth avenue.

"The Board of Aldermen has voted $50,000 for the necessary preparations, and if that isn't enough, there is more where it came from. We promise you nothing, and we'll give you everything."

Four Ballots Taken.

The second ballot failed to settle the question but Los Angeles gained 66 votes and Cleveland 20. The figures: Cleveland, 537; Los Angeles, 406; Atlantic City, 141; Denver, 109.

On the third ballot, Los Angeles picked up 46 more votes and Cleveland 13. The results: Cleveland 550; Los Angeles, 452; Atlantic City, 120; Denver, 79. Thereupon Denver, which had lost 100 since the first vote, withdrew. The convention proceeded to a fourth ballot.

Cleveland's victory came about unexpectedly while the votes on the fourth ballot were being tallied. During the casting of the fourth ballot Missouri again voted for Los Angeles and Illinois passed. Illinois afterwards was denied the right to vote. But after a delay asked and obtained unanimous consent to add its vote.

John Quinn of California, a popular past national commander, urged that Illinois be allowed to vote, although he knew, he said, that the effect would be to give Cleveland victory over Los Angeles.

Illinois then cast 78 votes for Cleveland and one for Los Angeles. This brought the vote to: Cleveland 612, or eight more than majority; Los Angeles, 475; Atlantic City, 113. On Quinn's motion, seconded by a New Jersey delegate, the choice was made unanimous.

As the afternoon wore along without a pause for luncheon after Cleveland's victory, all but about 200 delegates and about as many spectators departed.

As the afternoon wore along without a pause for luncheon after Cleveland's victory, all but about 200 delegates and about as many spectators departed.

Debate on Child Welfare.

The first point of debate and difference before the convention, except the contest for next year's convention city, came when the Child Welfare Committee made its report. The report, read by Judge Wilbur M. Alter of Colorado, indorsed the proposed child labor amendment to the Federal Constitution.

Gen. Amos Fries, former Chief of Chemical Warfare, presented a minority report, asking for a further consideration of the subject child labor and the framing of an amendment free from the objections made to the pending amendment. The objection made by Gen. Fries was that the age limit of the amendment, 18 years, was too high, 16 being the proper limit, and to the power proposed to be conferred on Congress to regulate, limit or prohibit the labor, not employment, of persons under 18. He said the amendment, before Congress 11 years, had only two-thirds of the needed ratifications of state legislatures.

Milt Campbell of Cincinnati and Sherman Child of Minneapolis spoke in support of the original report, and it was adopted with a few dissenting votes.

The Finance Committee report, dealing with internal administration matters, was adopted.

Rehabilitation Report.

A long report of the Rehabilitation Committee was read rapidly by Charles E. Pew of Montana, and was adopted. The report urged many changes in the manner of handling veterans' disability and compensation claims. One recommendation was that there should be no denial of claims because of "miscouduct" diseases.

Another recomemndation was that total disability rating be allowed in all cases of pulmonary tuberculosis, whether service-connected or not. Liberalization of the instructions of rating boards in "border line" cases was demanded.

"Female veterans" received attention, and it was stated that face powder and other necessaries should be furnished to them when they are hospitalized.

Insulin for diabetic patients discharged from veterans' hospitals, without regard to the question of service connection of the ailment, was demanded.

In whispered conversations among delegates on the floor, in hotel rooms and wherever chance meetings of interested Legionnaires occurred, there was talk today of the contest for election as national commander to succeed Frank N. Belgrano Jr. of San Francisco. More than 12 men have been mentioned as possible candidates, but it appeared that perhaps only five or six would be nominated, at tomorrow's closing session.

Campaigns for the principal Legion office have been conducted along political lines for years, with the pledging of state delegations, efforts at trading and keen rivalry among supporters of various candidates. This year has been no exception, and the campaign was in full swing today.

Election Takes 604 Votes.

A majority of the delegates, or 604 votes, will be required for election. It was not expected that a new national commander would be chosen before several ballots had been taken.

National Commander Belgrano called the session to order this morning, after which National Chaplain Park W. Huntington delivered an invocation and there was the customary formal advancement of the national and Legion flags to the stage.

George L. Berry, president of the Printing Pressmen's Union, a Legion delegate from Tennessee and representative of the American Federation of Labor, in a speech prepared for delivery before the convention, described the plans of the A. F. of L. to elevate the status of organized labor. He said the organization found itself between a powerful element of employers opposing any form of workers' organization and radical groups advocating destruction of the Government.

Berry asserted that "the security of this nation in the past distressful period and in the present period of rehabilitation is due to the existence and the relationship between the American Legion and the American Federation of Labor."

stop the proceeding as illegal. The next move is up to the petitioners."

At 2:30 o'clock the hearing was adjourned to 10 a. m. tomorrow, when it was expected Wilfred Jones would file his return and appear in court. Jones' attorney, Shepard R. Evans, said he was trying to reach his client at Springfield, Ill.

Bond announced he would be prepared to file replies to the returns of respondents, who have made returns, at 9:30 a. m. Friday. The Muenches, Carl Dubinsky and Mrs. Winner have made returns. He also stated that he intended asking the Court for an attachment for Mrs. Helen Berroyer, who, like Jones, was served by nailing a summons to the door of her home, and who failed to respond.

Muench Attorney Sought Delay at Forenoon Session.

At the forenoon session, in ordering the appearance of Dr. and Mrs. Muench before him at the afternoon session, Judge Becker told counsel for Mrs. Muench to think whether it might not be advisable for him to counsel his client to have the baby with her, "whether it be hers or another's."

Sooner or later, the Court added, the question of the parentage of the child is bound to be determined, as the sole issue in the habeas corpus case.

Effort for Delay Fails.

Before making the order, Judge Becker overruled a plea by Paul Dillon, counsel for the Muenches, for a 10-day continuance, observing, in this connection, that "the Court might be more impressed with this plea if your clients were here in response to the writ."

About 150 persons, mostly women, were restrained by policemen from entering the courtroom, as the proceedings began with only about 35 persons in the room, including counsel, court employes, newspaper men and parties interested in the suit.

Anna Ware, the mother, sat with her 25-year-old sister, Miss Mary Ware, and watched the preliminary proceedings with interest. She was dressed in brown, while her sister, who filed the habeas corpus suit as next friend of Anna Ware, a minor, was in white.

Jones Moves to Quash

After Judge Becker had glanced over the file in the case, Evans, counsel for Wilfred Jones, attorney and one of the respondents, stepped forward and asked that the proceedings be quashed as to his client. There was no ruling at that time, but later the motion was overruled and Evans was advised to have Jones in court this afternoon.

Dillon then made his plea for delay, asking that 10 days be allowed his client to make a return. He pointed out that she was a defendant in a criminal case and said that her lawyers expected to leave St. Louis today or tomorrow for Mexico, to prepare for her trial. He argued that no harm would be done to the habeas corpus case by a reasonable delay.

Attorney Bond, representing Anna Ware, was on his feet as Dillon began his plea, and he interposed his objections as soon as Mrs. Muench's lawyer had paused. He asked that the Court order an instanter, or forthwith, return, on the writ of habeas corpus issued against Mrs. Muench to present herself and the baby in court.

"Custody of Tender Infant."

"This case involves the custody of a tender infant," he continued, "and by its very nature demands prompt action. The statute governing such cases clearly requires the respondent or respondents bring into court the body of the infant involved, and to do it instanter.

"In this case, personal service of the writ was had upon Mrs. Muench. It required that the male child now in her home be produced. Therefore I ask that this respondent (Mrs. Muench) be required to produce that child forthwith and to make a return instanter, to explain how and under what circumstances the child is being held."

"The Court might be impressed with your plea if your clients were here in response to the writ," Judge Becker told Dillon as Bond concluded.

"I told them they did not have to appear, that if the child was not Anna Ware's they did not have to produce it," Dillon replied.

"Whatever you advised your clients is your own responsibility, the writ is specific," Judge Becker stated.

Bond interrupted, telling Dillon: "If your client does not have Anna Ware's child it wouldn't take you two minutes to file a return saying so."

Judge Becker pointed out to Dillon that the writ was mandatory, "I am not responsible for your advice to your clients."

The Muenches' lawyer responded: "We do not have the child called for by this writ."

Bond pointed out that the writ

He pointed out that she was a defendant in a criminal case and said that her lawyers expected to leave St. Louis today or tomorrow for Mexico, to prepare for her trial. He argued that no harm would be done to the habeas corpus case by a reasonable delay.

Attorney Bond, representing Anna Ware, was on his feet as Dillon began his plea, and he interposed his objections as soon as Mrs. Muench's lawyer had paused. He asked that the Court order an instanter, or forthwith, return, on the writ of habeas corpus issued against Mrs. Muench to present herself and the baby in court.

"Custody of Tender Infant."

"This case involves the custody of a tender infant," he continued, "and by its very nature demands prompt action. The statute governing such cases clearly requires the respondent or respondents bring into court the body of the infant involved, and to do it instanter.

"In this case, personal service of the writ was had upon Mrs. Muench. It required that the male child now in her home be produced. Therefore I ask that this respondent (Mrs. Muench) be required to produce that child forthwith and to make a return instanter, to explain how and under what circumstances the child is being held."

"The Court might be impressed with your plea if your clients were here in response to the writ," Judge Becker told Dillon as Bond concluded.

"I told them they did not have to appear, that if the child was not Anna Ware's they did not have to produce it," Dillon replied.

"Whatever you advised your clients is your own responsibility, the writ is specific," Judge Becker stated.

Bond interrupted, telling Dillon: "If your client does not have Anna Ware's child it wouldn't take you two minutes to file a return saying so."

Judge Becker pointed out to Dillon that the writ was mandatory, adding: "I am not responsible for your advice to your clients."

The Muenches' lawyer responded: "We do not have the child called for by this writ."

Bond pointed out that the writ called for the appearance of "the male child now in the home of Dr. Ludwig O. and Mrs. Nellie T. Muench," adding that the law permitted no excuse. Turning to the Court, Bond said he was prepared to offer evidence to prove that "such a child as was described is in the Muench home," and that it was the business of the Court to decide whether the boy was Anna Ware's baby.

Again Seeks Continuance.

Dillon asked for a continuance until tomorrow morning, when, he said, he would have the Muenches in court.

Bond objected, asking the opposing attorney if he was prepared to have the child in court.

Dillon repeated his unresponsive statement: "We don't have the (Ware) baby," and added argument, that the writ required the appearance of a certain described child.

Dillon remarked, continuing, that the present case was actuated by the newspapers, to which Judge Becker replied:

"Irrespective of your argument, if you desire that matter be presented to the court, it is up to you to produce it at the proper time. I want to remind you, however, that this case not only involves the litigants, but also the public.

"After all, the sole issue in this case is the parentage of the child, and its custody. I am just wondering if, between now and 2 p. m., you might have time to think over your answer and might not find it advisable to have your client, when she appears, produce this child, whether it be hers or another's.

"Sooner or later that question is bound to be determined. Whether we meet the issue here in court, and now, it is still the issue."

"We don't want to make a Roman holiday for the press," Dillon interposed.

"In view of the way this proceeding has been conducted," the Court rejoined, "I think that might hardly be your fear."

Objects to Flashlights.

"When I entered this court this morning," Dillon said, "I was met by a battery of flashlights and a line of reporters. We don't want this child put in the most terrible position possible. If this is the legal child of the Muenches, and I think it is, it must be protected."

"If you believe this is the legitimate child of Mrs. Muench," the Court returned, "the sooner it is determined by this court, the better."

"No question about that," Dillon agreed. "We want the fullest possible inquiry and we are prepared in unqualified terms to prove that Mrs. Muench is the mother of the child, born in holy wedlock. But what good would be served by bringing the parties into court?"

"There are legal reasons," Judge Becker replied. "That child should not be buffeted about. The question respecting its parentage should be determined as speedily as possible."

Dillon said that when he filed the return, he would state that his client had never had Anna Ware's baby, that this was proof which must be answered by Anna Ware, who would have the burden of proof to show that the Muench baby was her baby.

Judge Becker Explains.

The Court pointed out, however, as also did Attorney Bond, that the writ applied specifically to the baby now in the Muench home.

"I ask you," Judge Becker said, "to understand my interpretation of the writ of habeas corpus. If there is a sufficient designation of the body of the child that your client should produce, I can act only on the writ. I insist on a return, and on Mrs. Muench being here."

Dillon said he would have Mrs. Muench in court tomorrow morning, but the Court rejoined that Mrs. Muench and her husband could be in court this afternoon. Dillon said he had advised them this morning that they might go to Jefferson City to confer with lawyers in the kidnaping case, and asked leave to telephone to see if they had left. After a few minutes he returned to the courtroom and announced that the Muenches would be in court at the afternoon session.

Discussing the other respondents in the case, Attorney Bond told the Court that although Mrs. Helen Berroyer, friend of the Muenches, had not been served with a writ of habeas corpus, he understood that she was in her apartment at 5559 Pershing avenue yesterday, while deputies were inquiring for her. Judge Becker indicated he would issue an attachment for her, if Bond would supply the proof that she seemed to be avoiding service.

As to Jones, he made the same indication, but suggested to Jones' lawyer, Shepard R. Evans, that it should be possible to get Jones to respond without such action, since Jones is an attorney and officer of the court.

Tells of Letter From Jones.

Evans said he had received a special delivery letter from Jones early today and that it came from Springfield, Ill. He said he had not seen his client since Saturday, but agreed to make an attempt to find him for appearance during the afternoon.

As has been told, the writs directed Mrs. Muench and her husband to bring into court today the month-old baby which Dr. Muench reported was born to his wife, but which is alleged to be the child of Anna Ware.

Besides the Muenches, other respondents in the habeas corpus suit were:

Wilfred Jones, who admits procuring the Ware baby, saying it was not for Mrs. Muench, and admits also procuring another baby earlier, which has been traced through the Muench home to a hospital, where it died.

Mrs. Rebecca Winner, the Maple avenue midwife, whose son-in-law, Francis A. Giordon, is charged in warrants with being the father of Mrs. Ware's child.

Carl M. Dubinsky, cousin and attorney for Mrs. Winner.

Mrs. Helen Berroyer, 5559 Pershing avenue, a friend of Mrs. Muench, who is said to have been in the Muench home on the night of the reported birth of a son to Mrs. Muench.

Unusual Legal Action.

The habeas corpus action, which is an extraordinary legal remedy, is expected, if contested, to open the way for presentation in open court for all the evidence in the possession of Prosecuting Attorney Anderson of St. Louis County bearing on the whereabouts of the Ware baby.

It will, in effect, provide for continuance in open court of the inquiry briefly undertaken by the St. Louis County grand jury two weeks ago. Under the law all persons having any knowledge of the Ware baby or the baby at the Muench home may be required to testify under oath.

Answers of Habeas Writs Filed by Dubinsky and Mrs. Winner.

Answers to the habeas corpus proceeding, in which they were named as respondents, were filed in the Court of Appeals today by Mrs. Winner and her attorney, Dubinsky. In separate statements, each denied they ever had or now have custody of Anna Ware's child, or knowledge of its whereabouts.

Mrs. Winner's return, filed by the law firm of Anderson, Gilbert & Wolfort, asked that the case in respect to her be dismissed. Dubinsky, in a lengthy denial of specific allegations contained in Miss Ware's petition, declared that he never has met Miss Ware and that he paid no part of her expenses to St. Louis, as alleged.

Until Sept. 11, when he visited Mrs. Winner, he stated, he never had heard of Miss Ware, and knew nothing of her visit to St. Louis. He is without knowledge, Dubinsky asserted, as to whether the child in the home "of the respondents, Dr. Ludwig O. and Mrs. Nellie Muench, is the child of the petitioner, Anna Ware," or whether it is the child of Dr. and Mrs. Muench.

LIST OF MISSOURI PWA PROJECTS SENT TO ICKES

State Officials Assured They Will Be Allotted $5,500,000 of $200,000,000 Available.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—A list of Missouri PWA projects has been placed before PWA officials here by William Spann, acting PWA engineer for the State. PWA officials are understood to have assured Spann and other Missouri officials the State could expect about $5,500,000 from the $200,000,000 fund now available for the national program.

Spann's list of projects, classified as "A" and "B," is understood to be much larger than can be carried out with available funds. This is in line with Secretary of the Interior Ickes' policy of submitting to Roosevelt projects costing approximately $800,000,000, thus leaving the President a wide choice in making selections.

The Missouri list, which contains many projects which could be started with a minimum of delay, will be submitted to the President after Secretary Ickes and his assistants have checked it and eliminated projects they disapprove. Ickes has declined to list projects he has approved in advance of action on them by the President.

SUIT AGAINST WARNER BROS.

Stockholder Seeks Financial Accounting by Firm.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—A stockholder's suit charging misfeasance and malfeasance of officers and asking for a financial accounting was instituted in Supreme Court today against Warner Brothers Pictures Corporation and others by Adolph Greenberg of New York City. Greenberg brought the action as a shareholder in Warner Brothers and for all stockholders.

His petition asked for an accounting of all losses and damages incurred by the picture corporation through the last seven years.

TWO ODD-JOB MEN FOUND DEAD IN AUTO REPAIR SHOP

Whisky and Half-Empty Can of Sardines Near Bodies in Building at 2214 Pine Street.

Two men were found dead apparently from ptomaine or alcoholic poisoning in a garage and automobile repair shop at 2214 Pine street at 9 a. m. today by Harry Visatto, 4321A Laclede avenue, owner of the shop.

The men were identified by Visatto as Charles Kettenger, 55, and George Louis, 40, no address, and of no known occupation. Visatto told police that he had given keys to both men and they slept in the garage, in return for performing tasks such as opening the doors for customers.

Louis' body was found lying on a cot, and Kettenger's in a kneeling position with hands upraised as if trying to reach his throat. Near the bodies were a pint bottle with a small amount of whisky in it and a half-empty can of sardines.

Police Capt. Michael Callahan of the Laclede district told reporters that the whisky and sardines would be analyzed to determine whether they were poisoned. It was thought at first that the men died from carbon monoxide poisoning, but the engines in all cars were turned off.

The men were last seen Monday night. Customers came to the garage Monday night and yesterday and when unable to get in, notified Visatto.

Two-Story Brick Residence of Lester Wipke on Lindbergh Bl. Destroyed.

A two-story brick residence on Lindbergh boulevard, a block north of Clayton road, was destroyed by fire today along with the furniture and $400 in cash, which was kept in a desk. There is no fire protection in that section of the county.

The house was occupied by Lester Wipke, an employe of the County Highway Department, and belonged to an estate of which he is an heir. Wipke's wife and son were away when the fire, of undetermined cause, was discovered at 11 a. m. by a neighbor, who found Wipke eating in a nearby restaurant. Wipke tried to get in the house, but was forced back by the flames. He estimated the damage at $10,000 to the house, which was insured, and $1500 to the furnishings.

Doctor Witness for Muenches Arrested

DR. MAURICE THOMPSON
At St. Louis police headquarters this morning.

DR. PITZMAN GAVE CERTIFICATE BASED ON FAITH, BELIEF

Dr. Pitzman's Statement Sept. 16.

Dr. Pitzman's statement is dated Sept. 16. This date has as great significance in the chronology as the date of Dr. Thompson's certificate, if not greater. That was the day on which Anna Ware made a statement to a newspaper that she believed she had been imposed upon and deceived by Wilfred Jones when she surrendered her baby to him. She said she now felt sure that her intuitive suspicion which arose when she read of the reported birth of a boy (the Muench report) was confirmed and that her own boy was that child.

Obviously, the signature of one comparatively obscure physician does not mean much in a case like this. But the signature of Dr. Marsh Pitzman, a member of one of the oldest families in St. Louis and widely and favorably known in the profession, especially for valuable research work which he has done and is still engaged in, added greatly to the convincing quality of Mrs. Muench's first public defense.

The Post-Dispatch also learned that the statement which Dr. Pitzman signed was written by a lawyer. With this knowledge, a cunning device of unscrupulous legalism is easily discovered.

Wording of Statement.

Examination of the statement reveals the interesting fact that it nowhere says that Dr. Pitzman "examined" Mrs. Muench. The opening sentence is, "This is to certify that I have 'seen' Nellie T. Muench several times a week since early in May, 1935." Competent obstetricians, to whom the Post-Dispatch referred these statements when published, said that taken on their face they meant to say that the two physicians had found proof of recent childbirth. But they pointed out it would be most unusual for a physician to word a statement as Pitzman's was phrased; and it was incredible that an educated man would have constructed a statement so awkwardly. It was most extraordinary that a physician wanting to attest facts which can only be ascertained by examination would omit to say that he had in fact examined the patient.

Inquiry by a Post-Dispatch reporter for Dr. Pitzman at his home, 6 Kingsbury place, where he resides with his brother and mother, revealed that the doctor had left home night before last and that his family did not know exactly where he had gone. His brother, Fred Pitzman, admitted this reluctantly but expressed the belief that he would hear from his brother shortly.

Dr. Pitzman, when attending Harvard University, was a brilliant student. Later, at Washington University School of Medicine, he ranked second in his class. To his friends he was known as a man of honor.

NEGLIGENCE CHARGED AT COUNTY HOSPITAL

Coroner Tiernon Makes Statement in Inquest Into Death of Painter.

After Coroner Luke P. Tiernon of St. Louis County testified at an inquest in Pine Lawn today in the death of Frank Cope, 61-year-old Webster Groves painter, that "someone at St. Louis County Hospital was negligent" in treating Cope, Prosecuting Attorney Anderson said he would ask the next grand jury to investigate.

Cope died at the hospital yesterday after being injured Saturday in a tavern at 2819 Big Bend boulevard, Maplewood. The proprietor, Gus Freimuth, testified he found Cope, who had been at the bar, at the foot of the basement stairs, his head against a barrel, and believed he had fallen down the steps.

Under questioning by Anderson, Dr. Tiernon testified Cope died of a fracture at the base of the skull and a brain hemorrhage. He said the only treatment had been stitches taken to close a four-inch wound at the back of the head, and an operation should have been performed to relieve pressure against the brain formed by a blood clot. "If the operation had been performed and the blood drained from the clot, the man would not have died," he asserted.

The jury returned an open verdict, "owing to insufficient evidence to clarify the case." Anderson and Dr. Tiernon are members of a faction of Democrats which have sought the removal of Dr. Edwin Sheahan as superintendent of the hospital.

ANTI-LONG CANDIDATE IN RACE

Opponent of Late Senator to Try for Governorship.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 25.—State Representative Mason Spencer of Tallulah, La., a critic of the late Senator Huey P. Long, today announced his candidacy for the governorship in the Democratic primary of Jan. 21, 1936. He said he favored the repeal of Long's dictatorial laws and asserted he would represent no machine faction.

Spencer's candidacy is said to split the anti-Long forces. He has been in the State Legislature since 1924 and has steadily fought the Long-dictated laws.

DRIVER KILLED, TWO HURT WHEN AUTO HITS POLE

Patrick J. Ward, Transfer Company Head, Dies in Accident on County Road at 1:25 A. M.

Patrick J. Ward, 49 years old, 1241 Hamilton avenue, president of the Ward & Mack Transfer Co., was killed at 1:25 a. m. today when his automobile hit a telephone pole in Page boulevard, near North and South road, St. Louis County.

Two passengers in the automobile were injured seriously. They were: Mrs. Mary Kegley, operator of a restaurant at 2562 Woodson road, Overland, skull injury and lacerations, and John F. Stites, carpenter, 2711 Woodson road, compound fracture of the arm and cuts of the face. They are in St. Louis County Hospital.

Police reported that the automobile was being driven west in Page and struck a telephone pole on the south side of the highway at a curve about 100 feet west of North and South road. Ward was thrown to the pavement and died of a fractured skull.

Ward is survived by his wife, Katharine, four sons and three daughters. When he left home last night he said he was going to a meeting. Ward's relatives said they did not know Stites or Mrs. Kegley.

Woman, 76, Hit by Auto When She Tries to Cross Street.

Mrs. Emma R. Crane, 76, 4516 McPherson avenue, suffered a fractured nose and a skull injury when she was struck by an automobile driven by Edward H. Thurston, vice-president of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., while attempting to cross the street in front of her home last night. She was taken to St. John's Hospital.

Mrs. Hattie Cloyd suffered injuries of the skull and spine, and her sister, Mrs. Latona Rodgers, suffered fractured wrists when an automobile driven by Mrs. Rodgers upset in making a turn into an underpass at Lindbergh boulevard and St. Charles road at 7 o'clock last night. Both were taken to St. Louis County Hospital. They reside at 2161 Yale avenue, Maplewood.

John A. Thomas, a plumber of O'Fallon, Ill., is in serious condition at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Belleville, with fractures of the skull and leg suffered yesterday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile on State Route 12, a mile west of O'Fallon.

Floyd Boyce, a coal miner of O'Fallon, the driver, told officers that Thomas alighted from another machine and stepped into the path of his automobile.

ALTON WOMAN REGAINS CHILD FROM DIVORCED HUSBAND

Mrs. Mildred Bass Pursues Former Mate to Detroit and Hails Him Into Court.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Sept. 25.—A mother who pursued her divorced husband from Alton, Ill., to Detroit to regain custody of their 16-months-old son had attained her goal today.

The woman, Mrs. Mildred Kathryn Bass, found her husband, John, and the child, who had been placed in her custody through an Illinois divorce decree, at the home of his sister here. She hailed him into Wayne County Circuit Court yesterday.

Judge Adolph F. Marschner ordered the baby returned to its mother. Three deputies forcibly restrained Bass, who said he "wanted to kiss the baby good-by," as the mother left the courtroom with her child.

"Don't let him," Mrs. Bass called back over her shoulder. "He'll take the baby away again."

Mrs. Bass secured a divorce by default in City Judge William P. Boynton's court at Alton last Saturday. Custody of the child, John Quentin Bass, and $20 a week for his support, was awarded to her. Bass, an unemployed machinist, went to Detroit to obtain work.

FOUR FINED IN LOTTERY NOT WITH PRINTING FIRM

Item Incorrect; Men Arrested on Third Floor of Building Had No Connection With Shop.

In telling that four men were fined $180 each by Federal Judge Moore Saturday for sending lottery tickets to other states, the Post-Dispatch said Sunday that the four were arrested last year in a raid on a printing shop at 610 Pine street. In fact they had no connection with the Acme Printing Co. at that address and the raid was not on that concern.

The Acme Printing Co. has offices on the second floor at 610 Pine street and has been in business there since 1917. The four arrested occupied space on the third floor and did not represent themselves as in the printing business.

DRUM CORPS HONORS WOMAN

Floridans' Tribute to Mrs. Benjamin Armstrong, St. Louis.

Mrs. Benjamin Armstrong, 5616 Pershing avenue, has been made honorary commander of the Daytona Beach (Florida) Drum and Bugle Corps. She was presented with a scroll by the corps.

Mrs. Armstrong's son, E. H. Armstrong, is the Mayor of Daytona. He was born and reared in St. Louis.

More Than 99 1-2 Pct. of Those With Choice Stay in Federal Agency.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Figures showing that more than 99½ per cent of insured banks which had a choice have elected to retain Federal Deposit Insurance were made public yesterday by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

By law, state banks which were not members of the Federal Reserve System were given until Sept. 23 to withdraw from the corporation. The corporation announced that only 34 out of a total of 7750 had done so.

National banks and state banks which are members of the reserve system automatically are members of the surety agency under the law which created it.

In making the announcement, chairman Leo T. Crowley said:

"Deposit insurance is now permanent. Over 14,160 banks, holding more than 98 per cent of the deposits in the nation's licensed commercial banks, are insured. Of these banks 240 have been admitted to insurance since the first of January, 1935. Another year should see a large number of the 1000 banks not now insured apply for admission to the insurance fund."

The Banks Withdrawing.

Banks withdrawing from the corporation included eight mutual savings banks, with deposits of $89,187,000, and 26 commercial banks, with deposits of $117,981,000. They held 474,627 accounts, of which 465,596 were fully insured. The corporation insures deposits up to $5000.

The corporation reported that in contrast to the withdrawals there had been a net gain in the number of insured banks during the last four months. Since June 1 the date originally set by Congress when banks could notify the corporation of their intention to drop insurance, 66 banks have applied and been admitted to the guaranty fund.

Protection of the insured deposits of withdrawing banks will continue until Oct. 12. The corporation then will notify depositors that their accounts are no longer insured.

Assessments paid in by the banks will be refunded to them, Crowley said, since deposit insurance has been administered during the last 21 months at no cost to insured banks.

Banks announced as withdrawing from the Deposit Insurance Corporation included the Illinois State Bank of East Alton, Ill.

Change in Banking Law.

A little-noticed section of the 1935 banking law has taken away from states the right to examine trust departments of national banks. J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency, recently notified all state banking departments and all national banks of the change.

The 1935 law reads:

"The state banking authorities may have access to reports of examination made by the Comptroller of the Currency insofar as such reports relate to the trust department of such bank, but nothing in this act shall be construed as authorizing the state banking authorities to examine the books, records and assets of such bank."

After explaining that copies of reports of examinations of national bank and trust departments may be found on file in the banks, and in the office of Chief National Bank Examiners, O'Connor's letter said:

"The law, of course, does not prohibit a bank from permitting an inspection of its records by anyone it desires, but does prohibit compulsory inspection."

RESERVE BANKERS SAY BUSINESS IS BETTER

Increased Activity Regarded as Indicating Rising Demand for Credit.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Gathered for its quarterly meeting yesterday with hte Federal Reserve Board, the Federal Advisory Council, whose members represent the 12 Reserve Banks, presented reports of better business.

Included were reports of a general increase in real estate activity and home building and increasing farm land and retail sales. They were interpreted collectively as indicating a rising general demand for Reserve Bank credit.

Officials said New England reported a general improvement in business, with one factory employing more workers than in 1929.

The automobile regions representative reported improved conditions and satisfactory sales.

From the iron and steel region of Pennsylvania and Ohio came a report of improved buying except by railroads and large building contractors.

The cattle industry reported satisfactory prices and feeding conditions. From the grain growing states came spotty reports of short crops.

LINDBERGH HELPING WORK ON ROCKET

At Roswell, N. M., Assisting Designer of Projectile for Stratosphere Experiment.

By the Associated Press.

ROSWELL, N. M., Sept. 25. — Col. Charles A. Lindbergn assisted Dr. Robert H. Goddard, scientist, today in experimental work with a rocket designed to go at the rate of 700 miles an hour in search of meteorological data. He hopes to obtain information that will help in flying through the stratosphere.

Plans for Fuel.

The rocket would be propelled by liquid oxygen and gasoline, into outer space with recording instruments. From a 60-foot tower Dr. Goddard would, if his plans work out, shoot his 12-foot rocket to altitudes greatly exceeding those which balloons are able to reach. He hopes to pierce the stratosphere in regions more than 30 miles high, where ionization and the reflection of radio waves occur. Stratosphere balloons now are limited to about 11 miles.

Guggenheim issued a statement in which he said:

"The object of this work is to obtain meteorological, astronomical, magnetic and other data at altitudes greatly exceeding those which can be reached by balloons of any type. The balloon depends for its lifting power on the presence of air, and consequently will always be limited to the lower portion of the atmosphere, while the efficiency of the rocket increases as the atmosphere becomes rarer, and it is greatest where no atmosphere exists. It is of the utmost importance to science to obtain data in regions exceeding 30 miles in height, where electrical phenomena, including ionization and the reflection of radio waves takes place.

"Another mission will be the astronomical photography without the interference of the earth's atmosphere.

"Dr. Goddard began research with power rockets in 1907, and in 1920 he started the experiments with liquid propellant rockets. He carried on this work in addition to his regular duties as professor of physics under grants from the Smithsonian Institution, Clark University and the Carnegie Institution of Washington. In 1930 the late Daniel Guggenheim made it possible for him to devote his entire time to the present full flight research.

"This project was inaugurated by a grant to Clark University, Worcester, Mass., of which Dr. Goddard is head of the physics department, and an advisory committee was formed including leading men in the various fields interested in obtaining high-altitude data. On this committee are Dr. John C. Merriam, president of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, chairman; Dr. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution; Dr. Walter S. Adams, director of the Mount Wilson Observatory; Dr. Wallace W. Atwood, president of Clark University; Col. Henry Breckenridge, Dr. John A. Fleming, director of the department of terrestrial magnetism of the Carnegie Institution of Washington; Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Dr. C. F. Marvin, former chief of the United States Weather Bureau, and Dr. Robert A. Millikan of the California Institute of Technology.

COUNCIL BEGINS CAMPAIGN AGAINST EXCESSIVE DRINKING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—A campaign for members for the Council for Moderation, Inc., to wage "a continuing campaign against excessive drinking," was begun today. Everett Colby, president of the Council, said the campaign had the backing of John D. Rockefeller Jr., and Edqsel B. Ford.

Large advertisements in morning newspapers named more than 30 New Yorkers on an advisory board which, when complete, is to include representatives from all the states.

The advertisements declared the objective of the campaign "is neither wet nor dry. Its aim is moderation."

"But in this age of automobiles, airplanes and mechanical devices of all kinds," the advertisements said, "immoderate drinking often becomes a public menact. . . .

"We believe the public mind can be influenced by suggestion. We, therefore, propose over a period of years to employ education and constant repetition of the idea of moderation to create an attitude of individual responsibility toward the use of liquor."

It was stressed that the campaign was "not in behalf of drinking in any degreee whatsoever."

Witness in Choir Singer's Trial

army would be left quite free of control."

Italy charged also that the conciliation committee did not take realities into account, saying it completely ignored the question of defense of Italian colonies, Italy's mission in Africa, and did not bear in mind Italy's situation in Ethiopia as a result of the three-power treaty of 1906 and previous agreements.

Italy characterized the offer by Britain and France of territorial adjustments as a renewal of the proposal to give Ethiopia an outlet to the sea.

"The Italian Government is forced definitely to oppose these proposals because it has repeatedly denounced the danger of such a solution which makes Ethiopia into a maritime power, thus heightening the real threat that she constitutes to Italy," the memorandum said.

Italy recalled that it always opposed such a possibility and refused an Ethiopian proposal for exchange of Ogaden for a territorial outlet to the sea through Eritrea.

"The Italian Government now is all the more bound to a refusal of a proposal for cession of an outlet to the sea to Ethiopia through the colonies of other powers," it insisted.

"The mere reference shows that no account has been taken of Italian reasons and causes that have led to the present conflict, which consist mainly in the fact that Ethiopia constitutes a menace to Italy.

"The committee should have considered the territorial rights granted to Italy by the tri-partite treaty, namely, the right to a junction between the Italian colonies of Eritrea and Somaliland to the west of Addis Ababa.

"Contrarily, the provisions of the tri-partite agreement were mentioned only for the purpose of asserting the rights and interests of the other two parties to the agreement."

Italy admitted that Britain and France recognized Italy's special interest in economic development of Ethiopia.

While noting this friendly disposition, Italy observed that putting these concessions into effect "would remain subordinate to special agreements between Italy and Ethiopia."

The observations concluded with an assertion that the causes of the Italian-Ethiopian conflict "demonstrate the impossibility of any agreement, even economic, with Ethiopia in view of that country's incapacity to enter into and still less to respect international agreements of any kind whatsoever."

Comment by Committee.

The League's conciliation group said: "The committee expressed no opinion on the documents furnished by the two parties.

"As an organ of conciliation, the committee was not called on to deliver judgment, but to consider the situation and seek and devise means of remedying it."

The committee expressed the opinion that the plan for international assistance seemed to offer a solution acceptable to both parties.

"The independence and territorial integrity of Ethiopia would be respected and Italy would have the possibility of resuming in security relations with Ethiopia based on good understanding," the committee said.

Aim of Proposals.

The committee emphasized that it tried to obtain greater tranquillity, not merely throughout Ethiopia but also on frontier territory, to safeguard neighboring territories against incursions, especially those which had for an object slave traffic, looting and smuggling.

The committee said its program also presented measures for security in agricultural areas where Europeans might be numerous and local protection inadequate.

The committee's report emphasized that Britain and France "will prepare to facilitate by common sacrifices territorial adjustments between Italy and Ethiopia, and recognize the special Italian interest in economic development of Ethiopia.

"This would be done to afford Italy further assurance that her desire to contribute to the economic development of Ethiopia would receive the highest possible degree of satisfaction."

The League Council theoretically could accept the report from its five-power committee and adopt within a few hours recommendations leading almost inevitably to sanctions in the event of war.

Ethiopian King Asks League to Send Impartial Observers.

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 25.—Emperor Haile Selassie today requested the League of Nations to send impartial observers to Ethiopia to investigate allegations of aggression and provocative acts and to fix responsibility in such cases.

The Emperor's request was made at the suggestion of Prof. Gaston Jeze, the French lawyer who has acted as one of Ethiopia's representatives at Geneva.

With no rain at Addis Ababa for 48 hours, some Ethiopians thought the dry season had arrived before the Mascal, greatest festival of the year, which usually marks the end of the rains with the accuracy of a clock. The weather yesterday was like Indian summer in New York or Chicago, with many Americans discarding their coats.

CONFESSION ADMITTED AT CHOIR SINGER TRIAL

Court Rules Newell P. Sherman Signed Murder Statement Voluntarily.

By the Associated Press.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 25.—Judge Thomas J. Hammond ruled today that a signed confession of Newell P. Sherman, choir singer and scoutmaster on trial for the murder of his wife, was admissible as evidence. The jurist found the confession had been made voluntarily.

Defense counsel objected strenuously yesterday to admission of the signed confession which Edward J. McCarthy, State Detective-Lieutenant and star witness for the prosecution, declared was made voluntarily. With the jury excused, Sherman took the witness stand to deny virtually every important part of the document.

Sherman is accused of drowning the mother of his two children the night of July 20 in Lake Singletary, near their Sutton home, to remove an obstacle to his wooing of Esther Magill, 18-year-old fellow worker in a Whitinsville factory. McCarthy said Sherman confessed he deliberately overturned a canoe, pushed his wife away when she tried to cling to him, waited for her to sink and swam ashore to report her "accidental death."

Sherman insisted whatever seeming admissions he may have made were the result of duress, a barrage of questions and fear inspired by a threat "truth serum" would be employed.

His story of the tragedy was that the canoe overturned accidentally, that he tried to swim ashore with his wife, but became afraid both would sink if they remained together and pushed her away in an impulse of self-preservation.

"I broke away; I'm ashamed to admit it," he said. "I waited to see if her body would rise, but it didn't."

RELIEF LETUP MUST BE GRADUAL, BAKER SAYS

Former Secretary of War Speaks at Conference on Human Needs.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, said yesterday that Government withdrawal from relief "must be very gradual," to avoid putting 'a too sudden burden" on private philanthropy.

Speaking at the closing session of the 1935 Mobilization for Human Needs, Baker said:

"When the public conscience has reached the place where it accepts the obligation, then the transfer from private to public philanthropy is a normal and easy transfer. But there will always be the opportunity for pioneering by private agencies.

"I think we ought not to lose sight of the fact that if the general Government and state and local governments had not intervened in this relief problem in the fierce and deadly days of this depression, no possible willingness on the part of private philanthropy to carry that load would at all have sufficed.

"We have been spared the tragedy of disaster, social disaster, by the intervention that the general Government has made and that the state governments have made."

Baker said welfare agencies hoped to reduce the problem eventually to a degree where it could again "become a problem of neighborhood capacity."

"My only hope," he declared, "is that the transition will not be too sudden, that we will not jump to the conclusion that the consequences of the depression will be over just as soon as the fact of the depression is over."

The Community Chest's annual campaign will begin shortly with a goal in excess of the $70,000,000 raised throughout the country for expenditures in the current year.

The child was playing on a bed and rolled against an insecure screen which gave way. Falling about a foot to the slanting roof of a porch, she rolled to the edge and dropped to the sidewalk before her mother and a maid could reach her.

CELEBRATION AFTER PARADE LARGEST AND NOISIEST OF CONVENTION

TRAFFIC JAMMED; BONFIRES SET ON PLAZA STREETS

Merry-Makers Use Boxes and Crates Left by Spectators to Feed Flames at 14 Spots.

The downtown crowd of celebrants was larger and noisier last night than any night since the preliminary merry-making for the American Legion convention began last Saturday.

It broke up earlier, however, than on the previous nights. That is, by 1 o'clock this morning it was actually possible to drive a car through the downtown section without being stopped for inspection by Legionnaires, possible to find one empty table at some barrooms, possible (maybe) to walk one block without having to tell some Leggionnaires where Elmer was or ought to be.

The crowd stayed on from the almost interminable parade and by 7 o'clock it was almost impossible to get near a bar for a cocktail or near a restaurant or dining room for dinner. Traffic intersections were jammed. Twelfth boulevard, from Olive to Washington, was an almost solid mass of people and automobiles.

The Last Word in Noise.

The noise was at its loudest. Bells, horns, firecrackers, bombs, salutes, sirens, whistles, horns, backfiring, bugles and bands. Everything made noise.

Bands and drum and bugle corps marched into hotel lobbies and saloons and struck up tunes. It made little difference whether anybody wanted to listen. They'd practiced a whole year for the convention and now that they were here they were going to play, and play loud.

By the time the broadcast of the Louis-Baer fight started it was so noisy that a radio hardly carried above the din. There was little interest in the fight by the celebrants. They had too much to do, they might even start a fight themselves, to be worried about what went on in Yankee Stadium.

Bonfires Set Around Plaza.

It didn't take long before someone thought it would be a fine idea and a help to the Street Cleaning Department to burn up all the boxes and crates on which people had stood to watch the parade. Twelfth street and the streets on Municipal Plaza flared up in flames. Police reported 14 major bonfires, which they watched until they were out. Six false fire alarms were also reported.

There was the same free and easy atmosphere of all the previous nights. In one barroom a girl was whirled along the bar and each man kissed her as she came by. In another a poker-faced man walked through with a can of disinfectant lazily spraying anybody he decided he didn't like. In another place they broke their glasses on the floor as soon as they were drained.

Along Olive street two Legionnaires stopped a street car, reached their canes through the windows, putting the crook of the canes around the motorman's neck, and then led him and the street car down the street. At Twelfth and Olive two Legionnaires unfolded a blanket and went to sleep in the middle of the intersection.

Fleecing in Crap Games.

The regular way to call a waiter was to beat a cane on the table. The regular way to get fleeced was to get in a washroom crap game. Police reported they broke up four games with loaded dice.

At Ninth street and Washington avenue they were still throwing water out of hotel windows. Nobody seemed to care any more. It felt pretty good to get a cool spray of water.

"We've only been here since 8 o'clock," said a red-haired girl from South St. Louis, "and let's see, since then we've been in the California, the Michigan, the New York and the Kansas delegations." She and her dark-haired girl friend were wearing buttons which told everyone they were from Kansas City, Kan., and which asked you to vote for Colmery for commander.

Pajamas and Nightgowns.

It must have been about midnight when some of the drum corps changed to pajamas and nightgowns and marched through the streets and into bar-rooms. They seemed to play louder when not in uniform.

It was about 1 a. m. when a policeman stood on a corner and surveyed the scene. They were quitting a little earlier, he thought. A man came along and asked him how to get to a West End hotel. A girl patted him on the arm and asked him if he was tired. He thought they were losing their energy and going home.

In a saloon, two doors away, they were hoisting a blonde in a yellow rubber bathing suit on the bar. It might have gone on that way all night. At Grand and Olive they still had traffic blocked at 2 a. m. In the cheap cafes farther west the pianos were tinkling. This morning at 7 o'clock there were half a dozen people in a downtown bar drinking beer.

Sidelights on Legion

Belgrano Stands Through Parade — Veteran's Sales Tax Campaign.

Legion officials and police expected that the fun-making, the celebrating and the carousing would taper off after last night. Four days on a liquid diet is beginning to show its distressing effects.

The Michigan Legionnaire who was carrying the two-foot facsimile of Missouri's sales tax mill in the parade says he hopes to pay his convention expenses by the mills he has thrown at him while he walks around. He had a couple bag fulls by today, but agreed they probably wouldn't buy him more than a few drinks.

National Commander Belgrano stood during the entire seven and three-quarter hours of the parade yesterday except for a few odd moments when no unit happened to be passing. Then he sat down on a chair. He rested his right leg on the chair much of the time while he was standing. He has just recovered from a sprained ankle suffered several months ago.

Belgrano, a striking figure in his dark blue uniform and stiff white collar, confined himself mostly to formal saluting and rigid standing at attention. But his wife and Mrs. A. C. Carlson, president of the Legion Auxilliary, waved, shouted, and threw kisses at their friends as they passed.

The politicians in the reviewing stand skipped politics in their conversations and confined themselves to trivialities. Late in the afternoon Gov. Johnson of Colorado walked up to Mayor Houde of Montreal and introduced himself.

"You've come a long way," said the Governor to the Mayor.

"Oh, yes, but it's worth it," said the Mayor to the Governor.

"Yep, there's no other show like it," said the Governor. Then he walked on.

All those in the reviewing stand had ham, cheese and braunschweiger sandwiches and iced tea for lunch. Besides that they had a red, white and blue draped box of Calhoun County apples which had been sent to the national commander. Belgrano drank four bottles of soda during the afternoon, stacking the empty bottles up neatly in the corner of the little projecting stand in which he stood.

Just when the traffic jam was the thickest at Twelfth boulevard and Locust street last night a somewhat frenzied man was trying to drive his car through. He didn't get very far until he yelled to the crowd that his wife was in the back seat and that she was going to have a baby any minute now. They cleared a path for him then and he drove to the hospital.

A policeman and a young man who had had a fight the night before were burying the hatchet in front of the Jefferson Hotel. The man had a pretty battered nose, but the policeman had no scars of battle. It took him about 15 minutes, however, to explain how badly his fist still hurt.

In one hotel washroom last night a Legionnaire was asleep on the floor. He had turned a chair over and used the back of the chair as a pillow. There was a craps game going on and sometimes the dice would roll over and touch him lightly on the face but he didn't wake up.

Chief Winslow White Eagle of Portage, Wis., a Legionnaire, complained to police today that several Legionnaires took his ornamented bow and arrow from him at 3 a. m. and had failed to return them. He said he had gone to a restaurant at 1809 Washington avenue, and had placed the bow and arrow on a window sill behind while he was eating. Several Legionnaires grabbed them and ran from the place, he said.

SCAFFOLD FALL FATAL TO 3

Two Workers and Woman Passing Beneath Killed in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Two workmen who fell from a scaffold on the third floor of a building yesterday were fatally injured and a woman who was struck either by one of the men or by a tool was killed outright.

Nels Larson, 50 years old, and Patrick Halloran, 60, were working on the scaffold. Mrs. Thomas Corcoran, 42, who had just taken a luncheon to her 12-year-old daughter at a nearby school, walked beneath the scaffold as the men fell.

BIOLOGICAL SURVEY PLANS TO CONDEMN LAND FOR REFUGE

Finds It Impossible to Get Tract in Southeast Missouri by Direct Negotiation.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Officials of the Biological Survey said today they had found it impossible to acquire land for the Mingo swamp wildlife refuge in Southeast Missouri by direct negotiation and had decided to institute "judicial proceedings."

The fact that most of the land is in a defunct drainage district, it was said, made a "very complex situation."

The proposed refuge would comprise approximately 33,000 acres. Funds for establishment of the refuge are available if the land can be obtained at prices regarded by officials of the Biological Survey as reasonable.

BANTAM CONVENTION AT ARENA

Association to Meet at National Poultry Show Oct. 12-19.

The American Bantam Association will hold its annual western convention at the St. Louis National Poultry and Pet Stock Show at the Arena, Oct. 12 to 19, in connection with the National Dairy Show, it was announced yesterday.

A committee to supervise Dairy Show promotional activities in the St. Louis Public School Patrons' Alliance was appointed yesterday. Its members were Myrt Rollins, Victor Lund, Harry E. Wiehe, Milton F. Napier and Joseph C. Schroeder.

The Mississippi One of Sights.

Many Legion visitors are making the most of their first opportunity to view something about which they have heard since their first geography class—the Mississippi River. More pedestrians, many of them legionnaires and their families, crossed Eads Bridge yesterday than for many years.

LEGION PARADES NEARLY 8 HOURS TO GAY FANFARE

65,000 Brightly-Uniformed Marchers Swing Through Streets — Many Too Young to Remember War

Of the 65,000 marchers in yesterday's all-day parade of the American Legion over central and downtown streets, there were several thousand not old enough to remember the years of the Legion's military service, 1917-18.

To these juvenile marchers, and to many of their age who were among the 200,000 or more spectators, war was made to seem a thing of gay colors, drum-major stick-twirling and endless bugle-blowing and rat-tat rhythm. So much rhythm as almost to grow monotonous—but the spectators stayed to the last twilight moments of the seven and three-quarter hours. The parade's arrival at the Market street reviewing stand was at 10:19 a. m., its final passing at 6:04 p. m. Ample spacing, often with spaces of a city block between units, added to the time.

One glimpse of war's realism was given by a Tennessee contingent, which appeared in the torn and mud-stained khaki of an outfit just coming from the trenches. For the rest, the veterans were so garbed that few would recognize them as the same who marched through the streets of St. Louis and other cities in the homecomings of 1919.

Iowans Carry Cornstalks.

The Legionnaires, or those sufficiently interested to go to conventions, have gone in for drum corps, brightly uniformed. Those who have not become proficient with drumsticks or the bugle were left to bring up the rear, with somewhat the aspect of stragglers. One State, Iowa, solved the problem of what to do with its members not in specially uniformed groups. The Iowans were given huge stalks of corn to carry, and the effect of several score of men, bearing the tasseled 10-foot growths, was that of an advancing corn field.

Some posts, instead of putting their own members in hussar or West Point uniforms, and providing them with bugles and drums, outfitted companies of boys and girls. These juvenile bodies came from states as distant as Maine, and Illinois had a seemingly endless number of them. Most of the 67 musical units in the Illinois section, which was one hour and 48 minutes in passing the reviewing stand, were "manned" by girls. Their talents ran to drum-major evolutions, and in Illinois and other states, even adult groups were led by young women in silk tights, or in costumes giving less coverage. Florida had a bathing beauty, clad chiefly in the summer tan of Winter Haven, at the head of its group from that resort.

Drums, Bugles, but Few Bands.

There were bands now and then—Wyoming sent one in cowboy "chaps"—but they were few compared with the drum corps. However, the buglers were ambitious, and played some war tunes written for instruments with more notes than theirs. One line of girl buglers did its best to execute "Hinky Dinky Parley Voo," sliding quickly over the notes which could not be played. The total number of musical and rhythmical organizations in the parade was about 350.

Olive street from Jefferson avenue to Twelfth boulevard, Twelfth to Chestnut, and the streets leading around Memorial Plaza and past the municipal building group, formed the parade route. Because of the size of the crowd around City Hall, the route was extended from the rear of the Civil Courts building, where disbandment was at first scheduled, to the plaza at Sixth and Market streets.

This gave a route of about three miles, and every part of it was thickly lined with spectators. The official grandstands were at Memorial Plaza, where seats were $1.50, but many small private stands were sold out at 50 and 75 cents. In all the streets, the spectators stood as far out as the police and guarding militiamen would permit, and sidewalks and space back to building lines were closely packed. Police estimators, accustomed to viewing the Veiled Prophet's parade crowds, fixed the number of spectators at 200,000, and this did not include thousands who stood at upper windows and on roofs.

Aircraft Circle Marchers.

Fifty-four army airplanes from a Louisiana field, and a semi-rigid airship from Scott Field, were over the parade at its start, the dirigible maneuvering above the route for several hours.

The Sixth Infantry and its band from Jefferson Barracks, and the Sixty-first Coast Artillery Anti-Aircraft Regiment from Fort Sheridan, Ill., were the regular army's contribution. A dozen Filipinos led the territorial and foreign groups which preceded the states. Arizona was the first of the states in line, because of the growth of its Legion organization, exceeding in percentage that of other states.

No "tin hats" in the line were brighter than those of the Iowa adult drum and bugle corps. Some glistened like gold, others with a silver finish.

Illinois had the biggest contingent of paraders. The Sphinx, done in gold, was drawn before the large post delegations from "Egypt," and some of Cleopatra's handmaidens reclined on the same float.

Denver and Cleveland presented their rival claims for next year's convention in various ways, and New York invited the Legion to "march on Fifth avenue again" in 1937.

Floats in Missouri Section.

Missouri, coming last as the host state, showed several floats, one of them the Grundy County Courthouse at Trenton, where Gen. Pershing, A. E. F. commander, and Gen. Crowder, draft conductor, took their "exams" for admission to West Point. Senator Bennett C. Clark, chairman of the Legion's organizing caucus in 1919, marched with Mayor Dickmann, also a Legionnaire, at the head of the Missouri section.

Judges announced last night that the prize for the best patriotic float had been awarded to Racine, Wis., for its "Spirit of '76-'17." Olney, Ill., was adjudged to have the best Legion float, and Miami, Fla., the best marching drum and bugle corps. Jerry Helleack of Fox Lake, Ill., was declared the best one-man drum corps.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Willer.

Dr. Thompson admitted to Chief of Detectives Carroll, in the presence of newspaper reporters, that he had passed the checks, but said of the one involved in the forgery case that he had accepted it in good faith from a friend, and denied that he had forged it.

"Just a Damn Fool."

"I've just been a damn fool and made a mistake," Dr. Thompson said. "I've been in straitened circumstances, and I issued the checks expecting that I would get some money from an estate, but I haven't got it yet. The gas company was threatening to turn off the gas at my home, and I used some of the money to pay them. I'm going to make the checks good as soon as I can."

While waiting at the Sheriff's office in Clayton, Dr. Thompson complained to another reporter that he was being "harassed" by prosecuting authorities because of the statement he had given to Mrs. Muench.

"All this would never have come up if it hadn't been for that," he said. "I stuck by my friends, and this is the result."

Dr. Thompson said he had been a friend of Dr. Muench for about 20 years and responded gladly to the request of Dr. Muench that he examine Mrs. Muench to form an opinion as to whether she recently had given birth to a child. As a result of his examination, Dr. Thompson signed the following statement, addressed "To whom it may concern," and dated Sept. 14, a copy of which was given to the Post-Dispatch last Friday by Mrs. Muench:

> This is to certify that Mrs. Nellie Muench was examined on the above date by myself, and my conclusion is that within the past four to five weeks she had given birth to a child. All normal and physical signs of a recent delivery were present.
> MAURICE THOMPSON.

"I can't prove that she had a baby," Dr. Thompson said to the reporter. "To do that I would have had to be present when it was born. But the evidence revealed by my examination pointed to the fact that she had recently given birth to a child."

Dr. Thompson's statement to the reporter that he could not prove that Mrs. Muench had a baby without having been present when it was born was characterized by noted obstetricians as proof he was incompetent to make the examination to what he certified for Mrs. Muench.

Another friend of the Muenches, Dr. Marsh Pitzman, of 6 Kingsbury place, also signed a statement concerning Mrs. Muench's reported motherhood. The details of Dr. Pitzman's statement are described elsewhere in this edition.

Diplomas of Dr. Thompson.

Dr. Thompson is 52 years old. On the walls of his office in Room 606 of the Mid-City Building, 320 North Grand boulevard, are diplomas of the Missouri College of Homeopathic Medicine, class of 1907; the Hahnemann Society, also a homeopathic organization, which bears the same date; a certificate of attendance at a railway surgery course at the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1906, and his license from the State Board of Health, dated Jan. 10, 1907.

Medical association records, in which he is listed as Dr. J. Maurice Thompson, indicate that he was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1907 and took post-graduate work there the following year. He became a member of St. Louis Medical Society in 1921, was dropped in 1925 for non-payment of dues—as, a year ago, was Dr. Ludwig Muench—was reinstated when he paid up back dues in 1926 and dropped again for the same cause on Dec. 31, 1928.

Grocer Makes Complaint.

The check forgery warrant, which Dr. Thompson spoke of as a "frame up," was issued last Thursday by Justice of the Peace George W. Booth of Kirkwood, on complaint of William McDonnell, manager of a grocery at 108 North Kirkwood road. It was based on a $10 check, dated June 28, and drawn on the Webster Groves Trust Co. by "M. M. Myers" in favor of "Dr. M. Thompson."

The first indorsement was Dr. Thompson's, the second that of Orlina Rushton, who formerly operated a tavern in Kirkwood. Dr. Thompson cashed the check with Mrs. Rushton who presented it to McDonnell at the grocery. McDonnell got it back from the bank marked "no account." Admitting that he had cashed the check, Dr. Thompson said he received it in good faith from a friend whom he declined to name. A preliminary hearing on this charge is set for tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock, before Justice Booth.

Inquiry at Myers Home.

McDonnell told a Post-Dispatch reporter that when the check was returned by the bank he took it to Dr. Thompson's home where he was told by the physician's wife that among Dr. Thompson's patients were a family of the name of Myers.

At the Myers' home, McDonnell said, he was told by Mrs. Myers that the signature on the check was not her husband's. No one was at home when a reporter called today at the Myers' residence.

On the same day that the forgery warrant was issued by Justice Booth, two warrants charging Dr. Thompson with writing and passing worthless checks were issued

Dr. Thompson Arrested On Bad Check Charges

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Willer.

Dr. Thompson admitted to Chief of Detectives Carroll, in the presence of newspaper reporters, that he had passed the checks, but said of the one involved in the forgery case that he had accepted it in good faith from a friend, and denied that he had forged it.

"Just a Damn Fool."

"I've just been a damn fool and made a mistake," Dr. Thompson said. "I've been in straitened circumstances, and I issued the checks expecting that I would get some money from an estate, but I haven't got it yet. The gas company was threatening to turn off the gas at my home, and I used some of the money to pay them. I'm going to make the checks good as soon as I can."

While waiting at the Sheriff's office in Clayton, Dr. Thompson complained to another reporter that he was being "harassed" by prosecuting authorities because of the statement he had given to Mrs. Muench.

"All this would never have come up if it hadn't been for that," he said. "I stuck by my friends, and this is the result."

Dr. Thompson said he had been a friend of Dr. Muench for about 20 years and responded gladly to the request of Dr. Muench that he examine Mrs. Muench to form an opinion as to whether she recently had given birth to a child. As a result of his examination, Dr. Thompson signed the following statement, addressed "To whom it may concern," and dated Sept. 14, a copy of which was given to the Post-Dispatch last Friday by Mrs. Muench:

This is to certify that Mrs. Nellie Muench was examined on the above date by myself, and my conclusion is that within the past four to five weeks she had given birth to a child. All normal and physical signs of a recent delivery were present.

(Signed)
MAURICE THOMPSON.

"I can't prove that she had a baby," Dr. Thompson said to the reporter. "To do that I would have had to be present when it was born. But the evidence revealed by my examination pointed to the fact that she had recently given birth to a child."

Dr. Thompson's statement to the reporter that he could not prove that Mrs. Muench had a baby without having been present when it was born was characterized by noted obstetricians as proof he was incompetent to make the examination to what he certified for Mrs. Muench.

Another friend of the Muenches, Dr. Marsh Pitzman, of 6 Kingsbury place, also signed a statement concerning Mrs. Muench's reported motherhood. The details of Dr. Pitzman's statement are described elsewhere in this edition.

Diplomas of Dr. Thompson.

Dr. Thompson is 52 years old. On the walls of his office in Room 606 of the Mid-City Building, 320 North Grand boulevard, are diplomas of the Missouri College of Homeopathic Medicine, class of 1907; the Hahnemann Society, also a homeopathic organization, which bears the same date; a certificate of attendance at a railway surgery course at the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1906, and his license from the State Board of Health, dated Jan. 10, 1907.

Medical association records, in which he is listed as Dr. J. Maurice Thompson, indicate that he was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1907 and took post-graduate work there the following year. He became a member of St. Louis Medical Society in 1921, was dropped in 1925 for non-payment of dues—as, a year ago, was Dr. Ludwig Muench—was reinstated when he paid up back dues in 1926 and dropped again for the same cause on Dec. 31, 1928.

Dr. Thompson's office is small and inexpensively furnished. His home at 603 South Kirkwood road, a large old-fashioned frame house opposite Kirkwood High School, bears a "for sale" sign.

Grocer Makes Complaint.

The check forgery warrant, which Dr. Thompson spoke of as a "frame up," was issued last Thursday by Justice of the Peace George W. Booth of Kirkwood, on complaint of William McDonnell, manager of a grocery at 108 North Kirkwood road. It was based on a $10 check, dated June 28, and drawn on the Webster Groves Trust Co. by "M. M. Myers" in favor of "Dr. M. Thompson."

The first indorsement was Dr. Thompson's, the second that of Orlina Rushton, who formerly operated a tavern in Kirkwood. Dr. Thompson cashed the check with Mrs. Rushton who presented it to McDonnell at the grocery. McDonnell got it back from the bank marked "no account." Admitting that he had cashed the check, Dr. Thompson said he received it in good faith from a friend whom he declined to name. A preliminary hearing on this charge is set for tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock, before Justice Booth.

Inquiry at Myers Home.

McDonnell told a Post-Dispatch reporter that when the check was returned by the bank he took it to Dr. Thompson's home where he was told by the physician's wife that among Dr. Thompson's patients were a family of the name of Myers.

At the Myers' home, McDonnell said, he was told by Mrs. Myers that the signature on the check was not her husband's. No one was at home when a reporter called today at the Myers' residence.

On the same day that the forgery warrant was issued by Justice Booth, two warrants charging Dr. Thompson with writing and passing "worthless" checks were issued by Justice of the Peace James J. Ryan of Maplewood. These were based on checks given by Dr. Thompson to Mrs. Mary Goodwin, owner of a grocery at 649 East Big Bend road, Webster Groves, which were returned by the Peoples' State Bank of Maplewood marked "no account."

The first of these checks, dated Aug. 7, was for $6. It was made payable to "Dr. M. Thompson" and was drawn by "J. M. Thompson." It bore the indorsement "Dr. M. Thompson, 603 South Kirkwood road, Kirkwood 1050." The second check, for $10, was cashed by Mrs. Goodwin the following day. It was similar in form to the first. The warrants based on these checks have not yet been served on the physician.

The three warrants under which Dr. Thompson was arrested today in the county were issued by Justice of the Peace James H. Sentenne Jr. of Kirkwood, on complaint of Thomas Fuchs, who operates a tavern on Lindbergh boulevard south of Big Bend road.

These three checks, two for $4 and one for $6, were made payable to Fuchs and were signed by Maurice Thompson. Two, dated Jan. 18 and Jan. 20, last, were drawn on the Easton-Taylor Trust Co., and were returned to Fuchs marked "insufficient funds." The Peoples' State Bank of Maplewood returned with a similar inscription one of the checks dated July 29.

Doctor Furnishes Bonds.

Dr. Thompson gave bond of $1000 on the forgery charge, and $900 bond on the Fuchs checks charge at Clayton. The bonds were signed by Edward McGarry, a professional bondsman, who later went to Police Headquarters in the city to sign bond for Dr. Thompson there.

At Police Headquarters McGarry signed two $1000 bonds for the physician, who was booked "suspected of obtaining merchandise under false pretenses," and, because of the unserved warrants issued by Justice Ryan, "suspected of being a fugitive from St. Louis County." Both bonds are returnable Oct. 3 before Judge Joseph Dickmann in the Court of Criminal Correction.

False Pretense Charged.

Dr. Thompson had been released on bond when Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Willer issued a false pretense warrant in St. Louis and announced that three others would be prepared. Willer said, however, that he would not ask that the physician be rearrested.

The warrant which was issued was based on the complaint of Joseph Hewgley, owner of a grocery at 4926 Delmar boulevard, who said that last April 27 Thompson had givn him a $5 check on the People's State Bank of Maplewood which was returned marked "account closed." The check was offered, Hewgley said, in payment of $2.50 in groceries, and Dr. Thompson got $2.50 in change.

Checks given last Nov. 27, 28 and 29 to Charles R. Davis, manager of a drug store at 401 North Euclid avenue, were the source of complaint in the three cases which Willer said he would issue warrants. These checks, drawn by Dr. Thompson on the People's State Bank, were for $6, $8 and $10. All were returned marked "insufficient funds."

While Willer was drawing up the warrant in the Hewgley case, Sam Lierly, manager of a drug store at 3901 Olive street, telephoned to make complaint about several checks which he had cashed for Dr. Thompson. Willer said, however, that nothing could be done because the one year statute of limitation had run on these checks.

Wounded Politician Dies.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Edward J. Arendt, 40 years old, Republican ward committeeman, died last night of wounds inflicted by an unidentified gunman Sunday night. Three blood transfusions failed to save him. Police have not apprehended the assailant, who stepped from an automobile containing two other men as Arendt climbed out of his own car before his sister's home.

LOUIS, BEATING BAER, COMPLETELY OUTCLASSED HIM AND SHOWED EVERY ASSET RING KNOWS

The Last 40 Seconds—And the Finish of Max Baer

MAX, HELPLESS, FLOORED THREE TIMES IN 4 ROUNDS; RECEIPTS NEAR A MILLION

By John E. Wray.
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—With one final clowning gesture, Max Baer, until a few months ago heavyweight champion of the world, passed out of the picture, in the estimation of some 83,462 persons who paid $948,352 to see his finish at Yankee Stadium last night.

Knocked down for the third and final time, after two minutes and 50 seconds of the fourth round had elapsed, Max collapsed under a barrage of blows delivered by the sensational young Detroit Negro heavyweight, Joe Louis.

Max was outclassed from the very first move of the fight. He was backed around the ring and maneuvered out of position by the clever Louis who, after two rounds of testing, cut loose in earnest in the third round.

The bewildered Baer, apparently game, had been bleeding at the nose and mouth for two rounds. Then, swarming all over the former champion, Louis unleashed a series of rights, lefts, some of them uppercuts, climaxed by a solid and quick right-hand punch that traveled only a short distance.

Baer Knocked to His Knees.

Nose and lips cut, Max slid to the floor on his knees. And it was here that he appeared to strike his flag. Dazed, probably, not knowing what he was doing, Max, while the timekeepers' count was going on, opened his mouth in a make-believe laugh and raised his right arm. The crowd sat amazed, as if not knowing what to make of it. It was as though he had meant to say: "We who are about to die, salute you."

And, whether he meant it that way or not, it was prophetic. Max rose after taking the full count, but Louis was on top of him again, apparently fearless of any punching power Max might have had in reserve. Joe battered Baer to the floor again. This time it was a left deep into the body that started Max on the road to the canvas.

83,462 Fans Paid $948,352 to See Louis Stop Rival

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.

REVISED official figures today showed last night's show was a million-dollar spectacle, after all. The gross gate receipts, according to Mike Jacobs, totaled $948,352.17. To this was added $27,000 paid for the ringside broadcast and $25,000 for the motion pictures, sending the total to $1,000,352.17.

The net receipts amounted to $804,955.30, of which 10 per cent went to the Free Milk Fund for Babies, Inc.

The 30 per cent share for Louis came to $217,337.93. Baer, getting a net 25 per cent, collected $181,114.99.

The net paid attendance totaled 83,462, greatest for any fight ever held in New York.

Max assumed an imitation wise smile while they tried to bring him back to normalcy; but it was all to no purpose. He half reeled out of his corner, but fought gamely through the greater part of the fourth round and then took a terrific left hook to the body.

"I thought I was hitting a piece of iron," Louis said of this blow after the fight. But it did the work. It started Max on his third trip to the canvas. On his way down the swift-hitting Louis clouted him with the right that finished the job.

Give Max some credit—he was tough. He was never quite out. He finished on one knee, unable to clear his head in time to rise before the count of 10. But he had taken plenty of punishment.

Former Champion Unable to Find Opening, Lands But One Good Blow

It was not a glorious finish. Nor was it inglorious. The surprised thousands, who had come there expecting to see a super Negro boxer face a glutton for punishment, had the satisfaction of seeing the super boxer. There was no doubt from the first bell who was master, up there in the ring. Louis had everything—Max had nothing. He could not untrack himself. In splendid physical condition, it appeared that he either feared his opponent or lacked ability to co-ordinate. He was a rather pitiful spectacle. He was little better than the man Braddock outpointed.

His Negro opponent, boxing as a real master, left Max no openings. Only once during the fight did Max show any initiative or deliver a damaging blow. That was toward the close of the second round, when he clubbed a short right to Joe's head, which Louis afterwards said hurt him. If it did, there was no evidence of it in the ring, for Louis had started a counter attack when the bell rang, the end of that round.

To ringside observers it was evident from Max's appearance that something was wrong. Coming into his corner with Dempsey and Ancil Hoffman behind him, he was noticeably agitated and ringsiders remarked at his appearance.

In contrast was the "dead pan" face of Louis, who apparently had no more on his mind than an intention to commit mayhem on a plate of ice cream. And all this in spite of the fact that Joe had been married only four hours before the contest.

Baer was drawn and restless, as he waited for instructions. Louis, in the meantime, sat unconcerned as if he were waiting for a hamburger sandwich at a corner restaurant. The only motion he made was to fit his gloves better around the wrist. When Referee Art Donovan called the men to the center of the ring, Louis looked steadily at the official and paid no attention to Max. And they returned to the corners without the usual clash of eyes.

Louis Takes Initiative.

No two ways about this—Louis is a great fighter. He showed everything in that first round. Stepping out cautiously, he took the initiative. Baer acted as though he were either scared or bewildered by the boxing knowledge of his

Louis' Next Fight Will Be In New York in November

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Joe Louis, the battling bridegroom, agreed today to plans for a foreign tour, including fights in South America and European capitals, under the promotion of Mike Jacobs.

Jacobs, who staged the million-dollar spectacle last night, featured by the Brown Bomber's four-round knockout of Max Baer, announced his intention of taking Louis abroad after pitting the Negro against the best available opponent in a charity match at the Coliseum, Bronx Indoor Arena, late this November.

The German heavyweight, Walter Neusel, if successful against Primo Carnera in a match scheduled for Nov. 1 at Madison Square Garden, will be matched with Louis, according to Jacobs, who also revealed definitely that contracts will be drawn up giving him exclusive op-

M'KENDREE ELEVEN WILL OUTWEIGH BEARS FRIDAY NIGHT

JIM CONZELMAN ABOUT DECIDED ON HIS TEAM'S OPENING LINEUP

By James M. Gould

With the opening game of the season now only two nights away, Coach Jimmy Conzelman of Washington University has issued his annual "no more scrimmage" ukase. Oh, the third team may mingle with the freshmen, perhaps, but, for the first two varsity elevens, that sort of rough work is "out." Those who desire real strife are advised to seek it in the ranks of the opposition.

While it wouldn't be exactly true to say "Conzelman Fears McKendree," as, for years, A. A. Stagg used to "Fear Purdue" in the headlines, the Bears, nevertheless, respect the Lebanon collegians and have given and will give attention to a defense against the plays Coach Paul Waldorf is expected to employ Friday night when the teams meet at Francis Field.

The Lebanon Bearcats have been practicing for three weeks. On the squad of 39 working out under Waldorf, there are 13 lettermen and eight of these veterans will start against the Bears, five on the line and three in the backfield. Every player in the tentative Washington starting lineup is a letterman, so the battle will be joined by two experienced squads.

Coach Conzelman of Washington has just about determined the make-up of his No. 1 team—the team that will open the season. There are few surprises, if any, in the 11-man list. Hobbs appears to have beaten out Les Brungard for one end post and will be paired with Dwight Hafeli on the flanks. John Lamb and Ralph Bentzinger will start at tackles with Tony Konvicka and Irv Londy at the guards and Al Iezzi at center. Gentlemen, that's quite a line.

In the backfield will be the two co-captains, Mike Zboyovski at quarter and Chick Droke at one half. Bob Hudgens will team with Droke and the clever and intuitive Don Wimberly will be at fullback.

If things go as expected, Conzelman plans using subs in wholesale lots as he wants to be certain just what he has in the shape of available reserves for the game with Illinois next week.

This announcement may come as a surprise. The McKendree team will outweigh the Bears and the latter are not the lightest football players in the world. According to weight statistics, the McKendree line will average 199.4 pounds to the 192.1 pounds the Bears' front wall can show. In this connection, it may be well to remark that Dudley Klamp, a lettered sophomore tackle, is listed at 265 pounds.

The Bears will have a slight advantage in the backfield with an average of 172.5 pounds to 171.2 for the McKendree ball-carrying quartet. But, the figures show for the two teams, the following averages: Washington 185, and McKendree 189.

Friday night's game will be the fifth between the two schools. Washington has won three of the four, the lone McKendree decision being by a 13-7 score in 1932.

With the choosing of the probable starting team at Washington, it would not be surprising, if all goes well, if Conzelman replaced his starters with an entire new eleven during the course of the first half. If he decides to do this, followers of the team will see Brungard and Tomlinson at the ends, Gog and Wendt at the tackles, Davis and Bowman at the guards, Martintoni at center, Tommy Ozment at quarter, Ed Wagner and Dave Blumberg at the halves and "Bucking Joe" Bukant at fullback.

Billikens in Light Drill..

After their pleasing and impressive victory over Sewanee Monday night, the Billikens will do more easy than hard work the rest of the week in preparation for their game at Omaha, Neb., Saturday night when they meet Marchmont Schwartz's Creighton U. Bluejays. The Billikens defeated Creighton, 13 to 0, last year and, on their showing against Sewanee, rate several hundred per cent better than the 1934 team.

Chances are Coach Muellerleile will start the same team against Creighton he opened with against Sewanee—that is, Mitchell and Fitzgerald at the ends, Rossini and Baker at tackles, Putnam and Vollmer at guards, Krause at center, Lou Drone at quarter, Captain Hudson and Wood at the halves and Kroepper at full. The Billikens depart for Omaha Friday morning.

THERE'S just one thing we've got to know,
Where's Elmer?
We've hunted for him high and low,
Where's Elmer?
We've hounded him from coast to coast
We had him rounded up—almost,
And then he vanished like a ghost—
Where's Elmer?

We've got to get him off our chest,
Where's Elmer?
There's a warrant out for his arrest,
Where's Elmer?
He is none other but the one
Who walloped Billy Patterson
Then pronto took it on the run,
Where's Elmer?

Where's Elmer?
We seek this man of mystery,
Where's Elmer?
We'll leave no auto hood unturned
Until his whereabouts we've learned,
The meeting then can be adjourned—

Cleaning out the Augean stable, one of the 12 major jobs assigned to Hercules, was quite a chore but all the Cards have to do is take the Cubs to the cleaners five times in five days.

Almost the last words of De Wolf Hopper were: "Now give me the paper so I can see what the Cards did." Then "mighty Casey struck out." But he went down singing.

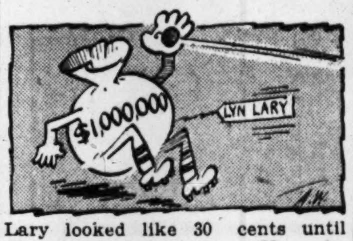
Our last remembrance of De Wolf Hopper was as he stood on the corner of Twelfth and Olive selling Liberty bonds to send the boys overseas. He was appearing in the same theater where a little later the American Legion was born. On the day of his death, 17 years afterwards, the Legionnaires were gathering in the same city to hold their annual convention.

With the passing of Digby Bell many years ago, Hopper became Public Rooter No. 1. He immortalized "Casey," who in turn did the same for De Wolf. They were a great pair.

Two or three weeks ago the pennant pickers were telling us how the schedule favored the Cards. Then suddenly the schedule took a turn for the worse and the Cards found themselves facing a big deficit with no reserve.

PUT not your trust in schedules
For when the race is hot
Today they may be for you,
Tomorrow maybe not!

In 1927 the Yankees paid $100,000 for Lyn Lary and Jimmy Reese.



Lary looked like 30 cents until Hornsby took him over. Now he looks like a million dollars.

When better ball players are made, the Rajah will make 'em.

BROWNS DEFEAT WHITE SOX, 4-3, SWEEP SERIES

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Melvin Mazzera, stocky little rookie from San Antonio, ably assisted Sugar Cain to a 4-3 victory over the White Sox here this afternoon.

the Cain allowed 10 hits as he chalked up his ninth victory of the year, while the Browns were being held to five by Babe Phelps.

But Cain was invincible with men on bases, and Mazzera and Beau Bell timed their shots off Phelps well.

Mazzera made two of the five hits, and one of them was his first big league home. His other hit started a one-run rally in the seventh.

Beau Bell, who made two more of the St. Louis hits, singled to start the first rally, and singled home the winning run after two were out in the eighth.

The Browns leave here tonight for Cleveland, where they wind up the 1935 campaign.

ATLANTA WINS FROM NEW ORLEANS, 4 TO 1, IN PLAYOFF OPENER

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 25.—Young Bud Thomas hurled the Atlanta Crackers to a 4-to-1 victory over the New Orleans Pelicans in the opening game of the final series of the Shaughnessy playoff here last night.

The teams will meet here again tonight in the second of the five-game series that will decide the Southern Association championship and the right to meet Oklahoma City in the annual Dixie series between the Southern and Texas Leagues.

WRAY'S COLUMN

It Was All a Mistake.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.

HURLEY.

"They had me all wrong about that Art Lasky fight in St. Paul," remarked the dapper Jack, "when they said that, after the fight, Retzlaff rushed over and poked me in the face.

"Nothing of the kind happened. Retzlaff, as any other fighter might do, immediately after the bout was finished, rushed over to shake hands with Lasky in his corner. The referee thought he was excited and grabbed him, giving rise to the impression that Retzlaff was being restrained from attacking somebody.

"There's nothing between me and Retzlaff of an unpleasant nature. I was in Lasky's corner merely because I had been retained for $250 to act as his adviser."

And as we get it, the $250 looks big to Jack these days, notwithstanding all the money he and his former boxing star accumulated. Bad investments and a too willing checkbook where friends are concerned were Hurley's troubles.

It's Skimmed Milk at That.

THE Hearst Milk Fund was supposed to get the benefit of last night's receipts, but, apparently, it was only skimmed milk. It was the scalpers who got the cream.

The return of the near-million dollar gate was supposed to have been signalized by a ticket scandal of major proportions and the sponsors of the show were supposed to have had knowledge of the situation.

This was supposed to extend to the sale of tickets at first hand and also with the juggling of ringside seats so that the purchasers could not possibly know the exact location of their purchases.

Such charges have been made before under other auspices. Perhaps there may have been some measure of merit in the accusations. But, as in the case with every ticket sale for an event of importance, whether sport or otherwise, that occurs in this vicinity, the scalping of tickets is a matter of regular procedure.

Probably there was no greater crime committed in regard to the Louis-Baer fight than happened in connection with any important first night theatrical show.

In any case, there are always persons willing to pay $100 for the best, even though the best is priced at $25.

Many Misunderstandings.

THERE is, however, no doubt that the desire to cover up on the matter of the row in which the customer was to get his seat resulted in a great many misunderstandings.

If the promoters of any show expect a potential crowd of from 75,000 to 90,000 they should very frankly say that this seat will be 10, 20 or 40 rows from the ringside, and include an exact count of this, even to the press rows.

When a man is sold a seat in the eighth row and he winds up in the twenty-eighth by actual count, you can't expect him to send a vote of thanks to the promoter.

We Knew Him When—

OF course, William McCarney was one of the ringsiders. He was in Baer's camp as Speculator, and he has been in the camp of one or the other of the principals in almost every heavyweight fight this writer can remember. And memory goes a long way.

William is inclined to be enthusiastic about those whom he contacts. Long years ago he almost had a heavyweight champion, and was he enthusiastic then!

The candidate was one of the most personable and clever boxers the heavyweight division has ever known—Luther McCarthy. McCarney built him up with victories over Carl Morris, a no-decision success over Jess Willard and other important showings against some of the great men of the day.

Then came a fight between McCarthy and Arthur Pelkey in Canada. Pelkey landed a heart blow under which McCarthy collapsed and died. And that was the nearest McCarney came to building up a titleholder until long years later when, as partner of Joe Jacobs, they handled Max Schmeling.

McCarney, one of the old school, is still hoping that time and a good break will give him a winner.

Buddy Better Than Max.

IF any member of the Baer family is to bring the family name to the front again it will have to be Buddy, the fine-looking young giant brother of Max. Buddy has not yet attained his majority, but we have seen a lot worse fighters than he.

On the windup of the program last night, Buddy fought Ford Smith, a really shifty fighter. They gave six rounds of the best fighting shown during the program.

Smith earned a decision over Buddy who, however, showed far more boxing skill in losing than Max has ever displayed in any of his fights.

Buddy, like all big fellows, had slow reactions. But there is real promise in this big kid, who is game and coming along in skill. Nothing like Joe Louis—but something better than Max.

Road Clear for Louis.

THE championship road is now clear for Joe Louis. His only possible rivals are Max Schmeling of Berlin and Jimmy Braddock. Lasky has been eliminated. Schmeling would be a joke and Braddock is little better. At that, Louis will hardly hit Braddock as easily as he hit Baer.

Pretty soft for this black and tan boy. He will be champion at 22 beyond a doubt. And he will hold for just so long as he keeps his feet on the straight and narrow path.

OUTSIDERS WIN EARLY RACES ON FAIRMOUNT CARD

By Dent McSkimming.

FAIRMOUNT TRACK, Sept. 25.—Racing before a crowd of about 3000, Royal Image stole the lead and held on gamely to take the opening event on this afternoon's card. The field of 12 was made up of two-year-olds that had not won more than one race and Royal Image had not won a single event in four previous starts.

Fairest Flag came with good late speed and almost caught Royal Image, failing by half a length but seems fit to win. Galanora, the favorite, was third. The refund on Royal Image was $28.40 for $2. She was ridden by F. Polk.

Flickmaru might easily have taken the purse for owner G. F. Woodman, but he ran far wide at the stretch turn, lost the lead to Thomas Seth and finished out of the money. Everybody, coming fast in the stretch, caught Thomas Seth 50 yards from home to win. Westy's Twinkle finished third. W. Lang's inspired ride seemed to have a lot to do with putting Everybody across ahead of the Seth horse. The winner refunded $15 for $2.

The favorite was shut out again in the running of the third race, when Dandy Dan outlasted Monde and Playdema in a thrilling stretch battle. Brilliant Miss, the favorite, finished far back. L. Machado, a boy who rode well here a year ago had the mount on Dandy Dan which refunded $13.20.

Nasslyn, from the barn of A. M. Smith came right back off his good race of last Monday and won the fourth race of the day. He had a big piece of work cut out for him in whipping Boston Common which refused to quit in the home stretch, and finished second. Teeny Weeny likewise injected some excitement into the struggle by coming fast in the home stretch. Nasslyn was the favorite. She was given a good ride by W. Lowe.

The "Frank Belgrano" and the "American Legion," fifth and sixth races on today's card have attracted the best fields.

SHAW BASKETBALL TEAM DEFEATS TULSA STENOS

The Shaw-Stephens basketball team defeated the Tulsa Stenos, 11-9, last night to even the series between the teams at one victory each in the girls' basketball games being played outdoors at National Softball Park. The third and final contest will be played at the same park tonight, starting about 8 o'clock.

To Play in Baltimore.

If Baltimore turns out strong for the Navy-Notre Dame game this fall the Middies will schedule two games there next year, one of them being the Yale game.

BLUES CALL OFF A GAME, THE SECOND TIME THIS WEEK

The St. Louis Blues, professional football team of the American Pro League, have called off their game with the Chicago Gophers, which had been scheduled for tomorrow night at Walsh Memorial Stadium.

Last Friday night, the Blues announced they would play the Chicago Cardinals Tuesday night, but that contest was cancelled and the Gophers booked for the later date. Apparently the failure of visiting Legionnaires to attend sporting events in large numbers this week caused the Blues to abandon their attempt to play a game .

LOUIS FI

Joe Greatest F To Show Since Fitzsimmons,

opponent. Louis began to flick his left glove in Baer's face. His purpose, of course, was to prevent Baer from setting himself for a serious blow. At the same time Joe saw so many blowholes in Baer's armor that he was tempted to punch through them immediately.

This writer was told that it was not Louis' intention to hurry the fight along. His plan was to stay away from Baer, counter-fight him for three or four rounds until Baer had thoroughly been tested, then to turn loose full power.

To ringsiders it seemed evident that Louis found Baer so surprisingly weak in real fighting knowledge that he did not wait for camp instructions, but cut loose on his own immediately.

Baer wasn't there.

Baer Helpless Before Opponent.

Few not at ringside can realize how helpless Max was before his opponent. At no time did Baer have command of the situation. He was backed around the ring in the first and second rounds.

As related, he scored a solitary damaging punch at the close of the second session. And there, believe it or not, was the beginning and end of Max Baer, the former world champion. He had no real big guns and couldn't find the range with what he had.

It is hard to dismiss a man who has been so well and favorably spoken of as Baer, with such slight appreciation. But the fact is that he could hardly fight a lick. The Negro muzzled him from start to finish.

Louis a Great Fighter.

Louis showed everything that a great fighter should have and lived up to expectations in every way. He is the first heavyweight boxer since Gene Tunney who knows what it's all about, and he is likewise the first boxer since Dempsey able to put the fear of consequences into his opponent.

At this writing we agree with Jack Blackburn that no prospect of Louis' caliber has been on the horizon since Fitzsimmons and Jeffries left us—and we may say to some extent, that takes Dempsey into account.

Dempsey never saw the day when he could box as does Joe Louis. But we are not quite prepared to say that Louis has yet seen the day when he can hit like Dempsey. That remains for the future to disclose. Certainly there is no heavyweight on the horizon now who, if properly advised, would not take it on the run and let this "high-brown" fighter have things to himself.

He is old man poison himself.

Detailed Description by Rounds.

ROUND ONE—They walked out slowly. The wild rush of thrown punches, advertised fouls included, was not in evidence at all. Louis circled and looked Max over, leading from time to time with his left hand to keep Max off balance. Also to coax a lead, if Max could be coaxed. He couldn't.

Louis then began to put on the pressure. He crowded. He used his right. Still Max could not get hooked up. Apparently Baer could not make up his mind to let go a punch. The crowd thought he was waiting to pick his spot.

As matters turned out, there was no spot for Max to pick. Louis left no openings. He was beautifully under control at all times, ready to lead with either hand or avoid Max's right.

Toward the close of the round Louis began to turn on the heat. Max took many blows to head and body. He smiled grimly and made believe that all was well. But his nose and chin began to bleed and it was difficult for him to walk to his

Baer Declares He Is Through With Fight Game

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25. — Joe Louis and Max Baer set off along different paths today, one to climb higher toward the fistic heights, the other to find rest from the glaring lights of a ring.

Louis, in his dressing room last night, after knocking out Baer, laid plans for future conquests with his fists.

Baer said he was through, that he wasn't cut out to be a fighter anyway, and that he would retire to the Western plains to raise cattle.

Although severely battered, the Californian still grinned after he had reached his dressing room, lit a cigarette and ordered a bottle of beer. His left eye was bruised, the cheekbone on the same side was puffed a little, and his right hand thumb was swollen.

"The thumb hurts some, but it didn't have anything to do with it," he said. "You know, fellows, I wasn't cut out to be a fighter. I've had my fling, and now I'm through.

"My thumb hurt before the fight. As soon as I checked in, I tried to give it the needle, but the stuff wouldn't take."

"How do you think Louis will make out against Braddock?" he was asked.

"I don't know. I wouldn't want to say. Personally, I don't think they'll ever fight."

Joe Greatest Fighter To Show Since Days of Fitzsimmons, Jeffries

opponent. Louis began to flick his left glove in Baer's face. His purpose, of course, was to prevent Baer from setting himself for a serious blow. At the same time Joe saw so many blowholes in Baer's armor that he was tempted to punch through them immediately.

This writer was told that it was not Louis' intention to hurry the fight along. His plan was to stay away from Baer, counter-fight him for three or four rounds until Baer had thoroughly been tested, then to turn loose full power.

To ringsiders it seemed evident that Louis found Baer so surprisingly weak in real fighting knowledge that he did not wait for camp instructions, but cut loose on his own immediately.

Baer wasn't there.

Baer Helpless Before Opponent.

Few not at ringside can realize how helpless Max was before his opponent. At no time did Baer have command of the situation. He was backed around the ring in the first and second rounds.

As related, he scored a solitary damaging punch at the close of the second session. And there, believe it or not, was the beginning and end of Max Baer, the former world champion. He had no real big guns and couldn't find the range with what he had.

It is hard to dismiss a man who has been so well and favorably spoken of as Baer, with such slight appreciation. But the fact is that he could hardly fight a lick. The Negro muzzled him from start to finish.

Louis a Great Fighter.

Louis showed everything that a great fighter should have and lived up to expectations in every way. He is the first heavyweight boxer since Gene Tunney who knows what it's all about, and he is likewise the first boxer since Dempsey able to put the fear of consequences into his opponent.

At this writing we agree with Jack Blackburn that no prospect of Louis' caliber has been on the horizon since Fitzsimmons and Jeffries left us—and we may say to some extent, that takes Dempsey into account.

Dempsey never saw the day when he could box as does Joe Louis. But we are not quite prepared to say that Louis has yet seen the day when he can hit like Dempsey. That remains for the future to disclose. Certainly there is no heavyweight on the horizon now who, if properly advised, would not take it on the run and let this "high-brown" fighter have things to himself.

He is old man poison himself.

Detailed Description by Rounds.

ROUND ONE—They walked out slowly. The wild rush of thrown punches, advertised fouls included, was not in evidence at all. Louis circled and looked Max over, leading from time to time with his left hand to keep Max off balance. Also to coax a lead, if Max could be coaxed. He couldn't.

Louis then began to put on the pressure. He crowded. He used his right. Still Max could not get hooked up. Apparently Baer could not make up his mind to let go a punch. The crowd thought he was waiting to pick his spot.

As matters turned out, there was no spot for Max to pick. Louis left no openings. He was beautifully under control at all times, ready to lead with either hand or avoid Max's right.

Toward the close of the round Louis began to turn on the heat. Max took many blows to head and body. He smiled grimly and made believe that all was well. But his nose and chin began to bleed and it was difficult for him to walk to his corner nonchalantly.

No Target for Baer's Punch.

ROUND TWO—Max looked much worse in this round. He just could not let go his punch. Time and again he thought the opening was there. Before he could make up his mind, the chance was gone. The good boxer had closed the opening.

In the meantime Joe was plastering Max plentifully. He stepped all around him. He backed him wherever he wanted to. He feinted Max until it made observers' necks ache trying to imitate what Max should do to get away from the punch.

Joe hit with great caution, however. He never threw himself off balance, but he shot with deadly accuracy. He had Max's mouth and nose cut and the big fellow bewildered. Just before the bell rang, however, Baer landed a right-hand punch and the crowd was ready to rise and cheer. But the gong sounded. In any case, the blow was not serious, although Louis afterwards said it had hurt him.

ROUND THREE — Pretty well softened, Max began to follow Louis around in the hope of precipitating a mix-up. He did. And with plenty of trouble for himself. Louis was always able to beat him to the punch and to throw in a couple for good measure. In fact, Max merely walked around Louis without leading. Ringsiders became restless. They wondered why Baer did not try. But Baer already had found out that there's no use shooting where there's no target. In the middle of the round, Louis began pounding Max, driving him backwards. It was evident that he had sized up Baer and found him wanting. He was pressing for a finish. Catching Max going backwards, he belted him solidly with everything he had, and it was then Max went to the floor with the dying gladiatorial gesture. After the count he was pounded to the floor again, when the bell saved him.

Finished After Third Round.

No details are needed to describe the final round, because Max was through. He was done after the third round and only continued to save his face.

Even the immortal Dempsey couldn't put any more starch into his spine. There was too much power in Louis' blows. Probably Max was glad when Referee Art Donovan decided that the count was 10 and the day was over for him, who once had been a champion.

Strange to relate, in view of all the preliminary conversation about what each fighter intended to do about fouling, there was not one illegal blow struck during the fight, that this writer observed, and there was no warning issued by the referee except on one occasion, when Baer backhanded Louis.

And, we may say, that probably the happiest man of the 84,831 present, was none other than Referee Donovan, who fully anticipated being the goat of the occasion.

Schmeling Is Harder Hitter Than Brown Bomber, Max Baer Declares After His Defeat

By W. J. McGoogan

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—It was as a bridegroom that Joe Louis entered the ring against Max Baer at Yankee Stadium as he was married to Miss Marva Trotter, Negress, of Chicago, in the apartment of a friend in Harlem at 8 o'clock last night. Julian Black, his manager, acted as groomsman and Miss Trotter's sister, Norvella, was the bridesmaid.

The service was read by Rev. W. C. Trotter, Chicago, brother of the bride.

The wedding was somewhat of a surprise because Joe had announced previously that he intended to marry as soon as possible after the fight, instead he did so before entering the ring.

The announcement was made in his dressing room after the bout, but there was no sign of a celebration there. His managers and his trainer, Jack Blackburn, merely stated that they had no immediate plans for the future, that Joe has been working very hard so he will go on his honeymoon after seeing the world series games.

Baer Was Easy to Hit.

Louis said that he thought Baer was the toughest man he had fought so far and certainly had the hardest chin but that he was the easiest to hit.

"I knew that I had him when I found him so easy to hit with my left hand. When I found that left was reaching the mark I felt I was sure to win. One blow Baer hit me hurt. That was the right hand he threw just as the bell rang ending the second round.

The young Negro was hardly perspiring as he left the ring and bore no traces of the battle, but Baer's nose was swollen where he had been cut and his left eye was partially closed.

Max took the defeat standing up. He offered no excuses and declared he would never box again except for fun. He said he would immediately retire to his ranch near San Leandro, Cal. He asserted that he has enough money on which to live.

Baer Offers No Excuses.

"This Louis is a good kid and I wish him every success and happiness," he said. "I am offering no excuses. But I do believe that Max Schmeling is a harder puncher than Louis and could give him a harder fight than I did. He doesn't box with his arms down like me and I believe he would do better."

Max was sitting in his dressing room with Izzy Kline, his trainer, and a few friends, and seemed more interested in how Buddy, his brother, was progressing against Ford Smith in his final bout than anything else.

Efficient police work kept the dressing rooms clear of curious and idle people. Nobody but those with the proper credentials were allowed near the fighters after the bout.

Strong police guards were furnished both of them going into and coming out of the ring.

While the preliminary bout between Hank Hankinson and Eddie Mader was still going on, Louis and Baer made their first appearance, coming from under the grand stand. A tremendous shout went up and the spectators turned their backs on the men in the ring for a sight of the main eventers, although it was a fairly interesting scrap in which Mader won a decision at the end of six rounds, after having been floored for an eight count.

But the only thing the huge throng was interested in was the big fight, and they had little patience with the preliminary boys. Baer and Louis seemed to hop into the ring almost simultaneously. Max in the southeast corner and Joe in the northwest (not being a sailor though, the writer is not sure of the points on the compass to which the corners pointed).

"Louis Is a Great Fighter, but I'll Stop Him."—Braddock

(Copyright, 1935.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.

"JOE LOUIS knocked out Max Baer by fighting one of the best fights I have ever seen in the ring," said Champion Jimmy Braddock.

"And I'm next—but I'm going to beat him.

"There's no doubt about it—Joe Louis is a great fighter. Maybe he's as good as any champion of the past.

"He has everything. And he proved beyond doubt that he could stand up under strong punches. He received everything Baer had to give, and it didn't make him wink. Baer didn't have a chance. Louis fought like a perfect fighting machine.

"All the same, when he meets me for the world's heavyweight championship, he's coming up against something definite. I'm going to knock him out," closed the titleholder.

Haemmerle to Meet Rath.

Al Haemmerle and Tony Rath, welterweights, were signed to complete the schedule for the five-match wrestling program to be presented Friday night at the Coliseum. The welterweights will meet in a 30-minute preliminary.

No Heavyweight in Sight to Beat Louis, Dempsey Thinks; Says He Is a Great Fighter

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Jack Dempsey, who seconded his "pal," Max Baer, thinks there is no heavyweight in sight with a chance to beat Joe Louis.

"Louis is good, there's no doubt about that," said the former world champion today. "It will take a really great fighter to beat him and there's no one around now capable of turning the trick."

Keenly disappointed by his protege's showing, Dempsey declared that "Baer is all washed up."

"I told him he ought to quit," added the old mauler. "He simply hasn't got it any more.

"I sent Baer out there to fight, not box, but he wouldn't open up, except in one or two brief spurts. Between rounds I urged him to keep slugging. He didn't do it and he couldn't even explain why he wasn't following instructions.

"At the finish he was knocked absolutely senseless. He didn't know where he was when we dragged him back to the corner."

Asked what he thought his own chances against Louis would have been, in his prime, Dempsey grinned and replied:

"Well, I'd have kept punching him, doing the best I could."

The former champion left the impression he thought he might have had quite a pleasant punching party with the Brown Bomber. His parting shot, however, was:

"I'm glad I'm in the restaurant business now."

TITLE BOUT NEXT SPRING NOW GOAL OF THE BOMBER

By Joe Louis.

(Copyright, 1935.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—For an old married man of 21, I feel pretty swell today. My only hope now is that Champion Jim Braddock will meet me next spring, but I guess it'll be Max Schmeling next.

If he's as tought as the other Max, well I might as well go punching stone walls around for sparrng partners. It felt like I was ramming a brick out of a house when I drove my right against Max Baer's chin in the fourth round last night in the Yankee Stadium to win the biggest victory of my career.

Baer was the hardest man I ever hope to hit. Give him credit, he can take it.

It wasn't my hardest fight, though. In fact, the only time I felt Baer's sock was when he hit me three times after the bell in the second round.

Baer said I couldn't fight because I was in love. Well, I was married to the sweetest girl in the world last night at 8 o'clock, then I showed Max that being in love was no draw back on my punches.

No, I didn't think anything about my wife when that gong sounded. In fact, I didn't think about her after I got in the ring. All I thought about was reaching Baer's chin.

Just as soon as I found I could jab him whenever I snaked my left jab out, then I knew I had him.

After that it was a question of jabbing him into range and driving the right to the jaw. No other fighter I ever saw would have stood up under that first right hand. But Max was right there asking for more.

When Max did go down in the third round for the first time it took three rights and two lefts before he crumpled.

Baer didn't come tearing out of his corner. That was a little disappointing, but it didn't take long to solve him. That meant I had to take the lead throughout.

Trainer Jack Blackburn and I split even as predictors. I said inside of five and he said three, but it lasted four.

When I came back to my corner after the third, Jack said to me: "Joe throw a couple left hooks to the belly and we'll go home." It didn't take long to whip a left to the body, and that was the punch which really took the toughness out of Baer.

It brought his guard down for a clean shot to his chin, and I let the right go with every ounce of reserved energy. While he was falling I clipped a glancing left hook to the jaw for good measure. I really expected him to be flatter than the canvas itself, but that guy only went to his elbows.

LOUIS TO MAKE NEXT RING APPEARANCE IN NOVEMBER

tion on the bomber's fighting services until Jan. 1, 1940.

While in Europe, this winter, Jacobs plans to close negotiations with Max Schmeling, former world heavyweight champion, for a 15-round bout in New York in June, 1936, the winner to fight James J. Braddock in September for the title.

Schmeling, who declined an offer to return to the United States this year and fight Louis, indicated in Germany he would be in a receptive mood for a better proposition for next year. The German made a fistic come-back this spring and is generally considered the next logical opponent for Louis in an outdoor spectacle, to be staged at the Yankee Stadium or the Polo Grounds.

Wants to Keep Busy.

Anxious to take his bride on a tour to see the world at large, now that he is in the "big money," Louis told Jacobs he wanted to fight as often as possible. The Negro expressed regret when the promoter advised him no match would be available for at least two months. The prospective bout with Neusel would be for 15 rounds and be held under the auspices of the (New York American) Christmas Fund. The Bronx Coliseum rivals the Garden for size, seating upwards of 20,000 for boxing.

The itinerary for a foreign trip, during which Louis will seek fights instead of exhibition engagements, has not been mapped out in detail. Jacobs, open to offers, said the route might include Havana, Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro and other Latin-American capitals, starting in December. The touring fistic party then would go to Europe for appearances in London, Paris, Madrid, Berlin, Hamburg, Rome and elsewhere, depending on the demand.

BLUES CALL OFF A GAME, THE SECOND TIME THIS WEEK

The St. Louis Blues, professional football team of the American Pro League, have called off their game with the Chicago Gophers, which had been scheduled for tomorrow night at Walsh Memorial Stadium.

Last Friday night, the Blues announced they would play the Chicago Cardinals Tuesday night, but that contest was cancelled and the Gophers booked for the later date. Apparently the failure of visiting Legionnaires to attend sporting events in large numbers this week caused the Blues to abandon their attempt to play a game.

36 MIDGET AUTO RACERS TO SEEK HONORS IN MEET

Thirty-six of the country's leading midget auto drivers, including eight St. Louisans, will begin a two-day series of speed contests over the Arena's tenth-of-a-mile indoor track, for the National Midget Championship and a slice of the $2500 prize money, tonight. Opening events on the program get under way at 7:30 o'clock.

Tonight the drivers will engage in an opening series of time trials, to be followed by elimination races at sprint distances, a long race for the half of the field which fails to place in the money and the climax of the night's card, the 50-lap championship race for the 20 outstanding cars that last through the trial events.

Champions of every sort are listed among the entries. Gil Guthrie, now regarded as king of the midget drivers because of his victory in the 100-mile outdoor race at Detroit; Tony Willman, indoor champion of the Midwest circuit last year; Marshall Lewis of St. Louis, Mound City indoor champion and one of the most proficient drivers of the Arena course; Lou Schneider, 1931 Indianapolis Speedway and National Racing champion; Ronney Householder of Los Angeles, attempting a comeback to regain his former title of champion of the midget drivers; and Jimmy Snyder, ace of the Midwest's outdoor pilots last summer, head the field.

Wagner Leads Jockeys.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Joe Wagner, ace apprentice rider with Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable, bids fair to top the nation's jockeys for the year. The freckle-faced lad from Lexington, busier than usual because of the suspension of Silvio Coucci, the stable's first string jockey, has booted home 161 winners. Wayne Wright of Rexburg, Idaho, is his closest rival with 156.

SOFT COAL STRIKE CONFEREES STILL IN WAGE DEADLOCK

Negotiating Committee Meets Again After Report of "No Progress" by U. M. W. of A. Leader.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Soft coal miners and operators remained deadlocked in their wage negotiations today as the United Mine Workers of America continued a strike which began Monday morning. The negotiating committee met for another session at 9:30 a. m.

"No progress" was the report of Van A. Bitner, Southern West Virginia district president of the mine union, as he left the conference room last night.

A difference of only 1½ cents on tonnage rates paid to the miners who dig and load coal was all that separated the workers and producers from an agreement to replace the old wage contract which originally expired last April 1. Since that time it has been extended five times.

"They've got our last word, an increase of 9 cents on tonnage rates," he said. "They can take it or leave it."

The operators, it was understood, offered to increase the tonnage rate 7½ cents over the present pay. Some of them indicated they were ready to stick to this stand indefinitely.

Reports from the coal fields yesterday said there was scattered picketing of mines, but no disorder. Pickets, it was said, began patrolling a group of wagon pits in Southwestern Pennsylvania, while in Kentucky union officers were called into court to answer an action brought by one coal company to prevent picketing.

In Washington, Lewis told reporters that none of the mines which closed Monday had reopened yesterday. The only mines working, he said, were in Illinois and Eastern Kentucky. The Progressive Mine Workers of America, a rival of the United Mine Workers, has contracts with some producers in Illinois, while in Eastern Kentucky some mines are operated by non-union workers.

THREE MEN GET PRISON TERMS FOR PASSING BOGUS MONEY

Two Given 8 Years After Jury Convicts Them in U. S. District Court; 3 Years for Another.

Thomas Simkoff and Arthur Spero, both of New York, were each sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary and fined $200 by Federal Judge Moore today. They were convicted of possessing and passing counterfeit money by a jury Saturday.

William Layton of New York, who had pleaded guilty to the same charge and had been a witness for the Federal Government in the trial of Simkoff and Spero, was sentenced to three years and fined $100 today.

The fourth man indicted on the charge, Samuel Berman, also of New York, was convicted by a jury last year and is now serving a six-year sentence in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan. Indictment of the men followed their arrest here last fall on charges of passing counterfeit $100 bills at hotels, restaurants and cafes during the 1934 World Series.

SAYS TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM IS NEAR FEDERAL OWNERSHIP

Head of Carriers' Association Makes Report at Convention in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Thomas B. Huff of Sioux City, Ia., president of the Transportation Association of America, said in a report submitted to the convention of members today that the nation's transportation systems were "dangerously near Government ownership."

"This will mean that we will pass over to our political form of Government the direct control of 37 per cent of the nation's buying power," he said.

"With such a weapon," he said, "this nation will gravitate into state of outright Socialism before agriculture and business can be mobilized to prevent it.

"The Government ownership issue is here "because of public indifference and because of the financial position of the majority of all agencies in each field of transport."

"We must recognize the inevitable trend of events in the transportation field. We must likewise either eliminate all subsidy or treat each agency on a comparable basis," he said.

REWARD FOR BOND FINDER

He Will Begin Work in Brokerage Office Monday.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25. — Young Albert Correri, who picked from the gutter a packet of bonds valued at $150,000 and returned them to the owners, has been rewarded by C. F. Childs & Co., brokers of 1 Wall Street, owners of the bonds. C. F. Grunwald, vice-president announced Correri would start Monday in the cashier's department of the brokerage firm.

Correri, who is 22 years old, may also get a reward from the insurance company when routine investigation of the bond loss is completed. Correri has two immediate ideas. One is to get a new dress for his mother. The other is to become a newspaper reporter.

The Correri family is on relief, seven of them, including two young brothers and a sister, dependent on what Albert made as delivery boy and the $60.50 monthly WPA wage of Albert's older brother, Nicholas.

$150,000,000 WORTH OF GOLD ENGAGED FOR SHIPMENT TO U.S.

Will Be Added to $9,246,000,000 Stock in Treasury; Is 45 Pct. of Visible Monetary Supply.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—More than $150,000,000 worth of gold has been engaged for shipment to America within the last fortnight. Dispatches today reported $16,830,000 of the metal was put on two ships sailing from Cherbourg for New York.

All of it, as quickly as received, will be added to the Treasury's stock of $9,246,000,000—an amount which constitutes 45 per cent of the world's visible monetary supply as calculated by the Federal Reserve Board from the published holdings of central banks and governments. Second on that list is France with $4,756,000,000. Great Britain is third with $1,593,000,000; while Russia, due to intensive mine production, has climbed to fourth position with $748,000,000. After Spain and Belgium, Italy, center of the present European uncertainty, is seventh with $423,000,000.

Not included in these figures, however, is the big stock of privately hoarded gold, estimated at $1,500,000,000 to $2,000,000,000 or more. It is scattered about European financial centers, but by far the bulk of it is believed to be in England, attracted there by the traditional free market for the metal.

Since the Treasury issued a standing offer to buy and sell gold in the world market at a fixed price of $25 an ounce early in 1934 imports have totaled $2,400,000,000 while gold movements from the United States have aggregated only $37,600,000.

TWO VIOLATORS OF NARCOTIC ACT GET FOUR MONTHS IN JAIL

Both Plead Guilty; Serving of Sentence Delayed Pending Parole Office Inquiry.

William J. Weaver, 62 years old, 5312 St. Louis avenue, and Jung Fook, a Chinese, proprietor of a laundry at 3219 Olive street, pleaded guilty of violation of the Harrison Anti-narcotic Act before Federal Judge Moore today and each was sentenced to four months in the St. Charles County Jail. Execution of the sentence will be delayed until the Federal Parole Office investigates their case.

According to an Assistant United States Attorney, Weaver was smoking opium in Fook's laundry when the two were arrested there June 3. Weaver's attorney said his client held a responsible position with the Electrical Workers' Union and had never been in trouble.

Weaver pleaded guilty of possession of smoking opium and conspiracy to violate the narcotic act. Fook was charged in one indictment with conspiracy to violate the act.

By the Associated Press.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 25.—Coal strike sympathizers overturned a dozen loaded mine cars at nearby Walsall today, and Sheriff's officers were called. About 100 pickets took part in the demonstration at the William J. Eshonek house coal property, the output of which is delivered from the tipple direct to the consumer. A road was partly blocked by the dumped coal.

Nearly all mining operations in the Johnstown field were brought to a standstill after the demonstrations.

UNIONS' STRIKE OVER WPA WAGES IN NEW YORK ENDS

Settlement Reached After Gen. Johnson Promises to Announce a New Plan.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The two-months-old strike of union labor against Works Progress Administration employment was over today with union officers announcing they were depending on Gen. Hugh S. Johnson to see that workers received "a fair deal." The strike was called after the unions demanded that prevailing wages be paid on WPA projects.

George Meany, president of the State Federation of Labor, announced settlement of the strike after a meeting last night of the WPA Executive Committee of the Central Trades and Labor Council.

"Our committee decided that under the terms of the Federal administration order placing the question at issue entirely in the hands of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, we are fully confident that our workmen will be fairly dealt with," Meany stated.

Gen. Johnson, who is WPA administrator for New York City, had proposed a compromise which would reduce the hours of work and make the hourly wage on WPA projects $1.17 against the prevailing union rate of $1.50. Yesterday the administrator said he would announce a new plan.

TEAM PULLING 3900-POUND LOAD BREAKS WORLD RECORD

Belgian Draft Horses of Ohio Draw Weight 27.5 Feet in Michigan Contest.

By the Associated Press.

HILLSDALE, Mich., Sept 24.—A team of Belgian draft horses owned by the Statler Farm of Piqua, O., set a new world record here Tuesday by pulling a load of 3900 pounds 27½ feet.

The previous record, 3875 pounds pulled over the same distance, was set earlier this year, by a team owned by the John Adrian Farm of Williamsville, N. Y. The same team competed here, but could place no better than third, pulling 3900 pounds for 14 feet 8 inches. Second place went to the team owned by George Manley of Shreve, O., which drew the 3900 pound load for 26 feet 2 inches.

Statisticians figured that the feat of the Statler Farm team was the equivalent of drawing a rolling load of 130 tons. The team was driven by Russel Sandow. At the conclusion of the contest, which featured the opening day of the Hillsdale County Fair, an elephant pulled a load of 3935 pounds 27½ feet.

OPEN INQUEST VERDICT IN DEATH OF MISS HOEY

As Result, Attorneys Suggest Grand Jury Investigation of Inquiry.

By the Associated Press.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 25.—An open verdict was returned by a Coroner's jury which investigated the death of Evelyn Hoey, blues singer, at the farm home of Henry H. Rogers Jr. A double grand jury investigation may result.

The verdict paved the way for a grand jury investigation of the death. Attorneys for Rogers and his cameraman friend, William J. Kelley, said they would "heartily co-operate" in any similar investigation of the conduct of the Coroner's jurors.

The verdict, returned by six jurors last night after nearly five hours of deliberation, said Miss Hoey came to her death in Rogers' country home two weeks ago at the hands of "a person or persons unknown."

Rogers and Kelley were released from their appearance bond. District Attorney William E. Parke said all the evidence he knows has been presented, "and that does not justify a warrant of arrest."

Lawyers Not Surprised.

Parke said he was "seriously considering" asking the Chester County Court for a grand jury inquiry, but had not decided on definite steps.

A statement signed by five lawyers representing Rogers and Kelley said they "are not surprised at the failure of the Coroner's jury to find a verdict of death by suicide.

"We say this because of reliable information brought to us that some of the members of the Coroner's jury have been privately consorting with representatives of certain newspapers whose sole purpose seems to be to prolong this investigation, and because of declarations by certain jurors of their pre-conceived intention to render a so-called open verdict.

"The verdict fails to surprise us for another reason. At the hearing we offered to present to the jury the testimony of a thoroughly reliable witness that on June 29, 1935, Miss Hoey talked to him of suicide, but the jury refused to hear the witness.

"And when we suggested to the jury that it hear the testimony of Dr. Williams Wadsworth, the eminent authority on gun shot wounds, who made an examination of the body of the deceased in the presence of the Coroner's physician, the jury refused to hear him.

"Embarrassing to Prosecutor."

"The verdict not only does a great injustice to Mr. Rogers and Mr. Kelley, but must be embarrassing to the District Attorney. For neither he nor any official of the county connected with the case has expressed any view of it other than it was one of suicide.

"We shall heartily co-operate with the District Attorney if he undertakes to have a grand jury investigate the circumstances involving the conduct of the Coroner's jury and certain representatives of the press."

The statement was signed by John J. Halpin of New York, Robert S. Gawthrop, former Judge of the Pennsylvania Superior Court, and his son, Thomas C. Gawthrop; J. Paul Macelree of West Chester, and Joseph S. Clark Jr. of Philadelphia.

Rogers joined the demand for an investigation today with a statement, issued in Philadelphia through Clark, in which he criticised the Coroner's jury for its "unfair verdict," and declared "there never was a single bit of evidence in the hands of Chester County officials which pointed to any other conclusion but suicide."

Mrs. Henry Hoey of St. Louis, mother of the dead singer, and Earle Hoey, the girl's brother, waited in West Chester in seclusion for the verdict, an attorney representing them said. A. M. Cary, Minneapolis lawyer, who said Mrs. Hoey would not believe her daughter killed herself.

PRACTICE AIR RAID ON MALTA

All Lights Out, Including Those on Ships in British Harbor.

VALETTA, Malta, Sept. 25.—A fleet of giant bombers and other "enemy" aircraft droned over Malta in a sham air raid last night, with this tiny British island outpost plunged in darkness and silence.

Promptly at 9:30 p. m. every house, street and traffic light blinked out. Simultaneously the twinkling lights of British battleships riding at anchor in the harbor went off. A few minutes later came the hum of planes. Thousands of citizens thronged the historic bastions of Valetta and the seafront. All traffic was held up between 9:30 and 10 o'clock. Bars and cafes were emptied.

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Nathan Borin, head of an arts product firm, announced yesterday that an out-of-court settlement had been reached with E. M. Asher, Hollywood movie producer, whom Borin sued recently for $500,000, charging alienation of the affections of his wife, Claire Burman Borin, a beauty contest winner.

The suit will not be dismissed, Borin said, until a transfer of securities and cash has been effected. Mrs. Borin's suit for separate maintenance against her husband and his cross bill for divorce, are awaiting hearing in Superior Court here. They were married Nov. 11, 1933, and separated last November.

GENERAL MOTORS
announces
FOUR OUTSTANDING CARS
by Buick for 1936

Twenty-seven years ago this September, General Motors Corporation was formed.

The foundation of our organization, the firm base upon which General Motors has grown to be the largest producer of motor cars in the world, was Buick Motor Company.

Down through the crowded years since, no other automobile anywhere has more solidly or deservedly held the allegiance of its substantial public than Buick.

The very name has become symbol of a soundness and integrity of character that neither time nor circumstance has been allowed to impair.

Buick now brings to an expectant market, for 1936, four notable series of new and remarkable cars.

In developing these advanced automobiles, Buick has relied as always upon the mature competence and experienced progressiveness of its own engineering staff.

But in addition it has been advantaged by full and free access to the incomparable engineering, scientific and technical resources of General Motors.

The resulting automobiles are thrillingly new and are unmistakably outstanding, advanced in ability as they are exciting to the eye.

We are proud to share sponsorship with Buick of what we know to be a satisfying expression of modern motor car utility and beauty.

We bespeak your examination of these cars, at any Buick showroom, as being representative of American enterprise in a measure calculated to lead the world.

G. O. P. LEADERS MEET TO PREPARE FOR 1936 RACE

Executive Committee to Discuss Finances and Strategy for Campaign Against Roosevelt.

FACTIONAL FIGHT MAY BE CONSIDERED

Possibility Attempts Will Be Made to Bring Liberal and Conservative Elements Closer.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Members of the Republican National Executive Committee met today to prepare for the 1936 presidential campaign. The meeting actually marked the beginning of the Republican campaign to defeat President Roosevelt. It was the first session the committee has held since before the 1934 off-year elections.

One spokesman for the Republicans said the committee call evidenced the revival of Republican hopes for next year's election.

Without power to discuss candidacies or policies, the committee was called to talk finances and campaign strategy. The committee's last report showed $40,000 in the treasury, hardly more than necessary to carry on normal activities. George F. Getz of Illinois, national treasurer, was expected to discuss plans for augmenting this fund.

Proposal of Iowa Leader.

It would be necessary, if the plan to be advanced by Harrison E. Spangler of Iowa, one of the leaders of the "grass roots" conference, should be adopted. Spangler wants to open up a party office in Chicago and begin the campaign in the West immediately.

Political observers wondered whether the meeting would be marked by attempts to bring the liberal and conservative elements of the party closer together. Though such activity would not be within the committee's jurisdiction, onlookers figured the meeting of members representing various factions of the party might provide the opportunity for informal negotiations.

Two executive sessions were to be held by the committee today at the Mayflower Hotel. Three members, including Mark L. Requa, former President Hoover's close friend, had reported that they could not attend. Those expected included:

Telegram From Frank Gannett.

The committeemen were urged in a telegram from Frank E. Gannett, Rochester (N. Y.) publisher, to base their campaign on "principles, not men." Gannett declared the Republican party must answer two questions in its 1936 campaign program. One was "How can the American economic system be made to function, within the Constitution, so private business can put 10,000,000 idle back to work." The second he submitted, was how the income of agriculture can be increased "by constitutional means" to more than the $1.37 a day he said 10,000,000 farmers received in 1934, "including AAA benefits."

NEW SPANISH CABINET FORMED

Represents Compromise Including "Political Truce" Coalition.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Sept. 25.—Joaquin Chapaprieta, former Minister of Finance, announced today the formation of a new Spanish Cabinet with himself as Premier and retaining the finance portfolio.

The other new Cabinet officers, as approved by President Alcala Zamora, includes: Foreign Affairs, the retiring Premier, Alejandro Lerroux; War, Jose Maria Gil Robles. The new ministry contains three radicals, three cedists, two independents, one member of the Catalan League, and one agrarian. It represents a compromise between the wide coalition "political truce" Cabinet demanded by the President and the desire of Center and Right parties for a government based entirely on the Lerroux ministry, which resigned last week.

Communist Army in Full Flight Westward Out of China Proper

By the Associated Press.

LANCHOW, Kansu Province, China, Sept. 25.—Fierce Mohammedan tribesmen are inflicting severe losses on the remnants of the Chinese Red Army, according to military advices reaching Lanchow.

After a 1500-mile march across China, the red soldiers are pushing westward into the mountain wilderness toward Chinese Turkestan and Russia. Two of their three columns are constantly harassed by Chinese Moslem warriors, military reports said. The other group, seeking a route through the Tibetan borderland, is confronted with the problem of crossing a vast quagmire. Their advance is complicated also by guerilla attack from the fanatically religious Tibetans who have no sympathy with Communistic aims.

The Reds' final march began from Szechwan (bordering on Tibet), to which Western Chinese province they were driven by Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese war lord.

By the Associated Press.

NANKING, China, Sept. 25.—The United States Embassy was informed today that Communists were retreating from Northern Szechwan Province into Kansu Province, causing missionaries to flee north toward Lanchow.

Two Americans declined to evacuate the district, however. They are James Vigna of the Assemblies of God mission, with headquarters at Springfield, Mo., stationed at Siho, Southeast Kansu, and Miss Bertha Robertson, of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, with headquarters at New York, stationed at Taochow, Southern Kansu.

101 HOUSES NEARLY FINISHED IN MATANUSKA COLONY

Carpenters Trying to Complete 71 Others Before Winter Arrives.

By the Associated Press.

PALMER, Alaska, Sept. 25.—One hundred and one houses have been roofed and enclosed in the Matanuska Colony. Workmen are trying to finish 71 others before winter. A construction report showed 14 barns finished, 65 wells dug and six being sunk.

House warming parties are a popular diversion among the colonists. A family moving into a new house becomes host to as many neighbors as can crowd in and the evening is spent in songs, games, dancing and visiting.

About 50 transient laborers probably will remain here for the winter, but most of them will return to the States next month. The weather has become much colder lately and the colonists still in tents have found it uncomfortable. The ground has frozen every night. So far the snowfall has been confined to the mountains.

OKLAHOMA DENIES MAJOR STATE OFFICES TO WOMAN

Turns Down Constitutional Amendment; Strong Majorities to Provide Pensions.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Sept. 25. —Incomplete returns from yesterday's special election indicated Oklahoma will retain its position as the only State where no woman can be Governor or occupy any of the seven next important elective offices in the State House.

Returns from 1941 out of 3375 precincts showed 70,744 for, and 89,117 against the constitutional amendment providing that women may hold major State offices.

The returns showed strong majorities for constitutional amendments to provide pensions for the aged and to clear the way for legislation to exempt homesteads from ad valorem taxation.

MISSION SISTERS ARRAIGNED

Charged With Illicit Transfer of $84,800 From Germany.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 25.—General Procuratrix Therese Dreier and Prioress Elizabeth Schulte, mission sisters of the Most Holy Heart of Jesus at Hiltrup, Westphalia, were arraigned today on charges of illicitly transferring 212,000 marks (about $84,800) to Holland between 1932 to 1934.

Prioress Schulte, upon examination, said she had been attached to the Reading (Pa.) branch from 1908 to 1920, when she was appointed prioress at Hiltrup. The transactions, it was said, included a transfer of 25,000 Netherlands florins sent by the mission's branch at Reading to a Dutch banker, acting in behalf of the Hiltrup mother house, to purchase bonds.

ITALY BUYING IN SWEDEN

Factories Working Night and Day on Materials.

By the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 25. —Swedish factories are working night and day to fill Italian orders for materials.

Already the export to Italy of bleached sulfite cellulose for artificial silk has increased this year above the figure for the whole of 1934. Italy also has ordered diamond drills and has made inquiries with regard to their delivery time, giving rise to the belief they are intended for an Ethiopian campaign.

JAPANESE IN CHINA SAYS CHIANG MUST GO

General Demands New Northern Government Separate From Nanking.

By the Associated Press.

TIENTSIN, China, Sept. 25. — Major-General Hayao Tada, commander of the Japanese army in North China, today criticised the Chinese political and economic structures as administered under the authority of the Chinese Central Government at Nanking. His attack also included the Chinese policy toward Japan.

In a seven-chapter booklet of several thousand words, Tada urged the establishment of a new government in North China, politically and economically independent of Nanking, "As the only salvation of North China's masses who have been impoverished under Nanking."

Tada, who only recently arrived in China to take over his present command, besides urging the separation of North China from Nanking, insisted that the troubled Chinese-Japanese relations were impossible of settlement unless Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Nanking government, were overthrown and the Kuomintang party suppressed.

"These are but one manifestation of the atttiude toward Japan of Gen. Chiang and his faction," said Tada. "Such acts will continue unless Chiang and his Koumintang are overthrown."

Tada also criticised the Western nations and their policies toward China, which he said aimed either at its dismemberment or international control. Neither of these, he asserted, will Japan permit. Japan, he added, must "restore the traditional policy, correcting Western materialism with oriental spiritual civilization."

LITHUANIA DENIES DISFRANCHISING 11,000 IN MEMEL

Semi-Official Reply Made to German Charges of Unfairness in Approaching Election.

By the Associated Press.

KAUNAS, Lithuania, Sept. 25.—Lithuania, in a semi-official reply to recent German charges of unfairness in connection with the Memel election to be held next Sunday, denied yesterday that 11,000 electors had been deprived of the right to vote.

Only 69 persons lost Lithuanian nationality and consequently their right to vote, it was asserted.

Reports that 10,000 Lithuanians were transported to Memel territory from other parts of the country to vote were also denied.

It was asserted that at the time of the constitution commission Germans were asked to participate, but all refused except a Socialist leader, who later handed in his resignation for no disclosed reason. After the candidates had been named, the so-called Einheitsliste (Union List) party demanded and got representation in the place vacated by the Socialist.

The statement said no members of the army would be allowed to vote except certain officers who have qualified as citizens.

A spokesman of the German Foreign Office charged on Saturday that thousands of German sympathizers had been disqualified, while Lithuanians were enfranchised in the approaching election. Germany lost the Memel territory after the World War. It is under Lithuanian sovereignty, although having autonomous privileges.

Employes of Mint Say Money Will Be Spent by Military and Civil Governors.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 25.—Italy is already coining thalers, the coin to which Ethiopians are accustomed, for use following the incursion of Italian forces into Ethiopia.

The national mint here, it was learned today, has been manufacturing thalers, worth about 21 cents, for some time. Employes of the mint said the coins are to be used by the military and civil governors which Italy plans to install in Ethiopia. The money is to be used to pay off tribesmen who seek work under Italian domination.

They said the Pope, who is in his summer residence, will in all likelihood carry a step further his speech delivered to ex-service men two weeks ago. On that occasion he pleaded for "peace with justice." He is writing his speech in Latin.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25. — The army's first flyer—Major-General Benjamin D. Foulois — retired from active service today, after having flown everything from the Wright Brothers' new-fangled invention to the latest, swiftest plane.

Foulois started a three months' leave which will expire with his retirement from the army on Christmas, and will complete his four-year term as chief of the Army Air Corps. By his act he ends the bitter fight by the House Subcommittee on Military Affairs to have him ousted as chief of Air Corps because planes were purchased by negotiated contracts instead of by competitive bidding. Brigadier-General Oscar Westover, now assistant chief, will be acting chief pending appointment of Foulois' successor by President Roosevelt in December.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Preparing for Peace.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

FOR years the world has refused, unwittingly or otherwise, to pay the cost of peace. A continuance of this policy means the forfeiture of everything worth-while, perhaps even civilization itself. Even now Mars, a relentless Pied Piper, is on his way to exact payment in the flesh of the young and guiltless. Already the fife and drum can be heard luring the guileless to their doom, while we, the guilty, stupidly look on. What a travesty on justice that the sons should pay with their lives for the sins of their fathers!

We have a little time left in which to make amends, but time is short and fleeting. The neutrality resolution recently passed is a step in the right direction, but only a step. We must individually and collectively resolve to support our Congressmen in their gallant fight to save this country. We should be willing and glad to sacrifice any temporary but dangerous gains that accrue from foreign wars. We should want no blood money.

A few years ago, I heard a supposedly intelligent person say, "I wish there'd be war in China—it would raise the price of wheat." Surely we're not that mercenary, or are we? Even if we are, we've had ample opportunity to learn that war anywhere will not pay anyone in the long run. We can profit by the costly mistakes of the past, if we will.

That Sub-Mississippi Tunnel.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I WAS thrilled last August in motoring from downtown New York to Princeton, N. J., in less than two hours, via the Holland Tunnel and its connecting antithesis, the Pulaski Skyway.

I have read with interest your article about the projected sub-Mississippi vehicular tunnel. More power to its sponsors.

But, as a somewhat rapid automobile driver, I see three problems that might well be faced, before the city erects another white elephant:

1. Curves retard the very traffic sought to be speeded up by such a project. Why a circular ramp? Cannot new Market street east of Fourth be used for a straight ramp? Such a ramp would be faster, safer, better.

2. Is there an eastern outlet? East St. Louis streets are notoriously narrow. A tunnel running into a bottle neck at the foot of the Municipal Bridge will speed nothing up.

3. Is there any assurance of co-operation here? Will the Market street, Forest Park, Clayton road super-highway be free from stop-lights, stop-signs, dangerous circles and other hazards?

Fair Wages, Prices, Profits.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THERE is something to be said in favor of that new housing industry which promises to build a modern home at a moderate price in three days' time.

A home constitutes real wealth; it is a blessing. The new industry, however, must stand with other industries, in that the success of industry as a whole must hinge on the honest observance of the rights of the three groups concerned; namely, workers, consumers and employers.

Full employment at fair wages is the workers' share; full production at fair prices is the consumers' share, and a fair profit is the employers' share. This is the simple but immutable policy of smaller margins of profit and greater volume of business. When one or two of the above groups is robbed of its just share, you have not a sound economic system, but a culpably stupid blunder.

If big business leaders have not learned this simple lesson, their rejoicing over the coming of the housing industry may be likened to that of the gourmand when he learns that his doctor has a new remedy that will enable him to continue to overeat and get away with it. Thus the glutton uses the blessing of science to extend rather than to end his ruinous habit.

DEMOCRACY.

Under the Harvest Moon.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHAT do either you or Ray Lunar know about the harvest moon, living in a great city as you do? The harvest moon falls in the season when those of us out here in the country count our blessings.

The corn is heavy and hard and there are yellow pumpkins between the rows. Persimmons burst with sweetness. Wild grapes send out their wine-like aroma. Plums are ready for preserving. Pawpaws are a delicate creamy custard. Red haws are just right for honey for flapjacks. Bee honey awaits someone to take it from the hive. Cider apples are going through the press. In the garden are lots of late potatoes, turnips, cabbage, onions, reddening peppers and curling beans.

The person has missed a lot who has never lived in the country and had the harvest moon step through the window, trail silver silken garments across the floor and then hurry on to other homes which have waited a full year for its coming.

ENDING FEDERAL RELIEF.

Shall the Federal Government continue its role as major dispenser of relief?

President Roosevelt is emphatically opposed. "The Federal Government must and shall quit this business of relief," he said in his message to Congress last January.

Addressing the third annual Mobilization for Human Needs at Washington this week, he reiterated his policy, and reported progress in carrying it out. "In pursuance of the announced policy of the legislative and administrative branches of the Federal Government," he said, "the Government is withdrawing as rapidly as possible from the field of emergency home relief. We are moving successfully toward the substitution of work for direct relief."

The President's course will be approved by a vast majority of citizens. It may be distasteful to politicians and office-holders in the states to have the "easy money" from Washington cut off, but such a view is short-sighted. The states are faced with the task of maintaining their sovereignty before the growing trend toward centralization. They must begin to walk alone again as soon as the emergency lifts sufficiently to make it possible for them to conduct their own relief activities.

As Walter Lippmann said in the address reprinted in part on this page today, Federal relief "is in its very nature demoralizing, wasteful and repugnant to the sentiments of this country." The emergency, of course, justified it. Because depression-ridden states were unable temporarily to care for their own, the victims of the crisis could not be left to starve. The Government properly stepped in.

The original grants were on a basis of $1 of Federal money to $3 of state funds. This plan in time broke down, and agreements were sought with the states on the basis of their ability to pay. Soon, however, the Government found itself paying the lion's share of relief costs in various states, in some instances an overwhelming proportion. Some slackerism developed, and numerous states proved lax in carrying out their bargains.

Private relief agencies as well have felt the demoralization attendant upon large-scale Federal relief. The idea gained ground among givers to community chests that the Government's assumption of the burden made their own contributions unnecessary. Contributions over the country fell from $100,000,000 in 1932, before Federal relief was set up, to $80,000,000 in 1933 and $70,000,000 in 1934 and 1935, a figure below the pre-depression totals. The inroads of depression upon givers were partly responsible, of course, but the effect of huge Federal appropriations was a factor undeniably to be reckoned with.

The task of returning relief responsibilities to the states, cities and local organizations will be a terrific one. It will depend largely upon the return of normal conditions to the revenue agencies and the incomes of private givers. Possibly there will be a long transition period in which Federal relief is gradually diminished while non-Federal agencies gird themselves to resume the burden. There may be special work-creating fields, such as a permanent public works program, in which Federal agencies will play a continuing part. But for anything even remotely resembling direct relief, it should be the objective to remove such functions permanently from Washington at an early date.

In both the interests of a balanced national budget and a restored national morale, the Federal Government must indeed "quit this business of relief."

SCHEMERS OF DISASTER.

As Robert Lansing's memoirs show, he was one of the most ardent promoters of America's entrance into the World War on the side of the Allies. The administration, in which he held the high post of Secretary of State, was officially committed to neutrality and Mr. Wilson had been returned to office on the campaign slogan, "He Kept Us Out of War." But behind the scenes, Lansing was busy setting the stage for conflict. "War cannot come too soon to suit me," he wrote Mr. Wilson months before we entered.

Mr. Lansing, however, did not play a unique role. Other men in high place feverishly bestirred themselves on behalf of war. Conspicuous among them was none other than the United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, Walter Hines Page. Page, as the records show, spent every waking hour in devising schemes to bring the United States in on the side of the Allies. So persistent did he become in his notes to Mr. Wilson that the latter was forced to rebuke him.

As the Philadelphia Record points out, "What we need is preparedness against such as Mr. Secretary Lansing." It seems incredible, from the perspective of 1935, that a Secretary of State and an Ambassador to London seemed more interested in protecting the interest of the Allies than in saving the lives of Americans. But let another crisis come and others like Robert Lansing and Walter Hines Page will appear to counsel slaughter.

A WHALE SPOUTS.

That was a gorgeous talk Hamilton Fish made on his arrival in St. Louis to attend the Legion banquet. He is persuaded the Republicans can win next year. It all depends on the candidate. If they can put their hands on a man "who can solidify the party," it will be a breeze.

Is such a leader available? Friends of Mr. Fish are telling him that he is the man. There is no one else, they say. They have not yet convinced him. Not that he has rejected the complimentary overtures. He has the matter under advisement. If, after due deliberation, he is persuaded he is the standard bearer to show the way to victory, he will yield to their wishes.

But he protests that personal ambition does not enter into the reckoning. He has flung it aside. The presidency is, of course, a shining goal. Many have looked upon it with straining eyes. Not Mr. Hamilton Fish. It doesn't dazzle him at all. Should someone appear more equipped than he for the high command—a warrior, say, "of the stature or caliber of the late Theodore Roosevelt, I would be glad to take off my hat to him and get behind." Vain hope. It cannot be. And so, if destiny buttonholes Mr. Fish, Mr. Fish will say okay.

Spurning selfish consideration, he is prepared to sacrifice himself on the altar of the public weal. Nobler sentiment was never uttered. It is magnificent. It's swell.

One more word. Some of the party counsellors have been gazing toward the West. An absurd notion, says Mr. Fish. Sectionalism is out. We must take our man where we find him. Still, if territorial considerations cannot be waived, Mr. Fish asks a question. "Do you know," he inquires, "that outside of the solid South, the hardest State (for the Republicans) to carry is New York?" And as fate would have it, Mr. Fish is a New Yorker.

So there. Events have written the imperative of '36: "For God, for country and for Fish."

THE CITY PLAN COMMISSION.

Is Mayor Dickmann determined to reduce the City Plan Commission to a Dickmann commission? His action in dropping three veteran members of the commission raises the question.

It has been disturbingly apparent that Dickmann's administration was ignoring the Plan Commission. Public improvements have been undertaken without consulting, or contrary to the recommendations of, the commission which was established 20 years ago to guide the municipality's development on sound, logical lines.

One of the commissioners who failed of reappointment by the administration last week was Dean Alexander S. Langsdorf of Washington University, vice-chairman and a member since the start. Last January, Dr. Langsdorf wrote a public letter, relating that the commission was not functioning with its former vigor and insisting that adequate support and co-operation from the city government were needed. He explained that he wrote the letter because of a reported City Hall plan to "scrap" the commission. It is hard for citizens not to believe that he was removed from the board because of his temerity in criticising the powers that be. The other commissioners not reappointed, Charles E. Golterman and Charles M. Talbert, likewise served for years. All three have been active in the work.

Does the Mayor imagine he is gulling the public? If so, he is mistaken. He is flouting public opinion. He is turning his back on the promises he made when he went into office and the high intentions embodied in many of his original appointments. Walt Whitman's lament, which we have quoted before, is again in point: "The never-ending audacity of elected persons." Yet contempt of public opinion, carried far enough, evokes public repudiation. If it is the Mayor's purpose to emasculate the City Plan Commission, his advisers should urge him to stop, look and listen.

SOCIALISTS AND SOCIALISTS.

The run of Socialists in Spain must be infinitely better off in the goods of this world than their brethren in discontent on this side of the water. This deduction we base on the size of the fine which a court marshal at Oviedo has fixed against Javier Bueno, Socialist agitator, for his part in the revolt of last October. Under the order of the court, the convicted man is to pay 70,000,000 pesetas—or $8,620,000. Imagine Norman Thomas being fined $8,620,000! Well, we can't either. If Comrade Bueno digs down in the mattress for enough to bail himself out, it will be high time for the sons of Eugene V. Debs in this country to do some resolving.

A VICTORY FOR CONSERVATION.

An agreement has been reached between the Interior and Agriculture departments by which regulation of grazing areas on 22 wild-life refuges on Federal reclamation projections is to be transferred from the Bureau of Reclamation to the Bureau of Biological Survey. Jay N. Darling, chief of the latter, says it "is the greatest single contribution to migratory waterfowl propagation since I took over here."

Mr. Darling has been shouting loudly and lustily for a common-sense treatment of the conservation problem. He has pointed out in magazine articles and elsewhere that, while his bureau is doing its utmost to conserve game and restore nesting places to wildfowl, other governmental departments are nullifying his efforts. His particular bete noire is the Bureau of Reclamation, whose function, one should think, in view of the surplus of agricultural land, is just about ended.

At any rate, Mr. Darling has discovered that sounding off has its value.

RAT-CATCHING VS. GRADE CROSSINGS.

To get more money for lighting polo fields, counting taxicab stands, making candle-wick bedspreads, giving music lessons to children of relief families, killing rats, etc., the Government will take funds from the budgets set aside for grade-crossing elimination, highway construction, rural rehabilitation and rural electrification.

This is the meaning of the announcement from Washington that President Roosevelt has added $800,000,000 to the $900,000,000 previously set aside for WPA projects, and that cuts in funds previously earmarked will be necessary to provide that sum.

It is well-nigh inconceivable that grade-crossing work, with its life-saving and work-creating potentialities, should be restricted to favor some of the dubious WPA projects, but so the announcement reads. Some of the WPA projects are meritorious, of course, but on the whole they offer no such prospects of long-range usefulness as the items that will suffer for their support.

So boon-doggling expands its triumph over useful public works.

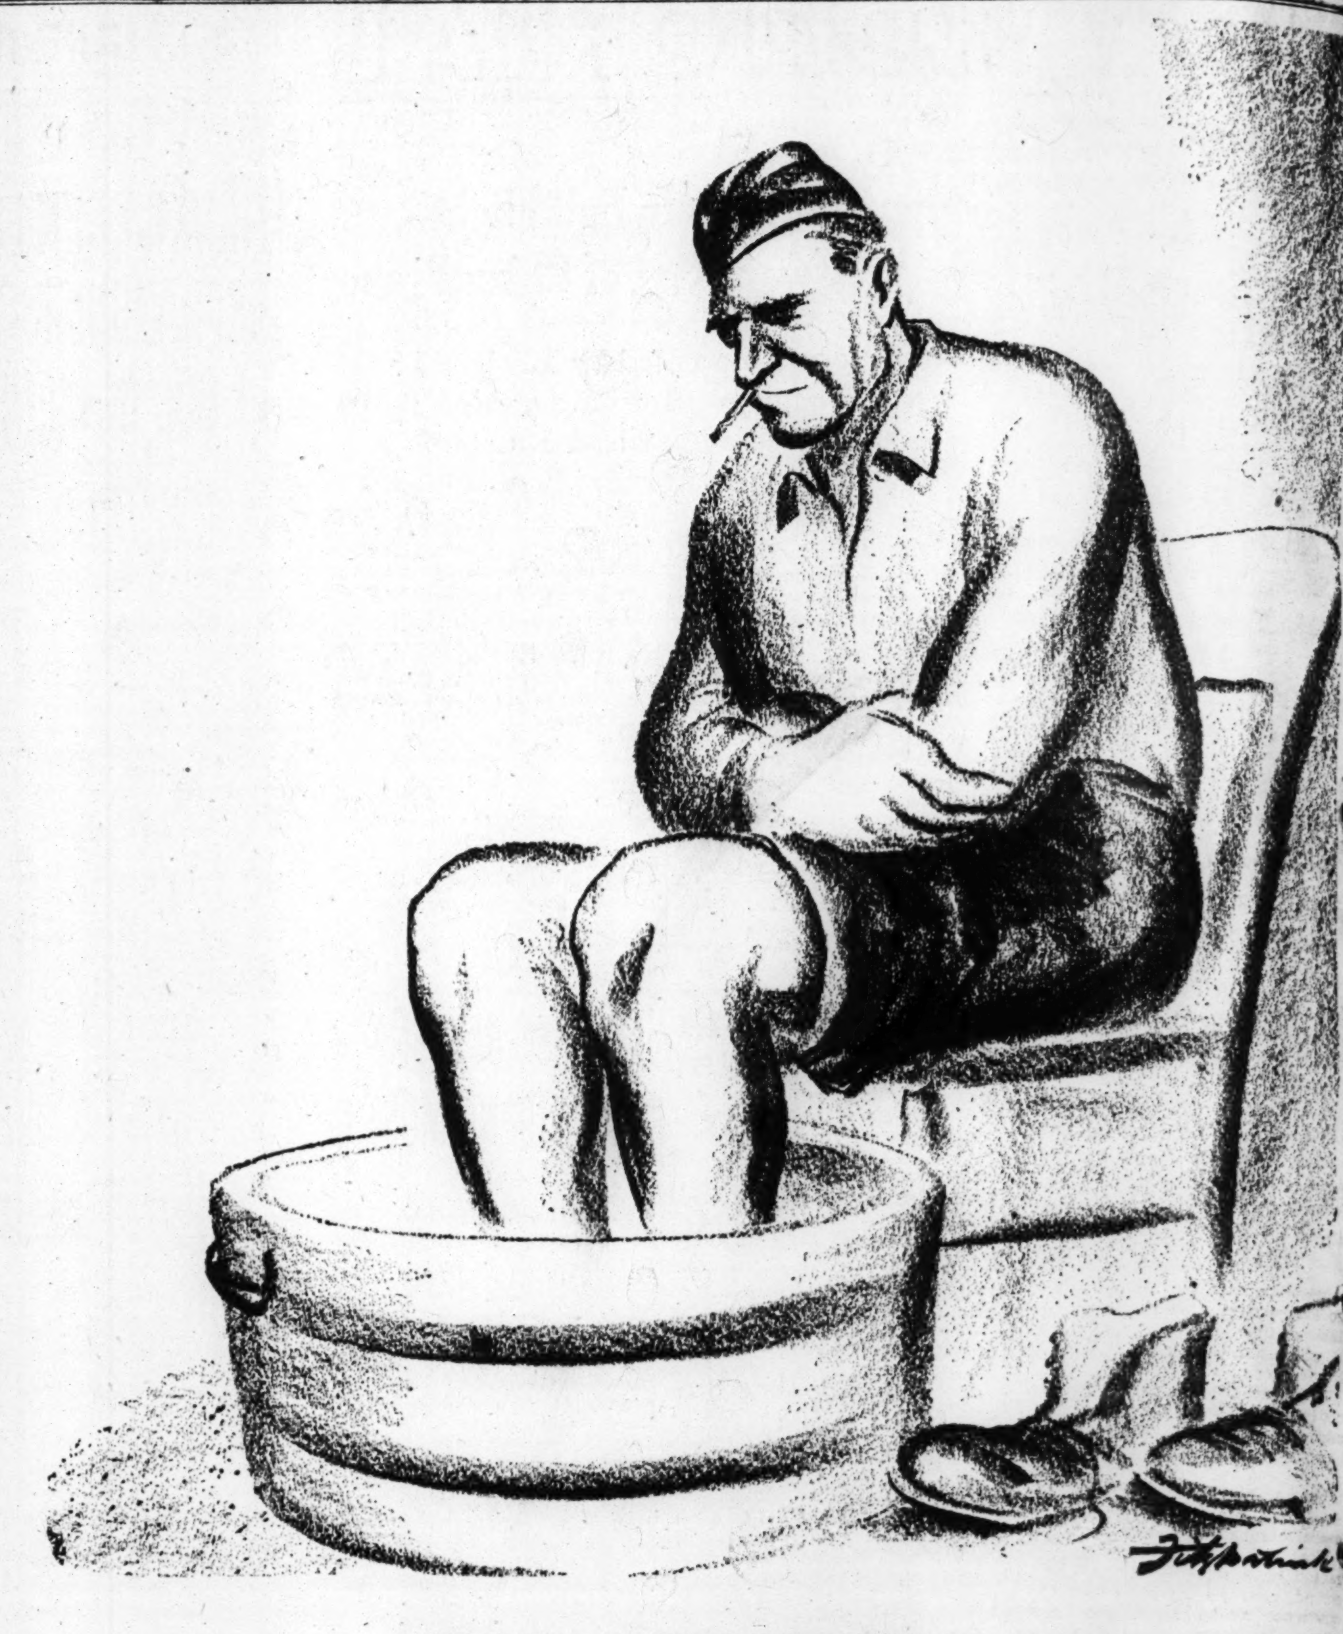
A SHOCKING WASTE OF MONEY.

Four months ago, on May 27, the United States Supreme Court handed down a unanimous decision invalidating the NRA. From that date on, the elaborate NRA organization ceased officially to exist. To the amazement of the country, Senator Vandenberg disclosed that on Aug. 17, approximately 11 weeks after the Schechter decision, 3746 persons were still employed by the NRA, at a monthly payroll of about $800,000. This expense was actually greater than the cost of NRA in July, 1934.

Senator Vandenberg said: "It's outrageous. There is a bureau knocked out by the Supreme Court which is costing nearly $200,000 more than it did when it was going strong." His protest was not without avail. As of Sept. 7, NRA employment had been reduced to 2760 persons, and is being further reduced at the rate of 75 a week. Even so, the annual payroll of that date was $7,023,220, with 541 employes drawing salaries of $8000 a year or more.

Here is a shocking example not only of the waste of public funds, but of the difficulty of uprooting an established bureaucracy, even though, in this case, the bureau had ceased to exist in the eyes of the law.



ANYBODY LOOKING FOR ELMER?

Returning Relief to a Local Basis

Since emergency is passing, it is time to make plans for ending Federal relief and returning responsibility to states and localities, Lippmann says; calls present system "demoralizing, wasteful and repugnant," though justified in crisis; admits difficulty of readjustment, but urges bringing it about as local resources revive.

From an Address by Walter Lippmann Before the Conference of the 1935 Mobilization for Human Needs, in Washington.

STATE and local governments and private welfare organizations must get ready at once to take upon themselves once more the responsibility for the relief of human needs. The emergency which compelled the Federal Government to assume this responsibility is passing and the Government, I confidently believe, must and will from now on set about putting the responsibility back upon the states, localities and private agencies.

The arrangements under which we have lived for the last two and a half years were abnormal. They were temporary. They will not continue.

We have come to something much more definite than a breathing spell. We are coming to the liquidation of the emergency powers of the Federal Government and to the revival and restoration of local and private initiative and responsibility.

The essence of the emergency lay in the fact that private and local initiative were paralyzed. We all know what happened. By 1933, the need of relief had so greatly increased, private and local resources had become so greatly depleted, that only the Federal Government was strong enough to deal with the situation. By 1933, though men differed as to how much the Government should spend on it, there was no difference of opinion as to the inescapable necessity of Federal relief.

There was a national emergency which very evidently fell within that interpretation of the Constitution which was given when the Supreme Court held that "it is not lightly to be assumed that in matters requiring national action, a power which must belong to and somewhere reside in every civilized government is not to be found." (Missouri vs. Holland, 252 U. S. 416.)

Ordinarily, we leave to the localities the duty of preserving order. But if there is more disorder than the police can deal with, the Governor calls out the militia. If there is more disorder than the militia can deal with, he calls upon the President to send Federal troops. But that is only the half of it.

The thing which distinguishes American institutions is that we expect and that we intend to insist that the Federal troops must retire as soon as the militia or the local police have the situation in hand. If the Federal troops stayed any longer than they absolutely had to stay, they would be violating the spirit of the Constitution and the essential liberties of the American people.

In principle, the same applies to Federal relief. It is justified as an emergency measure, if and when local and private effort cannot cope with the situation. But the provision of relief is not one of the permanent functions of the Federal Government to be exercised in normal times. And because Federal relief is not a permanent and normal function of the Government, the deepest preoccupation of all those concerned with relief, the President, the Congress, the state and local governments, private organizations and individuals, must be to see to it that local and private effort revive as quickly and as fully as possible. For they must make ready to carry the burden.

Speaking as one of those who believed that the emergency of 1933 was a real one, that it was so great that it called for the exercise of extraordinary powers by the Government, I venture to say that that emergency has now definitely passed its crisis and that the time has now come, that the time is now at hand, when we must proceed resolutely to restore to the states, to local governments and to private organizations the responsibility of relief.

I do not say this can be done completely in the next few months. But I do say that that should be our dominant purpose and that the relief program presented to the next session of Congress should be based on the principle that the Federal Government is retiring steadily, as rapidly as possible, and resolutely, from this field.

The rapidity with which it can retire will depend in part upon the state of business in the country, and in part upon the state of mind among the people. It can retire only in so far as state and local governments and private organizations are able and willing to take over the responsibility. Their ability to take it over depends upon continued economic improvement which will at once reduce the need of relief and will increase the resources to provide relief. But the willingness to shoulder the responsibility is the question which should concern us most.

It is not going to be easy to persuade local taxpayers and private contributors everywhere that they must begin to forego the receipt of easy money from Washington and settle down to paying the bills directly out of their own pockets. There will be a struggle, and in that struggle we shall often have to make a difficult choice between our immediate sympathies and our sober judgment as to what is in the long run the wisest course. It will be necessary to have a very firm grasp of the principle that, with the passing of this emergency, the restoration of local and private responsibility is the paramount need.

If the impression exists, and I fear it does, that the social security bill makes it unnecessary to raise money this year for private welfare work, it is a false impression. The long-term Federal provisions for social security will not take effect for years. The emergency provisions for relief are certainly going to be reduced rapidly and in all probability quite drastically. The responsibility for the relief of human needs will be increasingly from now on local and voluntary, rather than Federal and compulsory.

That this requires a difficult adjustment we know. But that adjustment, however difficult, must be made. The Government has to retire. The system of Federal relief, however necessary it may have been, is in its very nature demoralizing, wasteful and repugnant to the sentiments of this country.

ONE CAMPAIGN CERTAINTY.

From the Washington Post.

It is not known now, of course, who will run for the presidency in 1936, but it's a safe bet that Lincoln and Jefferson will be dragged into the race.

If We Ate as Our Sires Did

From the New York Sun.

GRAIN dealers figure that while the population of the world has increased annually by 1 per cent in the last 20 years, it is not consuming more wheat, corn, barley, oats and rye than it did at the end of the first decade of the century. If consumption of grain had kept pace with population, what would be the state of the world?

Nobody can answer that question exactly. A 20 per cent acreage increase suggests itself at first, but more productive strains of grain might make so great an expansion unnecessary. Machines have displaced men in the field to such a degree that it is impossible to say how many, if any, additional laborers would be required.

However, machines would be needed, and men would find work mining the metals and felling the trees of which they were made and fabricating them; other men would have to provide the oil and coal to refine and form the metal; others would get their livings making and applying the paint and enamel used to preserve the factories and the machines themselves. Dealers in agricultural machinery would be called for to distribute the machines and parts, and engineers and machinists would find tasks in operating and repairing them.

The transportation system would need more cars and vessels, making work back to mine and forest. Elevator operators, clerks, trainmen, millers, sailors, provision dealers, bakers and their shop attendants would be needed. Speculators with their retinues would flourish in greater number; governments would hire more food inspectors, and statisticians might find place for more computers and graph makers.

Women and perhaps some men would be stouter; more wool and cotton would be needed for clothing, unless nudism kept demand in check. If slimness remained a feminine desideratum, the chemists and their helpers would find a larger field for their reducing powders and potions.

Yet machines might make the increase in demand for human labor very small, even if the world should suddenly display a better appetite for grain.

THE MISSOURI BAR PURGE.

From the Kansas City Journal-Post.

MOST of the annual convention of the Missouri State Bar Association—to be held in Springfield this week—will be devoted to discussion of plans for purging the bar of unethical members under the new State Supreme Court rules, which went into effect last November.

Interest in this problem on the part of the legal profession is heartening. Unscrupulous criminal lawyers are one of the obstacles to law enforcement in the United States, and shysters disgrace the civil branch of litigation. This has caused much public indignation, but the public can do nothing without the active assistance of the legal profession.

Of course, it is to the advantage of ethical lawyers to rid their ranks of crooks. Fortunately, they have come to realize that they must act, instead of merely arguing that "all occupations have their black sheep." Now that better machinery for disbarment has been provided, it looks as if action will be taken in Missouri. Since November, the new rules have been invoked against several attorneys accused of unethical methods.

The bar association committees charged with house-cleaning leadership have been working hard and will report at the Springfield convention. The committees have done valuable preliminary work, but they cannot function effectively without the co-operation of the entire body of Missouri attorneys who obey the rules of decent practice.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.

IT was not mere chance which timed the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Republican National Committee to coincide approximately with the President's departure for the West.

It was deliberately GOP strategy. Republican master-minds, no longer downcast regarding 1936, have adopted the old military axiom: The best defense is a strong attack.

From now on the tactical objective of the GOP will be to maneuver the Democrats constantly into the defensive. The more explaining the New Dealers have to do the weaker becomes their position.

This strategy is what is behind the secret GOP decision to hold their national convention after the Democrats. Traditionally, it is held before. But this year Republican master-minds don't want to pass up the chance to concentrate a withering barrage on the newly adopted Democratic platform.

Official Agenda.

OFFICIALLY, today's committee meeting deals chiefly with such prosaic things as:

1. PLANS FOR THE 1936 CONVENTION—Officially the city and date are picked when the full committee meets in December. Actually, today's committee is the power behind the scenes.

2. FINANCES — The National Committee is in the black and more cash is rolling in.

3. NATIONAL CHAIRMANSHIP —There is agitation to ease out dapper Henry P. Fletcher.

Unofficial Agenda.

FAR more important, however, is an item not listed on the agenda. It is the question of whether the Republican party will go Progressive or Conservative in 1936; whether it will swing to the Borah-Landon Liberals or to the Hoover-Knox Conservatives.

The Executive Committee does not choose candidates. But it does pitch the tune. The tune may not be sung aloud for the time being. But the undertone refrain sounded today may be hummed by the leaders during the rest of the presidential campaign year.

What that tune may be can be gauged by a scrutiny of the background, character, associates and experience of the Executive Committee. Its members are fairly representative of the whole National Committee. Here they are:

The Roll-Call.

Chairman Henry Prather Fletcher—Scion of a wealthy Pennsylvania family, who adopted the life of diplomacy at the age of 30, and carved out a career notable for personal popularity and the iron-fisted protection of American interests.

Vice-Chairman Ralph E. Williams—Small town Oregon banker; began as bookkeeper; worked his way up to the presidency of the bank, plus bigger things, in Portland.

Vice-Chairman Mrs. Alvin T. Hert—Of the charming aristocracy of Kentucky; a lady of both poise and force who took over her husband's business and now heads the American Creosoting Company.

Vice-Chairman J. Henry Roraback of Connecticut—President of seven New England utility companies, director of four Hartford insurance companies, besides a bank, a railroad and a couple of manufacturing concerns. For years he dominated the politics of Connecticut, even during the days of Hoover, for whom he had no love.

Secretary George Keim of New Jersey—Retired leather manufacturer and banker who in his latter days of leisure has been chiefly concerned with clipping coupons, with politics, historical societies and sports.

Treasurer George F. Getz of Illinois—Operator of several coal companies; director of two banks, one newspaper, one hotel, one manufacturing company, and a sports promoter of no mean fame.

General Counsel John Hamilton of Kansas—Topeka lawyer, and among the newer blood in the Republican National Committee. A leaner toward Progressivism, he is a booster for Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas. Helped William Allen White organize the Grass Roots Conference and was urged as Committee Chairman instead of Fletcher.

Mark Requa of California—One of the closest buddies of Herbert Hoover; assistant to him as Food Administrator; mysterious political adviser while his friend was in the White House; today busy with oil and mining.

George A. Ball of Indiana—Of Mason fruit jar fame; operates a glass factory, a railroad, dictaphone company, two banks, packing plant, furniture, cement and various other factories.

Lawrence C. Phipps of Colorado—Ex-partner of Andrew Carnegie, multi-millionaire and former member of the Senate.

Charles D. Hilles of New York—Ex-czar of the Republican National Committee; Hoover's bitterest foe within the ranks, though for purely personal reasons (basic economic philosophy is identical); a director of various banks, elevator companies, the "Katy" Railroad, New York Life, Anglo-Chilean Nitrate, General Cable, other big corporations.

Walter F. Brown of Ohio, political hatchet man and Postmaster-General for Hoover; as loyal to his ex-chief as Hilles is inimical.

Mrs. Worthington Scranton of Scranton—One of the landed dowagers of Pennsylvania; her husband for years headed the Scranton Gas and Water Co.

Rentfro Banton Creager—A blatant ex-Congressman from Texas; quarreled violently with Hoover over the race question; boasts publicly that both Harding and Coolidge offered him the ambassadorship to Mexico, but he declined to go.

Bertha Baur of Illinois—Vice-president of a brass works and a carbon company; once a candidate for Congress.

Merry-Go-Round.

DESPITE numerous guards, the White House is constantly falling victim to some light-fingered souvenir hunter. The latest depredation was the theft of the gold lettering from the face of the valuable antique clock in the Oval Room, where foreign diplomats generally are received by the President when they present their credentials. The clock, one of the oldest in the White House, was brought to the mansion by President John Adams, the first to occupy the residence. . . . The recent Congressional Act providing free transportation to the Philippine Islands for Filipinos residing in the U. S. is not the open-handed gift it appears to be. Any Filipino who takes advantage of it is barred forever from re-entry into this country, except within the restricted annual quota fixed in the Independence Act. . . . CCC Director Robert Fechner is a demon for detail. In his inspection of CCC camps, he not only scrutinizes wearing apparel, living quarters and food, but crawls under trucks to check their condition.

General Johnson's Article

"If France and Germany Had Left the North Shores of the Mediterranean Open to All Nations, Italy Would Not Now Have to Fight for Her Natural Heritage."

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON.

REHOBOTH, Del., Sept. 25.

WHY does Mussolini or any other leader of a Government want distant colonies? Ancient Rome wanted them for slaves and tribute, ancient Greece and Carthage for trade.

In that day you had to subdue a country to sell to it. Strangers were enemies in every land. Today we say that because an industrial nation needs sources of raw materials and markets for finished goods it must seize primitive peoples to secure both, to keep out competitors and to insure peace for trade. To do business with your neighbor, you must own him.

Between man and man that odorous idea is called peonage. Among nations it has no sweeter smell.

It is unnecessary. Before her madness, Germany, with few colonies, was taking the trade of the world under England's very nose, and nowhere more successfully than throughout the British Empire. British trade with her 13 American colonies multiplied by leaps and bounds to become her greatest outlet, but only after she lost political control of them.

You don't have to swallow a country to develop it. The effort to do so is strangling the commerce and the welfare of the world. The surface of the globe is honeycombed in watertight trade compartments.

The map of Africa is a disgrace to Europe. The richest continent, still sterile of any development worthy of the name, is barred from progress by a gridiron of the boundaries of European pillage, like the checkerboard pattern of a prison door.

Except for the Monroe Doctrine, South America would look just like it.

Ethiopia is the frontier of freedom in Africa. Therein lies Mussolini's sole excuse. If France and England had left the south shores of the Mediterranean open to all nations, Italy would not now have to fight for her natural heritage in that classic sea.

DR. W. H. WILDER DIES; NOTED EYE SPECIALIST

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Dr. William Hamlin Wilder, professor emeritus of ophthalmology at Rush Medical College, University of Chicago, died yesterday at his home here after an illness of several months.

Dr. Wilder, who was 74, was past president of the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology and one of the founders of the American Board of Ophthalmology. He was awarded last May the ninth annual Leslie Dana gold medal for outstanding achievements in the prevention of blindness.

The Dana medal, donated by Leslie Dana, Brentmoor Park, former chairman of the Missouri Commission for the Blind to "the friend of the blind most outstanding in science, letters and surgical art," was awarded Dr. Wilder at a dinner at Hotel Coronado May 18 given by the St. Louis Society for the Blind, trustee for the medal. The nomination for the award is made by the National Association for Prevention of Blindness.

Dr. Wilder received the medal because of a lifetime devoted to the advancement of the prevention of blindness rather than for any single accomplishment.

The medal bore the inscription "Wise clinician, devoted teacher and humanitarian." Dr. Wilder not only was a leader in the field of educational ophthalmology but made marked contributions in the development of plastic surgery of the eyelid. He was a pioneer in requiring standards for the practice of ophthalmology and the examination and certification of practitioners.

U. S. EXPEDITION BAGS RARE TIBETAN ANIMALS

Deer Thought to Be Extinct and Other Beasts on Way to American Museums.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 25.—A collection of rare animals from the highlands of Tibet, including specimens of a deer zoologists thought extinct, is on the way to museums in the United States.

This group of beasts, ranging from rodents to grizzly bears, was bagged by the Brooke Dolan expedition, which for a year has been searching the mountain wilderness along the Tibetan frontier. The collection is said to be the most complete ever made of East Tibetan Fauna.

The deer, called McNeil's deer after the explorer, Capt. McNeil, who discovered this type in 1900, were all killed at elevations of more than 14,000 feet. A full family group was obtained by the Dolan expedition.

Only two specimens of McNeil's deer exist in the museums of the world, Dolan said. Both were killed by Capt. McNeil 35 years ago.

Dolan and his companions, Ernest Schafer and Marion Duncan, also bagged specimens of wild yak, wild ass and the steppe grizzly. These are nearly all high-altitude animals and are found among the lofty peaks at Tibet's Eastern frontier. The grizzly bear lives at altitudes ranging from 13,500 to 18,000 feet.

The Dolan expedition left Shanghai in the summer of 1934 and proceeded up the Yangtze River 1500 miles to Chungking, where the party struck off across Szechuan Province to the Tibetan border. Much unexplored territory was traversed during the frequent moves of the expedition.

In the Kokonar territory in Westen China, the expedition ran into difficulties when the Mohammedan authorities refused permission to the caravan to proceed into Tibet. Then Dolan, with two Tibetan guides and three mules, undertook the 500-mile trip across the source-lands of the Yellow River to Sining, capital of the province, hoping to obtain the desired permission from the authorities there. The difficult journey took 30 days, but it was not in vain, for the permit was granted. It was the second time this route had ever been traversed by a foreigner.

Dolan, a young Princeton graduate, headed an expedition to West China several years ago in search of the giant Panda. Several specimens of this rare beast were killed.

PROGRESSIVE UNION RENEWS MINE WAGE NEGOTIATION

Illinois Diggers Who Refused to Join U. M. W. Strike Meet With Producers.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 25. — The Progressive Miners of America today renewed their efforts to negotiate a new contract for higher pay and shorter hours.

The union's officers and Scale Committee met here with representatives of the Coal Producers' Association of Illinois, whose mines employ diggers from the Progressive union.

The contracts of both the Progressive and the United Mine Workers' Unions were renewed by agreement several times after they expired early in the year. When the United Mine Workers went out on strike Monday, the Progressives, claiming a membership of 16,000 in Illinois, refused to support the rival union.

Presidents R. J. Wilcoxson of the Producers' Association, and William Keck of the Progressive Union, headed the conference today. Wilcoxson has offered a renewal of the present contract based on $5 a day for a 35-hour week. Keck has asked for a $6 basic wage and a 30-hour week.

INQUIRY IN GAMBLING STORY IN ILLINOIS U. NEWSPAPER

Mayor, Who Said He Cleaned Up Champaign, Tries to Learn Writer's Name.

By the Associated Press.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Sept. 25. — Mayor James Flynn said today he would make every effort to learn the name of the reporter who wrote a gambling expose for the Daily Illini, student newspaper at the University of Illinois. Flynn said he wanted to identify the writer so a warrant could be sworn out for the gambler.

Elbert L. Herron, managing editor of the university newspaper, said the Mayor informed him he would be taken before the grand jury in the hope of forcing him to name the writer.

The story gave a detailed account of a visit to a handbook, soon after the Mayor's statement that gambling in Champaign had been suppressed.

A. C. Willard, president of the university, said no pressure would be exerted through officers of the school to compel Herron to announce the writer's name. Herron took the position that to name the reporter would be breaking a newspaper confidence.

SECRET WAR IMPLEMENT LIST FOR EXPORTS AND IMPORTS

Prepared by National Munitions Control Board and Sent to Roosevelt for Approval.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25. — A temporarily secret list of war implements, export and import of which soon will be licensed as a neutrality safeguard, was prepared by the National Munitions Control Board yesterday. It now goes to President Roosevelt. When approved and proclaimed, the State Department said, "all manufacturers, exporters and importers of arms and munitions and implements of war must register with the department and, after Nov. 29, these articles may not be exported from or imported into this country without a license issued by the department to cover each shipment."

Members of the board which held its first meeting under the chairmanship of Secretary Hull declined to say what articles were on the list. In the event of foreign conflict, the draft was expected to form the basis of a presidential proclamation putting a mandatory embargo on "arms, munitions and implements of war" at the direction of the neutrality law.

A final determination of what comprises war implements under the Neutrality Act rests with the President. But observers here believed the list drawn and any future embargo list would be founded on the articles shipment of which already is prohibited by law into China, Cuba, Honduras, Nicaragua, Paraguay and Bolivia. These adhere to military armaments and explosives for actual use on the battlefield and do not embrace such raw materials as cotton and copper, or foods.

MRS. ROOSEVELT ON WAR

Says It Has Been Proved That Force Doesn't Settle.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, talking to reporters yesterday, gave her views on war with feeling and rapidity.

"From my point of view it has been clearly proven force never did settle anything," she said. "Why do we insist as individuals, and as nations, going on to ultimate destruction of our civilization which we have seen happen time after time in the past, why do we insist on blindly keeping to the idea force settles things.

"It never does. It simply destroys and destroys until there is nothing left to destroy, and only then can we begin to build again. I cannot see why women, the conservers of the race, don't see this and exert more real practical pressure against that way of settling difficulties. The ocean wouldn't be a barrier five minutes if a war started that involved us."

MAN HELD FOR GRAND JURY IN KILLING IN POKER GAME

By the Associated Press.

TUSCUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 25.—Edwin Metcalf, 40 years old, was bound over to the January term of Circuit Court today after a Coroner's jury recommended he be held for the killing of his employer, former Judge Clarence Wright of the Miller County Court.

The preliminary hearing was before Justice George T. Nichols here this afternoon a few hours after Coroner J. M. Ellison concluded the inquest into Wright's death at Brumley.

The State offered six witnesses to support its contentioon that Metcalf shot Wright, who was 46, during a quarrel Sept. 14 over a penny ante poker game at Wright's Lake of the Ozarks cabin. When arrested a week ago, Metcalf told officers he shot the former Judge in self-defense after Wright had fired at him three times.

Josef Sigall of Saratoga, Cal., Puts Loss at $200,000.

By the Associated Press.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Sept. 25.—The country home and studio of Josef Sigall, portrait painter, at Saratoga, near here, was destroyed by fire last night.

Sigall estimated the loss at $200,000. Among portraits he said were destroyed were those of Vice-President Garner and Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Strikers Prevent Workers From Leaving Plant; Slingshots Are Used on Windows.

By the Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 25.—Twenty-two persons were arrested and three detectives were injured in a three-hour fight between 300 policemen armed with night sticks and strikers and sympathizers at the A. J. Lindeman and Hoverson stove plant.

Disorders broke out as non-strikers left the plant. Police were called after massed pickets prevented the exit of automobiles carrying workmen from the plant. Night sticks were drawn and the crowd was beaten back.

After dusk slingshot sharpshooters began shattering windows of the plant and the crowd rallied for a new demonstration. Hand to hand struggles with police followed. Broken up several times, the crowd reassembled quickly and new charges were made by police. Among those arrested were boys accused of smashing windows.

American Federation of Labor unions charge the company locked out 18 workmen. A complaint against the company for alleged violation of the Wagner Labor Disputes law has been filed with Regional Labor Board offices here.

YOUNG LORD PLEADS NOT GUILTY OF CHECK FORGERY AND THEFT

Edward Montagu, Son of Duke of Manchester, in Public Eye Because of Activities.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—Lord Edward Montagu, second son of the Duke of Manchester, pleaded not guilty today in his trial in Old Bailey Court on six counts, charging theft and forgery of a check.

The young lord, whose activities —ranging from proprietorship of a coffee stall to aspirations to the French Foreign Legion—have given him a prominent place in the public eye, had been freed under bail of £25 (about $125).

He was charged with theft and forgery of a banker's check for £17, seven pence, the property of Mrs. Violet Van der Elst, who has been known for her leadership of demonstrations against capital punishment.

NOVELTY FIRM'S SAFE OPENED BY BURGLARS; $395 TAKEN

Superintendent of State Highway Patrol Reports Theft of Service Revolver.

Burglars broke open a safe at the Wal-Bil Novelty Co., 104 North Broadway, yesterday, obtaining $395. Several small vending machines and trinkets valued at a total of $174 were also taken.

The Fruit Supply Co., 809 North Fourth street, was entered yesterday by burglars, who obtained $80 from a cabinet. They knocked the combination off the safe, setting off an alarm, which caused them to flee.

Charles Summers, driver for Griesedieck Bros. Brewery, reported that he was robbed of $30 by a man armed with a revolver, who held him up when he stopped his truck in Shaw boulevard at the Missouri Pacific crossing yesterday afternoon. The robber fled on foot.

B. M. Casteel, superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, reported that his service revolver was stolen from his room at Hotel Jefferson.

THREE PROFESSORS DENY ALIENATION SUIT CHARGES

University of Washington Faculty Members Move to Dismiss Woman's $250,000 Action.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 25.—Three defendant professors of the University of Washington denied meddling in the family affairs of Mrs. Bertha Freyd Lane in a motion filed yesterday to dismiss her $250,000 alienation of affections suit, Superior Judge Clay Allen was expected to pass on the motion today.

The professors were called to the stand yesterday and subjected to a vigorous examination designed to show they interfered in the affairs of Mrs. Lane and her divorced husband, Dr. Joseph Leon Lane, a physician, thereby causing a divorce in 1932.

Dr. Frederick Morgan Padelford, professor of English and dean of the graduate school at the university; Dean David Thompson, vice-president emeritus, and Dr. David C. Hall, Health Officer, took their turns on the witness stand. Each denied Mrs. Lane's charges that they falsely stated to Dr. Lane during the winter of 1930 that she was not rational, was hysterical, did not appreciate him, and was not fit to be his wife. Dr. William Henry George, a former professor of political science, also a defendant, is not here for the trial.

CONSTABLE SEEKING ROBBER SUSPECT ROUTED BY WOMAN

Says She Shoved Revolver Against His Side; When He Returns She and Man Are Gone.

C. G. Mayer, Constable of Smithton Township, St. Clair County, was in a tavern in "the Valley," East St. Louis vice district, at 2:30 a. m. today looking for a man suspected of taking part in a Freeburg, Ill., bank robbery, when a red-headed woman shoved a revolver against his side, took his pistol and holster, and, ordering him to "beat it," forced him to leave in his automobile, he reported to East St. Louis police.

Before the woman took his pistol, the proprietor and another man named "Blackie," whom Mayer suspected as the robber, stepped out of the tavern, Mayer said. He went back looking for the woman, the bartender and "Blackie," but could find none of them, and at 4 a. m. called in the police to help him.

MISSOURI ASKS FOR $222,509,486 FOR WPA PROJECTS

State Administrator Recommends Requests Though Only $56,000,000 Is Available.

3033 PROPOSALS ARE SUBMITTED

M. S. Murray Announces He Has Sent Them to Washington Where They Will Be Finally Passed On.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 25.—Recommendations for final approval of applications for $222,509,496 of Federal Works Progress Administration funds, for 3033 proposed projects to relieve unemployment in Missouri—the total cost of which is estimated at $248,394,369—have been forwarded to WPA officials in Washington, State WPA Administrator Matthew S. Murray announced here today. He estimated the projects would provide 305,602 "man years" of employment.

However, the applications for Federal funds recommended by Murray, subject to final approval in Washington, virtually quadruple the $56,000,000 now available for such WPA projects in Missouri. The program submitted will be sharply reduced, it was said, unless additional allotments of WPA funds are made to the State.

The difference of $25,884,873 between the estimated total cost of $248,394,369 and the $222,509,496 which would be drawn from Federal funds, if all of the projects were finally approved, represents proposed contributions of local funds by the project sponsors.

The huge program recommended is apportioned among the 11 WPA districts in Missouri and a so-called State-wide list of projects.

Virtually Final Report.

Murray said the report just submitted virtually is a final one, except that he will continue receiving applications for projects for possible inclusion in the State-wide program, if additional funds are allotted to Missouri.

He approved a list of 210 projects for District No. 10, comprising St. Louis and St. Louis County, which, with 52 projects submitted for this district in previous reports, total $27,489,100, of which $25,643,057 would be from Federal funds. Murray said these projects would provide 28,729 "man years" of employment.

In explaining submission of a program from Federal funds nearly four times greater than the WPA funds now available, Murray said he anticipated many of the projects would be rejected in Washington. He said he hoped additional funds would be allotted to the State, and that the excess program was recommended to create a reserve and to meet any contingency that might arise in the work relief.

The original WPA allotment to Missouri was $95,000,000, from the Federal appropriation of nearly five billion dollars for public works and relief. Of this $95,000,000 about $22,000,000 was apportioned to the Conservation Corps Camps, $12,000,000 to the State Highway Department, and about $5,000,000 to the War Department for river work. This left about $56,000,000 for the WPA program proper in the State.

Beauty Operators for Needy.

The State Administrator's office recently announced there would be no "boondoggling" projects in the Missouri program. However, some of the projects approved are not far removed from that classification.

One project, for St. Louis and St. Louis County, calls for expenditure of $20,789, all from Federal funds, for "beauty operators and barbers for needy people."

Another project calls for $35,926, all but $900 from Federal funds, for checking house numbers in St. Louis. One item would provide $14,895, all Federal funds, for a "publicity campaign" on articles made by unemployed women in St. Louis and St. Louis County.

The list includes $455,117, all Federal money, for "nursing-instructions and general housekeeping," in St. Louis.

Murray said the "State-wide" list of projects, aggregating $150,373,167, was made up by estimating possible expenditures under a number of classifications, and that the total for this list did not represent specific project applications. These classifications include improvement of public buildings; employment assistance for artists, actors, musicians and writers; employment assistance for under-privileged youths; highway and bridge construction and improvements; airports, development of recreational facilities; installation and extension of municipally owned street lighting systems," landscaping, and other purposes.

Murray said project applications still being received will be assigned to this State-wide program, if additional WPA funds are received.

St. Louis Request Largest.

The $27,489,100 in projects recommended for the Tenth District (St. Louis and St. Louis County) was the largest total among the 11 WPA districts. District No. 11 (Jackson County, including Kansas City) was second with a total of $16,291,250, of which $15,616,454 would be from Federal funds. Recommendations for District 11 covered 114 projects.

AL SMITH ADDRESSES EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS

Denounces Communism Before 43,000 at Cleveland and Gets Ovation.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 25.—Alfred E. Smith, a commanding figure among the Catholic laity, voiced vigorous profession last night of his faith in the Blessed Sacrament of the Eucharist and proposed that society must be organized on the basis of love "in the name of Him who gave His life for us on Calvary," or it will organize on the basis of sin.

Smith, a former Governor of New York, addressing pilgrims to the seventh national Eucharistic Congress in Cleveland Stadium, received an ovation from an estimated 43,000 persons who rose in the tiers of seats and applauded as a symphony orchestra struck up "The Sidewalks of New York."

"Communionism enables me to help my brother because I love him," said Smith. "The Communist can't do that because he is taught to hate him. There is nothing a Communist can do for me, but I can offer my holy communion for him that Almighty God may give him the power to understand the right."

Denounces Theory of Hate.

He charged that a Russian official wrote, "We must learn to hate as it is only by that means that we can conquer the world."

"How does that strike you?" he exclaimed. "I am the honorary night superintendent of the Central Park Zoo, and the inmates of the monkey house look to me like a group of college professors compared to any man or group of men who attempt to defend such a theory as that."

He said he did not propose to deal with the economic features of Communism "for the simple reason that I don't understand them—but there is one thing you can understand and that's the result of a trial of Communism."

Smith, the Democratic nominee for President in 1928, spoke from a canvas-covered area in the center of the field. Powerful floodlights atop the mammoth stadium were flashed on a few moments before the arrival of Patrick Cardinal Hayes of New York, papal legate to the Congress, and other dignitaries.

Cablegram From Pope.

A cablegram conveying the blessings of the Pope was received today. Addressed to Cardinal Hayes and signed by Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, secretary of state for the Pope, it said:

"Holy Father, profoundly moved by the magnificent reception accorded his legate at the National Eucharistic Congress in Cleveland, is filled with spiritual joy and admiration at the great outpouring of faith and love toward our Eucharistic Lord in general communion. . . . The Holy Father sends from his heart to your eminence, the apostolic delegate, and to Bishop Schrembs, the American Bishops, priests and people his paternal, apostolic blessings."

Then the stranger gave Cunningham the 75 cents and the revolver used in the holdup, making a quick getaway.

WOMAN KILLED BY ANOTHER WHEN SHE DECIDES TO WED

Former Buffalo Policewoman Charged With First Degree Murder at Phoenix, Ariz.

By the Associated Press.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 25. — A first degree murder charge was filed against Lillian F. Hartnett, 50 years old, retired Buffalo (N. Y.) policewoman, yesterday, in connection with the killing of Alice D. Rasp, 33, telephone operator.

The complaint was issued after an inquest verdict had been returned, naming Miss Hartnett as the one who shot Miss Rasp. Miss Hartnett sat through the inquest in silence. She was not called on to testify.

Bess George, another telephone operator, told the Coroner's jury that as Miss Rasp reached the third floor landing of the Mountain States Telephone & Telegraph Co. building, Miss Hartnett stepped out of hiding and fired once. The bullet struck Miss Rasp in the temple, emerging from her forehead.

Then, according to the testimony, Miss Hartnett walked calmly to the telephone operators' room, surrendered her pistol to George W. Trehearne, district traffic chief, and said: "I shot her; call the police."

George Lammers of the County Attorney's office, said his investigation had disclosed that the two women quarreled recently over the engagement of Miss Rasp to marry a Phoenix business man. There also was a disagreement over property. Miss Hartnett filed suit against Miss Rasp on Sept. 1, charging wrongful conversion of property and asking for a judgment of $493.

The two women came here from New York nine years ago and until a few months ago lived together. They told acquaintances they were cousins.

Members of Bruno Family of Kelayres, Pa., Found Guilty of Firing on Democratic Parade.

FOURTH TRIAL OVER FIVE FATALITIES

First Degree Murder Verdicts Against Joseph and Philip Bruno, Brother Village G. O. P. Bosses.

By the Associated Press.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 25.—Joseph and Philip Bruno, brothers, former Republican bosses of the village of Kelayres, Pa., were convicted of murder in the first degrees yesterday in the fourth trial growing out of the killing at Kelayres on the night before election two years ago.

At one time the vote of the jury stood 10 to two for the death penalty, but two women forced a compromise of life imprisonment.

Five younger members of the Bruno family, accused with their elders of firing on the Democratic parade as it passed the Bruno residence, were convicted of murder in the second degree.

Defense counsel asked for new trials for the seven, and the Court set Oct. 29 for argument.

The verdict was received with tears by the defendants and their wives. Philip Bruno cried "Shame" as he was led from the courtroom to prison.

This trial was for the murder of William Forke, one of the five men killed by machine gun fire.

Three previous trials yielded three convictions. Joseph Bruno, 50 years old, was convicted of second degree murder and manslaughter, and Philip, 48, of manslaughter. Appeals are pending in each case.

Their five kinsmen—the same five that were tried this time—were previously acquitted. They are Joseph's sons, James, 30, and Alfred, 26; Philip's son, Arthur, 18, the only unmarried man in the group; Paul, 24, nephew of the two leaders; and Anthony Orlando, 27, Joseph's son-in-law.

Few spectators were in the courtroom when the verdict was returned, in contrast to the hundreds of Schuylkill County residents who jammed the courtroom in the four trials and told of the bitter factionalism in the village.

The defense of the Brunos rested, in part, on their statements that the paraders stoned their home and that the fatal shots were fired from the house of a rival political leader at the Brunos.

Factionalism scourged Kelayres for several years. It was known through the anthracite region for its election squabbles. Once its schools failed to open because two rival boards of education picked a staff of teachers each.

PILOT OF LIGHT SEAPLANE SAYS HE WENT UP 16,000 FEET

American Has Broken Altitude Record Held by Frenchman If Mark Is Official.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Benjamin King, engineer and sportsman-pilot, reported after a flight of two hours and 20 minutes yesterday that he had set a new altitude record of 16,000 feet for light seaplanes, breaking the old record of 11,355 feet set by a French pilot in 1930. The record will not be official until his barograph is checked by the Bureau of Standards.

"My altimeter registers only up to 15,000 feet, and I continued to climb for some time after the needle reached the end of the dial," he said. "While I can't tell exactly I know it was about 16,000 feet."

The flight also would establish a national record for seaplanes of the fourth category—single-seaters weighing less than 552 pounds—since no previous official record was listed.

Last June King set a distance record for two-seater light seaplanes, 185.4 miles, carrying a passenger.

ROW IN COUNTY COURT ON HOSPITAL OUSTERS

Two Judges in Dispute When Discharged Workers Seek Reason for Firing.

Five discharged employes of St. Louis County Hospital made an unsuccessful attempt to learn the reasons for their dismissal today and provoked a dispute in County Court between Presiding Judge Thatcher, supporter of Dr. Edwin L. Sheahan, reinstated as superintendent of the hospital last week, and Associate Judge Tighe, who opposed Dr. Sheahan.

Judge Tighe, replying to Judge Thatcher's defense of Dr. Sheahan, declared the superintendent was "playing politics," and pointed out that he had discharged 150 employes when he was first appointed superintendent.

"He's doing the same thing again now," Tighe asserted heatedly. "It is a great injustice to these people to discharge them without a hearing or without giving them the reason."

Those who appeared before the court were Andrew T. Sears, investigator; Mrs. A. J. McCartney, clerk; Miss Bob Thurman Linahan, clerk ,and Mrs. Mayme Overhoff, housekeeper, who were discharged yesterday, and Mrs. Jules Yore, bookkeeper, who was dismissed last January.

To their complaint that Dr. Sheahan had refused to give the reason for their dismissal and referred them to the County Court, Judge Thatcher relied that it was the superintendent's privilege to employ and dismiss workers on his own authority.

Dr. Sheahan was removed as superintendent after a grand jury criticised his administration, declaring the hospital was "a menace to public health and safety." Judge Thatcher opposed his removal but the votes of Judges Tighe and Wohlschlager carried Judge Tighe's motion. Last Wednesday, Judge Wohlschlaeger moved to reinstate Dr. Sheahan and he was supported by Judge Thatcher.

Over the protest of Judge Tighe, the County Court ignored the recommendation of the St. Louis County Chamber of Commerce as to a successor to Dr. Sheahan. At the Court's request, after consulting expert medical authorities, the Chamber of Commerce recommended Dr. Curtis H. Lohr, former St. Louis Hospital Commissioner.

WHEAT MARKET IS IRREGULAR, RALLYING LATE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Rallying sharply at the last today, wheat prices reflected good buying that came more or less from domestic millers.

Flour demand both northwest and southwest was reported. Canadian threshing delays were reported, with snow at Calgary, Alberta.

Wheat closed firm at the same as yesterday's finish to 1⅜c higher, December 98⅛@98½c, corn ⅝c off to 1 cent up, December 57⅞@58c. Oats unchanged to ⅜c higher, and provisions unchanged to 32 cents decline.

Led by a new jump in prices for September delivery of corn, all grains showed firmness early today.

With only a few days remainin gto adjust accounts in that corn delivery, and with the open interest here larger than the whole visible supply of corn in the United States, traders exhibited fear of fireworks developing.

Opening at ⅜c off to 1½c up, December 57⅞@58c, the corn market then scored allround gains. Wheat started at ⅛@⅜c gain, December 98½@⅝c, and soon climbed further.

Subsequently early corn was unchanged to ¾c lower and wheat unchanged to ⅛c off.

A rise to within ¼ cent of the season's top price record was witnessed in September corn, but then a transient setback of nearly 2 cents to below yesterday's finish ensued, and temporarily all grains here became easier. Meanwhile, October delivery of wheat at Liverpool ran upward 2⅛ cents, owing to scantiness of immediate supplies of wheat there. An undertone of strength afterward pervaded the Chicago wheat market, and rallies were frequent, influenced by word of continued drouth in Argentina.

Better overseas demand for Canadian wheat was noted. England was reported as for the first time taking quantities of feed wheat. Oats chiefly followed corn.

Provisions declined with hogs.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 25,818,000 bushels, corn 4,172,000. Open interest in wheat was 116,135,000 bushels, and in corn 26,785,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 25.—September wheat closed nominally ¼c higher and December unchanged on bid. September corn was nominally up ⅜c. December was bid 58c, unchanged.

Winnipeg wheat opened ⅛@⅜c higher an dearly was 1⅛@1¼c lower. The close was 1⅝@1¾c net higher.

Liverpool wheat opened ⅜@1d lower and in subsequent cable was unchanged to 1⅛d higher. The close was ⅞d up to 1d lower.

In the cash grain market today, soft wheat was ½@1½c lower; corn 1@1½c higher; oats steady.

Sales of cash grain made on the floor of the exchange were as follows:

Local wheat receipts, which were 36,000 bushels, compared with 28,500 a week ago and 18,000 a year ago, included 21 cars local and 3 through. Corn receipts, which were 4500 bushels, compared with 36,000 a week ago and 21,000 a year ago, included 2 cars local and 1 through. Oats receipts, which were 20,000 bushels, compared with 10,000 a week ago and 16,000 a year ago, included 10 cars local. Hay receipts were 1 car local.

WHEAT MARKET IS IRREGULAR, RALLYING LATE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Rallying sharply at the last today, wheat prices reflected good buying that came more or less from domestic millers.

Flour demand both northwest and southwest was reported. Canadian threshing delays were reported, with snow at Calgary, Alberta.

Wheat closed firm at the same as yesterday's finish to 1⅜c higher, December 98⅜@98½c, corn ⅝c off to 1 cent up, December 57⅞@58c. Oats unchanged to ⅛c higher, and provisions unchanged to 32 cents decline.

Led by a new jump in prices for September delivery of corn, all grains showed firmness early today.

With only a few days remainin gto adjust accounts in that corn delivery, and with the open interest here larger than the whole visible supply of corn in the United States, traders exhibited fear of fireworks developing.

Opening at ⅜c off to 1½c up, December 57⅞@58c, the corn market then scored allround gains. Wheat started at ⅛@⅜c gain, December 98½@⅝c, and soon climbed further.

Subsequently early corn was unchanged to ⅜c lower and wheat unchanged to ⅛c off.

A rise to within ¼ cent of the season's top price record was witnessed in September corn, but then a transient setback of nearly 2 cents to below yesterday's finish ensued, and temporarily all grains here became easier. Meanwhile, October delivery of wheat at Liverpool ran upward 2⅛ cents, owing to scantiness of immediate supplies of wheat there. An undertone of strength afterward pervaded the Chicago wheat market, and rallies were frequent, influenced by word of continued drouth in Argentina.

Better overseas demand for Canadian wheat was noted. England was reported as for the first time taking quantities of feed wheat. Oats chiefly followed corn.

Provisions declined with hogs.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 25,518,000 bushels, corn 4,172,000. Open interest in wheat was 116,135,000 bushels, and in corn 26,785,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Sept. 25.—September wheat closed nominally ¼c higher and December unchanged on bid. September corn was nominally up ¾c. December was bid 58c, unchanged.

Winnipeg wheat opened ⅛@⅜c higher and early was 1¼@1¼c lower. The close was 1⅜@1¾c net higher.

Liverpool wheat opened ⅜@1d lower and in subsequent cable was unchanged to 1⅛d higher. The close was ⅞d up to 1d lower.

In the cash grain market today, soft wheat was ½@1½c lower; corn 1@1½c higher; oats steady.

Sales of cash grain made on the floor of the exchange were as follows:

Local wheat receipts, which were 36,000 bushels, compared with 28,500 a week ago and 18,000 a year ago, included 21 cars local and 3 through. Corn receipts, which were 4500 bushels, compared with 36,000 a week ago and 21,000 a year ago, included 2 cars local and 1 through. Oats receipts, which were 20,000 bushels, compared with 10,000 a week ago and 16,000 a year ago, included 10 cars local. Hay receipts were 1 car local.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES UNCHANGED TO 5 LOWER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Except for further evening up of near months and scattering liquidation absorbed by trade buying or price fixing, trading in cotton was comparatively quiet today. Prices sagged under realizing and Southern hedge sales. After selling at 10.62 early, December eased off to 10.55, with the mid-afternoon market ruling about net unchanged to three points lower.

Futures closed steady, unchanged to 5 lower. October, 10.51@52; December, 10.55@65; January, 10.59; March, 10.65@66; May, 10.72@73; July, 10.78. Spot steady; middling, 10.90.

Oct. opened 10.56; Dec. 10.60; Jan. 10.66; March 10.73; May 10.78; July 10.85.

Notwithstanding the apparent absence of October notices, there was further liquidation in that position and switching to later deliveries. These offerings were absorbed by the trade, however, and the early market held steady within a range of 3 or 4 points. At the end of the first hour December was selling around 10.61 and the general list 1 to 5 points net higher.

Brokers with Japanese connections were said to be among the best buyers at the opening here.

There was a moderate business in October and December deliveries later in the morning but trading otherwise was quiet. Prices sagged off to about yesterday's closing quotations with December ruling around 10.57c at midday when the general list was about net unchanged to three points lower. There were continued reports of a good spot demand in the south and part of the buying here was attributed to price fixing.

Married men preferred, as these positions are responsible and we require no investment or deposit—but you must be reputable, and able to learn this work as taught. This is steady, profitable sales work, but our method of putting the prospect into the market for our invention is so unusual that you must be trained in it. While learning, new men must be satisfied on earnings of $35.00 to $45.00 per week, but later can increase this substantially. Previous experience not important because our method is so unusual, but applicants must be willing to work hard and study to qualify for the higher incomes.

Electric Power Production Has More Than Seasonal Rise—Steel Output Is Shade Lower.

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 25. — Rising tendencies predominated on the Stock Exchange today, although advances were modest and the day's highs were shaded somewhat during the final hour when trading turned dull. The closing tone was steady to firm. Sales approximated 1,150,000 shares.

The commodity trend was a zigzag affair with final results about a standoff. After an uneven start, wheat finally got going and turned in the best performance among grains, although only one month did anything worth while. Cotton was a bit higher during the forenoon under foreign buying, but turned around when the demand dried up and finished mostly unchanged to a trifle lower. Corporate bonds were higher. Foreign exchanges did little either way.

Among shares finishing in the plus column with gains of small fractions to around a point or so included American Telephone, Western Union, Radio preferred "B," Santa Fe, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Delaware & Hudson, Allied Chemical, General Electric, International Harvester, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Steel, American Can, American Smelting, Libbey-Owens-Ford, Thatcher Mfg. and Curtiss-Wright.

Some unusual moves were made by a few specialties. Virginia Carolina Chemical pfd rose 10 points on rumors that part of the issue, on which there are accumulated dividends, would be called for redemption. American Chain preferred got up more than 9 points unaccompanied by any specific news developments. The common stocks of both these concerns were a trifle higher.

Late news included estimates of the Great Lakes Advisory Board that 31 per cent more freight cars would be required in that area during the fourth quarter than was needed in the same period a year ago and resumption of dividends on Barnsdall Corp. with the declaration of a quarterly payment of 15 cents and a special of 5 cents.

Wheat closed firm more than a cent a bushel higher, while corn was ⅝ of a cent lower to 1 cent higher and oats were about unchanged. Cotton was unchanged to 25 cents a bale lower.

In foreign exchanges, British sterling declined ¼ of a cent to $4.92¾ and French francs were .00⅝ of a cent lower at 6.59⅝ cents.

News of the Day.

Although news from Europe was not calculated to create any great outbreak of bullish enthusiasm, the fact that most all financial markets in London, Paris and Berlin kept pointed upward was taken to mean than there were no fresh developments of a pressing unfavorable character on the international horizon. A good demand was reported in London for gilt-edged securities and Wall street houses with European connections were said to be buyers here.

Mid-week business reviews were, with few exceptions, of a favorable nature. Car loadings of carriers thus far reporting for last week held up well, and the statements of three prominent Northwestern Railroad heads that traffic was improving were accompanied by buying orders for some of the rail shares.

Extension of yesterday's gain in some of the leading aircraft stocks attracted attention. Curtiss-Wright "A" and common were all over the tape during the first hour and there was smart interest in United Aircraft.

Overnight Developments.

A variety of overnight news developments claimed attention before the market opened. The European situation showed no important change from the previous day.

Electric power production, one of the most important barometers of industry, lent encouragement to those who look to business itself to provide the next important stimulant by showing a more than seasonal rise in the week ended Sept. 21. The fact that all major geographical regions of the country reported increases was regarded as significant.

The weekly review of the steel industry by "Iron Age" found that the automobile industry's delay in getting into production on new models was holding back steel orders and adversely affecting production which has dipped to 51½ per cent this week from 52 per cent in the preceding week. Steel scrap remained unchanged.

RAIL HEADS ON TRAFFIC

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25. — The heads of three important Northwestern railway systems reported that traffic on their lines made a good showing in August.

Charles Donnelly, president of Northern Pacific, said his road more than covered its fixed charges in August, although earnings ran slightly below a year ago.

Ralph E. Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, declared that gross revenues showed a gain over last year, although carloadings were lower. The road had a surplus after charges for the month.

W. P. Kenney, head of the Great Northern, reported a surplus after charges of approximately $1,200,000 for the month. It was understood that Kenney, while here, will confer with banking interests on Great Northern's refunding plans for the $105,000,000 bond maturity of July 1, 1936.

STEEL INGOT OUTPUT SHADING REPORTED

Auto Industry's Delay in Getting Into New Model Production Blamed.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—"The automobile industry's delay in getting into production on new models is holding back steel orders and adversely affecting steel production, which has dipped from 52 to 51½ per cent of capacity," says the Iron Age. "District operations are off one point to 59 per cent at Chicago and two points to 55 per cent in the valleys, but have risen one point to 71 per cent in the lower Ohio River area. In other producing centers output is substantially unchanged.

"Though automotive demand, in the aggregate, is slowly improving, round-lot orders for the new models have not yet appeared. It had first been thought that 1936 assemblies would get under way early this month but, as is customarily the case, late alterations in models have held back production programs. The two leading makers of low-priced cars are expected to launch their assemblies of new cars next week and others plan to follow in quick succession, but whatever the time may be when motor car output rebounds the outlook for the fourth quarter is regarded as most promising, current estimates placing production for that period at 750,000 cars and trucks.

"Confidence in automotive prospects accounts for the continued strength of the scrap markets in the face of a rather general suspension of mill buying. The 'Iron Age' scrap composite remains for the third week at $12.75 a gross ton, its high for the year to date.

"The imminence of war abroad is, for the time being at least, reacting as a bearish, rather than a bullish, influence on scrap. Several vessels which had been loaded with scrap for shipment to Italy are being held at Eastern ports because of a sharp rise in insurance rates.

"Tin plate output continues at 55 per cent of mill capacity, despite clear evidences of ebbing demand. Damage to corn and tomato crops from excessive moisture has further cut down seasonally diminishing requirements and it is now feared that can companies may have to carry considerable stocks of tin plate into next year. The growing vogue of beer cans has not yet reached large enough proportions to affect tin mill schedules materially.

"Sheet production, strongly supported by miscellaneous demand, is holding at 70 per cent. Demand for both galvanized sheets and hot-rolled bars has been lifted of late by orders from consumers who will gain a price advantage by stocking before Oct. 1, in the case of bars anticipatory covering is limited mainly to smaller buyers, since large users, in a position to purchase at the new quantity discounts, gain nothing by ordering in advance of their needs. Buying of cold-finished bars has been stimulated by increased quantity extras effective Oct. 1 and by the growing needs of the machine tool industry.

"In the construction field, grade separation programs are slow in getting under way, but otherwise there is growing activity. Structural steel awards total 19,400 tons, compared wtih 14,750 tons a week ago. New projects of 11,250 tons compare with 9955 tons in the preceding week. Inquiries are still preponderantly for public work.

"Reinforcing steel lettings total 12,840 tons as against 5810 tons last week. A major share of the recent 83,700-ton order for the Los Angeles Water District is for delivery within a year.

"Awards of structural steel, plate work, reinforcing and sheet piling reported by the 'Iron Age' to date this year are maintaining their recently won margin over 1934, the total for the year being 919,032 tons and that for the corresponding period last year 886,837 tons.

"Railroad buying remains at low ebb. The Chesapeake & Ohio has entered the market for 21,842 tons of rails and 100 tons of track accessories, and the Santa Fe has announced that it will spend $3,500,000 on betterment of right-of-way for faster trains.

"Pig iron producers, particularly in the Great Lakes region, are now well booked for the fourth quarter. At Chicago the business taken to date in September is 3½ times the tonnage entered in March, the best previous month this year. The fuel market, regardless of the duration of the bituminous coal strike, is regarded as certain to strengthen. Though a substantial amount of coal is above ground and no acute shortage would be experienced for 30 days, final settlement between operators and miners, when it is reached, is expected to raise mine costs.

"The 'Iron Age' composite prices for pig iron and finished steel are unchanged at $17.84 a gross ton and 2.124c a lb. respectively. Steel producers have eliminated a separate classification for tube rounds, now selling that product on a hot-rolled bar base."

$20,000,000 Utility Refunding.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—A banking group headed by Lazard Freres & Co. offered an additional issue of $20,000,000 of first and refunding mortgage 4 per cent bonds due Dec. 1, 1964, of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. today.

The financing brings to $95,000,000 the total first and refunding mortgage 4 per cent bonds of Pacific Gas and Electric placed on the market since last spring.

The bonds were offered at 102, enabling the company to derive 100 per cent of the principal amount of the bonds, less accrued interest and certain expenses to be paid the underwriters.

Like former offerings, the present one is for the purpose of retiring other issues of the company or its subsidiaries bearing higher coupon rates.

OIL STOCKS DECREASE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—A Bureau of Mines reported stocks of domestic and foreign crude oil aggregated 307,319,000 barrels on Sept. 14, a decline of 1,562,000 barrels from the previous week's total.

Domestic crude stocks fell off 1,732,000 barrels, but this was partially offset by a gain of 170,000 in foreign crude.

A substantial jump in crude production was disclosed for the week ending Sept. 14 by reports from the industry, along with a decline in imports and a comparatively small advance in crude runs to stills. The week's total demand averaged 3,141,000 barrels daily, comprising 2,815,000 barrels produced, 103,000 imported and 223,000 taken from stocks. The demand was said to be only slightly below the weeks of July and August. Crude runs to stills were estimated at 2,700,000 barrels daily, or about 45,000 barrels over the previous week's average.

Republic Steel Merge Complete

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—T. M. Girdler, chairman and president of the Republic Steel Corporation, today announced that the merger of Republic and Corrigan McKinney Steel Co. has been formally competed.

Girdler also made it known that Donald B. Gillies, who was president of the Corrigan McKinney Co., will be a vice-president and director of the Republic company.

It will be possible, Girdler's announcement said, for Republic to pay dividends on the new prior preference stock "as earnings justify; that prior preference stockholders have the advantage of the conversion privilege and that common stockholders will benefit because the plan has reduced the amount of stock outstanding senior to the common."

HESSIAN FLY MENACE TO NEW WHEAT CROP

Infestation Is Greatest Since Drouth Years, Federal Entomologist Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The Hessian fly is reported to be threatening serious trouble for wheat growers in the Middlewest.

Because of wet, chilly weather early in the summer when the fly hatched, said Dr. P. N. Annand, Federal entomologist, infestation in the Middlewest is the greatest since before the recent drouth years.

Unless conditions next spring are highly unfavorable to the fly, he said the most serious trouble since 1929 and 1930 can be expected.

Nothing can be done by farmers now to avoid damage to their small grains next spring except to take care to observe the fly-free dates for planting wheat this fall, Dr. Annand said. The dates vary in different areas of the winter wheat belt from about Sept. 10 to 15 in northern areas to close to the middle of October in southern parts of the belt.

While this year's weather has been favorable to a new Hessian fly threat, Annand said the balance really had swung to a more favorable situation than for several years so far as insect damage was concerned.

The same weather which increased this fall's infestation of Hessian fly reduced the grasshopper and chinch bug threats. Except in an area comprising Eastern Iowa, northeastern Missouri and part of Illinois, Annand said chinch bug infestation is not expected to be serious this fall.

Surveys now are under way to determine the extent both of grasshopper and chinch bug infestation but the entomologist said he expected little damage from them next year unless there is a hot, dry spring.

This year's wet weather, however, is expected to show an increase in spread of the corn borer which already has moved into some sections of Eastern Wisconsin.

AUTO ENGINE TESTED FOR USE IN CHEAP FAMILY-TYPE PLANE

Ordinary 6-Cylinder Motor of 88 Horsepower Hooked to Propeller.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25. — The low-cost family type airplane was a step nearer realization today with a report to the Bureau of Air Commerce of satisfactory tests of an automobile engine for aircraft.

Because of its lower cost the bureau has been interested in adapting automobile engines to the small, medium-priced planes with which it is now experimenting. In order to get exact data, an aeronautics school made exhaustive tests.

An ordinary six-cylinder engine developing 88 horsepower at 3800 revolutions per minute was mounted on a block just as it arrived from the factory. It was hooked to an airplane propeller with six fabric belts and run for 300 hours in the open under varying weather conditions and at various speeds.

According to the report, the engine functioned perfectly except for one minor break in a timing gear. The belt drive gave only a 3 per cent slippage.

AIR LINE FROM AMERICA TO AUSTRALIA CONSIDERED

Planes From U. S. Would Meet British Ships in New Zealand.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Sept. 25.—Harold Gatty, navigator for the late Wiley Post on a globe-girdling flight in 1931, told the New Zealand Government yesterday that Pan American Airways of the United States was prepared to establish a regular Honolulu-to-Auckland service, by way of Kingman Reef and Pago Pago, providing a satisfactory basis for operation could be reached with New Zealand.

Today the British Pacific trust, with which Lord Sempill, British aviation authority, is associated, announced it was prepared to invest $5,000,000 in a far-reaching development of Australian-New Zealand airlines.

This amount includes $500,000 to back Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith in the establishment of a new Australian-New Zealand air service which, it was understood, might link with Pan American Airways.

These developments follow the Australian Prime Minister's announcement replying to the Peninsular and Orient chairman's declaration that the Union Steamship Co. would abandon the Pacific unless the British Empire governments drastically checked American subsidized shipping lines. The Prime Minister suggested that Australia and New Zealand preferred a friendly conference with the Matson Line and American interests on the subject and the conference is to be held in London.

Fine New Jail.
Mussolini Proceeds.
Easy to Buy.
Who Is the Man?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1935.)

NOT much Ethiopian news; you could hardly expect it with our own white-black prize-ring war competing. Whatever happens Ethiopian tribesmen will benefit. The Emperor, Haile Selassie, is working on reforms, doing away with abuses that Mussolini pointed out and promised to cure.

Yesterday he opened a substantial concrete jail outside of Addis Ababa to replace the old jail. There, according to Karl von Wiegand's cablegram, "live prisoners sometimes remained chained to those who had died for days."

In ancient days, when a galley slave died, they cut his hand off at the wrist to free him from the chain, threw him overboard, chained in a live one. After this, all dead Ethiopian prisoners are to be removed promptly.

Mussolini was planning to give the Ethiopians shoes, macaroni, good cheese and regular wages if they worked. The Emperor, who may get ahead of Mussolini in civilizing efforts, rode personally to open the new jail, "in his silver and purple British-built automobile, with a footman standing in the rear." Thousands lined the roads to cheer.

The Emperor also has ordered off the streets the miserable debtors who were chained together, and unfortunate lepers soliciting alms in pity of their deformities.

Ethiopia's Emperor is constantly recruiting new soldiers and says he will have a million horses, mules and camels to transport warriors and supplies.

The Government pays cash for the animals, because taking them by force without payment would make the farmers angry and they would not fight. Horses cost $20, mules, $35, good camels, $40.

Berlin says the Nazi party plans, forcibly, to buy out all Jewish firms and businesses, suggesting that "ambitious Aryan business men will get great bargains." One idea is to allow "Aryan" employes to take over Jewish businesses with Government backing. They might take it over, but what about running it? Anybody may buy a business, making it pay is another job.

The Republican Committee will have "an important meeting" now, a really big first-class "bang-up" meeting in December, to put "pep" into the 1936 campaign.

The question is "who is your man?"

Americans want to yell for SOMEBODY.

They have not been trained to yell for an idea.

WHO IS THE MAN, what is his name?

Gen. Johnson, just leaving that New Deal Works Administration in New York, thinks he knows the Republican "man." He says "unbalanced budgets, soft money and unplanned planned public works threaten the Roosevelt Administration," and "if they are not killed, this country is headed straight to Hoover, and that would be a catastrophe."

A young man, just back from Boston where he had placed a relative in Harvard, tells of a moving picture crowd that "raised the roof" when former President Hoover was seen and heard speaking in favor of the United States Constitution.

In Cleveland yesterday, Cardinal Hayes, acting as personal representative of Pope Pius XI, dedicated the Seventh National Eucharistic Congress with these words:

"May this congress prove a mighty prayer that the menacing clouds of war may be dissipated by the radiant Prince of Peace."

More than 100,000 lined the streets in honor of the church dignitary from New York, first American prelate ever chosen to represent the person of the Pope on such an occasion.

Something that might agitate friends in Japan: Tokio reports the vast province of Western China, Sinkiang, with 580,000 square miles of territory, and only 2,000,000 population, planning to become a republic and join the Soviet republics affiliated with Moscow.

There might be seed for another war there. A few such pieces breaking off to join the Russians "and escape the Japanese, whom the Chinese hate," would be annoying for Japan.

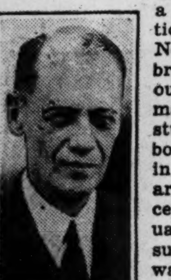
THE Heat Waves

By Ely Culbertson

I HAVE yet to meet a bridge expert who is not devastatingly conceited. Our bridge prima donnas have not even the redeeming feature of being temperamental. Most of them are simply and tremendously conceited in a cold, mathematical, clammy way. Now, conceit in bridge is a dangerous thing, I have made a profound study of conceit both in theory and in practice. There are only a few exceptional individuals who can survive the heat waves of conceit without serious damage to themselves or to those around them.



Ely Culbertson

In bridge it is easy to become conceited, even for a moron, because many of its mental operations are of the perfect but picayune type. It is an obvious, petty kind of perfection. If you add two and two correctly there can be no argument about the result. It is not only good but perfect. In bridge, especially in the play of the hand, a player who correctly counts up to 13, draws some obvious inferences as to the position and number of cards in opponents' hands, or takes an occasional peek, is quick to acquire a sense of perfection. Such people have no right to be conceited, especially considering that most of our experts have no sense of humor whatsoever, and can laugh only at others (usually at me). Only those who are humble have the right to be conceited. And the greater their conceit the greater must be their humility of spirit.

That is why I am so profoundly humble.

If I compare myself to most of the so-called champions or experts, I know I am hot stuff, but when I recollect all the atrocious bids and plays I have made, I enjoy eating a big chunk of humble pie as a steady diet.

Some of my friends complain about the changes in the new Culbertson system, model 1935, as compared with my ideas of several years ago. They admit that these changes are a great improvement, both from the standpoint of expert play and simplicity but, they say, why didn't Ely think about them before? Now, that is a funny question. I wish I had had some of these new, brilliant ideas long ago, I would then not have to admit, before millions of players, my abject limitations. Alas, I myself have to learn every day, and the reason I so often falter in my steps toward the goal of perfection is that I am naturally stupid. In fact, the one consolation that keeps me from committing suicide on the grounds of abysmal stupidity is the thought that the other experts also are stupid. They are perfect, and being perfect they have nothing to learn, nor can they change, for a change is an admission of previous failure.

Experts at Their Worst.

Experts are supposed to know to unblock—that is, play an unnecessarily high card so that later their partner will have a chance to win a trick and get the lead. But in a tournament in New York, recently, two experts were too greedy.

	♠A K 8 7 5 4 ♥A 7 ♦A K 3 ♣A K
♠Q 10 2 ♥Q 10 8 4 ♦10 9 7 ♣9 6 2	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠J 6 ♥9 5 3 2 ♦Q 6 4 ♣10 8 5 3
	♠9 3 ♥K J 6 ♦J 8 5 2 ♣Q J 7 4

South played the hand at six no trump, and West opened the 4 of hearts. Had South paused to make a plan before playing, he would have seen that to make six no trump he needed a favorable break in spades. North must lose one spade trick, but all his other cards are winners, since his small diamond will go on South's good clubs. But South, trying to pick up an easy trick in hearts, played North's 7 of hearts on West opening 4 of hearts, instead of the ace hearts. Thus he knocked out his one re-entry. He had to lose a spade and a diamond trick.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

QUESTION — If you have two biddable suits in your hand, which should you bid first?

ANSWER—As a rule, you should bid the longer suit first. If both suits are of the same length, then you should bid the higher ranking first. Thus, with ♠A-K-x-x and ♦A-x-x-x-x, bid the diamonds; with ♠A-x-x-x-x and ♦A-K-x-x-x bid the spades.

Clean Radiators

Clean your radiators before the heat is in them, if possible, as they will be much easier to handle. After a thorough cleaning with the necessary radiator brush why not brighten them up with a coat of paint? Radiators are so often neglected and give a nice room a shabby appearance.

Succotash

One cup cooked lima beans
Two cups cooked corn
One-fourth teaspoon salt
One-fourth teaspoon sugar
One-fourth teaspoon pepper
One-third cup cream

The Government Sponsors Nursery Schools

By MARGUERITE MARTYN

DR. GRACE LANGDON . . . head of Emergency Nursery School Organization.

NURSERY schools a short time ago were thought of as an advantage to be enjoyed only by children of the privileged classes. Now a paternalistic Government with funds at its command and socially minded administrators at its head perceives that the children of the poor are the ones most in need of this earliest training and, no sooner does it come to that conclusion than it puts it into effect. Under Harry Hopkins' division of the WPA, nursery schools have become a part of the relief program.

Started under the FERA partly as a means of employing teachers out of work and partly as a child welfare measure among families on relief, these schools are providing just what the National Association for Nursery Education always has contended, that this type of training should be available to all children between the ages of 2 and 4, whether rich or poor, on in between. It is hoped by this group of educators and associated child health and mental specialists which meets in convention here Oct. 30, that the demonstration afforded by the Government project will give impetus to the adoption of nursery schools in all public and private school systems.

Dr. Grace Langdon, head of Emergency Nursery School organization under the PWA came to St. Louis to address the child welfare division of the American Legion on this phase of its program and thank that organization for its co-operation in establishing many nursery schools over the country.

State and Federal relief funds pay the teachers' salaries, provide food and some equipment. The schools are sponsored by local public school systems and local charitable agencies are, in most places, depended upon to furnish buildings, heat and light and some supplementary services. Missouri has 20 of these schools in operation, two of them in St. Louis, one at the O'Fallon School, Fifteenth and Cass, the other at the Urban League, Garrison and Delmar, for Negro children. Miss Christine Glass, who for 10 years has conducted a private nursery school at 829 Union boulevard has been the State supervisor under the FERA.

BEFORE a dinner party at Miss Glass' residence, Dr. Langdon paused further to spread the gospel of nursery schools.

"Nursery schools are important—we think the most important period of education," she said, "because they take the child at the most critical period of its physical and mental development. It is between the ages of two and four that the basic patterns of personality are fixed. If there are physical defects we can catch them while they can still be corrected. By vaccinating and immunizing children at this age instead of waiting until they start to kindergarten, two or three years of hazards against the contagious diseases of childhood are avoided. If there are behavior problems and maladjustments it is not too late to deal with them.

"Nursery schools are important to the community also from an economic standpoint. Build fundamental social habits and you reduce the emotional hazards which later may lead to juvenile delinquency. The introduction of fundamental mental habits, self-reliance and self-help as emphasized in nursery schools, has its influence on grades when a child comes into public schools, thus mitigating the expense of repeaters.

"The play habits a child learns in a nursery school are going to be of value to him, especially now that we are coming into more leisure. He will have more interests, know how to employ himself more profitably. Playing and associating with other children, he learns something of social relationships which will help him later in community relationships. Such training among his peers is denied a child reared alone or even reared with brothers and sisters not his own age.

"Then, nursery school training leads to a happier family life. It relieves the stress of constant companionship and makes for an enrichment of life that justifies the whole thing. Nursery schools have proved a most effective means of parent education. All parents can't be specialists, but seeing the transformation of their children under the unemotional, objective guidance of nursery schools, parents are inclined to come and consult with the specialists, inquire as to how these changes have been brought about.

"The nursery school is proving a great co-ordinating agency between education and welfare. Enlisting as we do the interests of child specialists in every branch of child welfare, the pediatricians, the nutritionists, the psychologists, the psychiatrists, means the employment of the latest scientific knowledge. It would seem to be the last step to take in education and child conservation, and yet I would include another step, pre-parental training."

ANSWERING a popular objection to nursery schools, that they replace the home and relieve the mother of her rightful responsibilities, Dr. Langdon said, "That is not the intention. They are only supplementary to home training.

"There is little enough home life. Children are crowded into small quarters from which they can only tumble out into the dangers of the street. It is from emotional stresses induced by these conditions that nursery schools are rescuing the children of the poor."

Miss Glass' school in the old Blossom mansion looks out over half a city block of its own wooded lawns. It was remarked that her school, patronized by the children of the well-to-do, must present a very different picture from those she has been visiting over the State limited to the children of families on relief, but she insisted the two situations present similarities. "The poor little rich children suffer as much mentally from over-indulgence, over-protection and security as the poor do from actual economic needs."

"Another objection raised to nursery schools," added Dr. Langdon, "is that until a few years ago we got along very well without them. The answer to that is, should we do without electric lights because we grew up under coal oil lamps and without automobiles because our forefathers drove horses? It is largely because of these mechanistic influences that we have not enough family life and require scientifically studied methods of adjustment to replace them."

Dr. Langdon was for 10 years on the staff of Teachers' College of Columbia University, New York, as instructor in child development and parent education. She now commutes between her headquarters in the United States Department of Education, Washington and New York, where she maintains a consultation service on parental problems.

Miscellaneous Problems of Social Usage

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

PLEASE tell me whether you, like other New Yorkers, write simply New York on an envelope with no further explanation of its whereabouts? I think the practice is very presumtuous and it would be just as sensible for others to omit the names of states following other largest cities.

Answer: I agree that it would be just as sensible. Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, and Boston would certainly be enough for these and all the other great cities. When there are several cities of the same name, then their states are obviously necessary. Or when the cities are smaller than the leading ones. Writing New York only once is not presumtuous; the repetition of the same name is the height of senselessness and wasted effort. It would be still more senseless to add the state when writing in these cities or their environs. I don't, however, approve of town because a letter missent is lost. Sometimes in my own case when I want to answer a letter, I can't because I have no idea (if the post mark is blurred) where the sender lives.

Dear Mrs. Post: Recently we had a death our family. The other day when returning home from a walk my mother found a visiting card in the mail box, left by a woman who is a member of our church, but with whom only my brother has more than formal acquaintance. What should mother do? There was no message of any sort written on her card.

Answer: Undoubtedly she left the card in sympathy even though she wrote nothing on it. Although not really necessary, it would be polite for your mother to write on her own visiting card, "Thank you for your sympathy," and mail it.

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you suggest the correct form for the professional cards of the president of an educational institution—who is also a doctor of divinity?

Answer: The Rev. John C. Elder, D. D., and underneath in smaller type, president of Blank University.

Dear Mrs. Post: Should a doctor of medicine write M. D. after his signature on professional letters?

Answer: On his office paper, which should have his name and degree, he signs the name of John Squills. But even so there is no impropriety in his signing his name John Squills, M. D., when he writes to strangers. To those who know him personally he would naturally omit M. D.

How to Apply Shellac

Shellac, used as an interior finish, especially where it is desired to retain the natural color of the wood, should be applied in thin coats, and given ample time to dry. The first two coats may be applied six hours apart, and two days should be allowed between additional coats. It does not require rubbing, except, perhaps, after every third or fourth coat.

Discarded Bedspreads

Worn bedspreads are handy to cover the springs under the mattress to protect it from the wire. It means much less wear on the mattress and likewise much less dirt.

Kerosene will soften shoes and boots that have become hardened by water.

The Importance Of Beauty Aids To Womanhood

Personal Appearance Is Vital Consideration for Happiness.

By Elsie Robinson

THEY'RE curing insanity with lipsticks and marcels.

No, I'm not joking. Beauty parlors have been installed in many American insane asylums and tangled minds are straightening under the operator's skilled fingers.

Elsie Robinson

And why not? What's sanity? The attitude of a self-respecting mind that has lifted itself above savagery and is eager to play the game with its kind.

What's insanity? The fear and fury and indifference of a mind which has lost its bearings and is no longer able to play the game.

Women need beauty because they must build beauty.

Since Eve first plaited roses in her hair and made a home for Adam in a cave, women have put life in order and made it beautiful.

Women wear beauty as a plant wears flowers—and for exactly the same reason—as a lure that life may be carried on. And for that reason women put beauty into their homes—that life be carried on with greater fineness and pride.

Women hunted food for the soul.

And when a woman ceases to care for beauty you may be very sure that she is sick in the very foundations of her life.

Women should delight in lovely shining hair, soft, fragrant skin, dainty clothes. They should be proud of these things, and from their pride in their own beauty they should build more beauty around them.

Much of our married misery and melancholy would be lifted if every woman could have a pretty new dress at least once a month and go to a beauty parlor at least every two weeks.

And the moral of this is: Get your wife that new fall outfit, Jim. It will pay big dividends.

Russian Dressing

One-third cup stiff mayonnaise
One tablespoon chopped pickle
Two olives, chopped
One tablespoon catsup
Two tablespoons chilli sauce
One teaspoon lemon juice
One-eighth teaspoon salt

Mix ingredients and chill. Serve on lettuce or other vegetable salads.

A Menu With Recipes

By Gladys T. Lang.

Clear tomato soup
Different veal cutlets
Riced sweet and Irish potatoes
Lettuce and cucumber salad
Individual angel cakes

Clear Tomato Soup.

One quart can of tomatoes.
One tablespoon of sugar.
Four cloves.
One tablespoon of butter.
One chopped onion.
One pint of hot water.
One teaspoon of salt.
Eight whole black peppers.
One tablespoon of chopped parsley.
One tablespoon of cornstarch.

Put the tomatoes, water, sugar, salt, cloves and peppers on to boil. Place the butter in a small sauce pan and when it bubbles add the onion and parsley and cook slowly for about five minutes. Add the cornstarch and, when well mixed, stir into the tomatoes. Let summer for 10 minutes, then strain.

Different Veal Cutlets.

Three tablespoons of olive oil.
One eggplant.
Two cups of sour cream.
One-half cup of chopped mushrooms.
Parmesian cheese.
Salt and pepper.

Sprinkle both sides of cutlets with salt, pepper and flour. Heat three tablespoons of olive oil in a heavy skillet, add cutlets and cook on both sides until brown, about one-half hour. While cooking cut a peeled eggplant in squares and saute in a little butter with some minced onion. On top of the cutlets place the sauted mushrooms, eggplant and sour cream. Over all sprinkle grated Parmesian cheese. Cover, and let simmer for 30 minutes longer or until the meat is tender.

Riced Sweet and Irish Potatoes.

Boil two large sweet potatoes in their jackets with a little salt. Peel and boil in salted water four medium-sized white potatoes. Drain. While still hot rub Irish potatoes through a ricer in center of a round pyrex dish and around edge forming a border rice the peeled sweet potatoes. Dot generously with butter and run under flame to let the butter melt.

Lettuce and Cucumber Salad.

Place chapons in bottom of salad bowl (chapons are crusts of dry or toasted bread rubbed lightly with garlic, then broken in pieces). Wash, drain and dry a crisp head of lettuce, arrange in a bowl with cucumbers cut in very thin slices and toss all together with a well seasoned French dressing.

Individual Angel Cakes.

One-half cup of cake flour.
Three-fourths cup of egg whites.
Three-fourths cup of sugar.
One and one-fourth tablespoons of cold water.
Pinch of salt.
Three-fourths teaspoon of cream of tartar.
One teaspoon of vanilla.

Beat the egg whites until they stand in peaks, but not dry with the water, salt and cream of tartar. Add one-fourth of the sugar to this, a little at the time, then the flour and remaining sugar which has been sifted three or four times is folded in gently but thoroughly. Pile lightly in small paper cup cake cases, filling two-thirds full and place in a slow oven until cakes have risen, then increase the heat and bake about 20 minutes. When cool remove paper cases.

Broiled Bananas

Three firm bananas
One tablespoon lemon juice
One-eighth teaspoon salt

Peel bananas and cut in halves lengthwise. Arrange on baking pan and sprinkle with juice and salt.

Proper Feeding For Children Of School Age

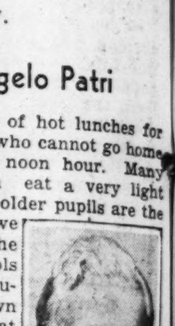
By Angelo Patri

I AM in favor of hot lunches for the children who cannot go home during their noon hour. Many school children eat a very light breakfast. The older pupils are the more such we find until in the high schools many of the students are known to eat nothing at all until lunch time.



Angelo Patri

The body needs food early in the day. Food supplies heat and energy and the inclination to activity. The child who goes to school without breakfast, or with a very light one, is cold and tired and without desire or power to work by half past 10 in the morning. That means a great loss of power.

We ought to do our best to get the children to eat their cereal and toast and prunes before starting, but if we fail there, we can certainly see that they have a hot and nourishing lunch. Nature will help us here. She will prod them with pangs of hunger and creepy chills and general uneasiness until they eat.

It is important that the food be warm. It is more appetizing to begin with, more comforting to the stomach, easier on the digestion. During the cold weather soup becomes a popular lunch dish. A bowlful of good soup, not the pale, watery stuff of the cheap restaurant, but the sturdy broth of the diet kitchen, is what is needed. A baked potato with butter, a couple of spoonfuls of vegetables, maybe apple sauce, or cookies, or both tops off a good school luncheon.

This noon meal ought to be light enough not to take too heavy a toll on the energy of the child. The time and energy necessary for the digestion of a heavy meal cuts down school efficiency. Make the meal light and nourishing and have it hot. If the child can go home for it so much the better.

Children need a bit of candy during the school day, preferably at the mid morning recess. I am not suggesting lollypops for the first graders. They get too many as it is. I would like to give each little one in the elementary schools a nibble of candy, say two candied almonds, one little square of sweet chocolate, maybe a fruit drop, just a nibble of good clean candy, at the mid morning recess. It will stimulate them nicely, make them feel good inside. The older ones can have theirs with their lunch.

In the villages where there are no lunchrooms in the schools and where children must carry lunch, it is customary for a committee of mothers to take charge of the lunches, serve them hot and fragrant to the children in the school. The teacher helps, of course. And the children do their share of the work.

Feeding children properly is half the battle in rearing them properly. Many a mother has spent years of her precious life in preparing formulas, mixing food, balancing menus only to see all her work wiped out by the poor lunches eaten in the nearby shops at noon time. I believe that supervision and service of children's food is as much the duty of the school as any other activity. You can't teach a hungry child. You cannot make a good citizen out of a hungry child no matter how hard you try. Then why not simplify the business and make success certain by feeding him a nourishing hot lunch?

IF YOU AS My OPINI

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I READ your column quite regularly, and admire the way you help people, both materially and spiritually, so it is not carping criticism I am about to offer—only a suggestion.

As you will see from the attached clipping, you refer to "Growing Into Life" as a book for girls (and boys, too), from which they may learn the "facts of life." If I am not mistaken, the author of the book you mention is de Schweinitz, and I have read it before sending it to the mother of a young nephew of mine. It is the best book I know of, and should be in the hands of every adolescent. But—and here is my suggestion—it happens that I am at present reading David Seabury's "Growing Into Life," which is not, I take it, as useful and to the point as the other for the particular purpose for which you recommend it, although any intelligent person should gain much from reading it. Seabury's book may be considered "heavy going" by many adolescents, and they may become discouraged.

I also owe you a debt of thanks for advising me about how to get in touch with people who want translations done—but the word "busy" seems to be almost the only word in my vocabulary, and my only excuse.
M. E. K.

Thank you for your letter. I have given the name of the author, de Schweinitz, so often that I thought perhaps it would not be necessary to mention it again, right away. But this is the one I had in mind.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

DURING my school days, or rather since I was 18 and going to college I never had the difficulty which I am having now. Of course we had our regular yearly dances and with the bids I would receive from other friends my social life was well taken care of; but now what a different story.

I am out of college and working in a place where I come in contact with about 50 (what we might call datable) people but never a date out of them. What could have happened. Surely I must be as nice as I was at school (if not more cultured), but I surely don't get the invitations from the men whom I would accept as friends. But don't get me wrong, neither do I receive any from the other kind.

If I receive a bid from a friend of mine or if a crowd decides to go out dancing, then if I ask some one to go, whether it is going to cost them anything or not, they go. But why can't these same people ever think of something to ask me to?

Maybe if you gave her half a chance she would.

I AM a girl 12 years old and will be 13 in December. I am 4 feet 11 inches, and am in the eighth grade, and weigh 80 pounds. I want to know if I am big enough for my age and grade? Everybody else in the room is bigger and they dress so much older that I feel funny.

Do you think if I were invited to a party where they wear long dresses that I would get one or not go?

M. G.

You are a little under weight. You should really not weigh less than 105. I will send you my folder, "Gaining and Developing," if you will mail me a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Whether or not you suit the grade is a matter of mental, not physical, stature. If you are smart enough to be in a grade with older girls you shouldn't let that worry you; it is all the more credit to you.

As to the long dress, a medium length for your height would be all right, even if the others did wear their skirts longer.

Variations in The Mixing of Salad Dressing

By Margaret N. Pierce

CLEVER homemakers concentrate on salads to make summer meals and parties refreshing. They are the ones who realize that in no other type of service can richly colored fruits, crisp vegetables and cool, succulent greens show their charms to greater advantage. Here too, sea food and various meats combine with minute appetizers to make dishes of far-reaching appeal. So, when days are wilting and nights sultry, dishes of the salad type become increasingly popular.

The recipes which follow have been selected for the general types of salads and show simple variations. A plain French dressing may be deliciously blended in the following ways:

Curry French Dressing

One teaspoon salt.

One-eighth teaspoon white pepper.

One-eighth teaspoon paprika.

One-fourth teaspoon curry powder.

Two tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar.

One-half cup salad oil.

Combine dry ingredients, mix thoroughly with lemon juice or vinegar and add salad oil. Pour mixture into a bottle or shaker and shake until well blended. Shake again before serving. This recipe makes about one-half cup of dressing.

Mayonnaise lends itself well to various combinations with other foods. These are excellent for fruit salads:

One cup mayonnaise with one-fourth cup honey.

And for vegetable or sea food salads we recommend these:

One cup mayonnaise with one finely chopped hard-cooked egg, two tablespoons chopped pickle, one-fourth cup chili sauce, one teaspoon chopped onion and one tablespoon finely chopped green pepper.

One cup mayonnaise with one-half cup horseradish.

One cup mayonnaise with one-half cup chopped celery and cucumber, two tablespoons sour cream and two tablespoons chopped pimiento.

Fur Style The fur suit is a highlight of this fur-trimmed season, in dashing styles, with fur swagger coat or cape combined with woolen skirt or dress.

My First Days in the White House

The Supposed Reaction of Henry and Edsel Ford to the Plans for Sharing the Wealth.

By Huey P. Long

Chapter Nine.

HUEY LONG . . . "I issued a statement from the White House."

THE next afternoon's newspapers in screaming editorial headlines carried the news to a waiting populace that the barons of Wall street were content at last to accept democracy in America. Having conferred all morning with my Attorney-General and Solicitor-General, and finding they concurred in conclusions of the committee's attorneys that the Rockefeller Committee's plan was constitutional, I issued a statement from the White House approving its general outline, subject to some modifications on management and for a more effective distribution later. I praised the splendid co-operation of the committee's personnel in the Share Our Wealth program.

Some little while later Henry Ford and his son, Edsel, were announced in the old Lincoln study on the second floor of the White House. I exchanged the usual greetings with them.

"Mr. President," said Henry Ford, getting down to business at once, "my son and I came here tonight to tell you in person that we are accepting your Share Our Wealth program without reservation and without condition. We have been preparing for it ever since your election. Now, we have a plan by which we will share our own wealth. We bring it to you tonight for your approval. If it will interfere with the Government's plan for redistributing wealth, we will abandon it, and abide by whatever arrangement the Government sees fit to impose upon us."

"What is your plan, Mr. Ford?" I inquired.

"Mr. President, as you know, I have built up a vast organization, reaching into every state of the Union. Aside from my automobile factories around Detroit, we have assembling plants in scores of cities. We have agencies everywhere. We have ore mines, steel mills, glass works, and a vast assortment of other interests. It is a tremendous organization, and we were a little fearful that the Government's redistribution of our wealth would disrupt and destroy that organization. We hope that the Government will permit us to redistribute our own wealth so that we may keep this organization intact."

"How great is your wealth, Mr. Ford?"

"Mr. President, I cannot estimate it," replied Ford. "I actually mean that. It includes so many properties on which we have placed an arbitrary value. For instance, we construct a glass factory with materials manufactured in our own plants, using our own workmen. Its cost to us is $400,000. We figure it out that if we use the same machinery and the same man power in manufacturing automobiles, we would produce cars which would give us a profit of $300,000. Therefore, we place an arbitrary value on that glass plant of $700,000. On the other hand, if a private contractor had built the plant, he would have charged us $1,000,000. In prosperous times, the plant could be capitalized and sold for a million and a half, or two million dollars. During this depression, a private owner might have been glad to get rid of it for $500,000 and probably couldn't find a buyer at that price. Based upon the return on capital the plant might be valued at $100,000, its junking value, because we perhaps have not turned a wheel in it in the last eight months. Now we face the same tortuous process in fixing values on hundreds of our properties. So you see, Mr. President, it is almost impossible for us to place a definite estimate on our wealth, because so much of it is represented by physical property. We may be worth $200,000,000 under some conditions, and our properties may be worth a billion dollars under others."

"Well, what is your plan, Mr. Ford?"

"Both my son, Edsel, and I are content with the five-million-dollar limit. We want to keep that share of our properties. Now, we plan to retain control of our properties by dividing their ownership among long-term Ford employes. We propose to use the money invested outside the Ford organization to construct homes for loyal Ford employes not now owning their own homes. That will be a free gift to the Ford employes. We will build different homes for different types of employes, but we will provide at least a $5000 home for those not now owning homes. We own land now in the Detroit area, and we can build these homes at nominal cost by using our own materials and our own organization.

"We propose, further, to issue stock against the physical value of our properties, placing a fair capitalization—as fair as our economists can fix it—on each property, and issue stock against it. Then we propose to divide that stock among our workers. We believe that the loyalty of Ford workers will keep the Ford family in control of the Ford company for generations to come. Now, there may be some surplus left when we have finished the distribution of our wealth under this plan. The surplus would be turned over to the government."

"Splendid, Mr. Ford, splendid," I said. "I hope every rich man will follow your wonderful example. But bear in mind you will have to do all this before Congress passes the Share Our Wealth law, with its capital levy. Once that goes into effect, I doubt whether you could carry out your plan."

"How soon will that law be enacted, Mr. President?"

"Not for another 30 days," I replied.

"Oh, that will give us plenty of time," replied Ford. "Now, Mr. President, one thing more. Will you permit us to make the announcement of our plan in our own way, and when we deem it advisable?"

"Why, certainly, Mr. Ford. I'm so happy to have you co-operate with me that I shall place no obstacle in your path."

The Fords departed. I secretly longed to reveal their plan instantly to the public, because I knew it would set a splendid example to other men of bloated wealth; but I was content to let the Fords carry out their own plan in their own way.

A messenger from the House of Representatives brought a note to the White House requesting that I appear before that body and explain in detail certain questions relative to the Share Our Wealth legislation which I would propose. I responded by announcing that I welcomed the opportunity to address the House at 4 o'clock on the same afternoon, urging that members of the United States Senate be invited to be present. Contained in my official note of acceptance to make the address before the House of Representatives was the following:

I would ask that the House vary its customary rule so that all members of Congress, both of the House and the Senate, who desire to do so, may propound whatever questions they may wish. I would prefer, of course, as far as possible, these questions be submitted in writing.

At four o'clock in the afternoon, when I arrived to begin my address to the members of Congress, I hurriedly reviewed the questions which had been submitted to me in writing. There were probably 20 written questions. I soon saw that with the exception of three of them, my general address would answer the inquiries.

I spoke at some length—for a period of nearly three hours. In the course of my address I said:

We do not propose any division of property. We propose that no one man shall own too much, and that no one family shall have too little for comfort. There is a sane limit to the amount of water that a horse can drink; to the number of miles that a man can run; to the length of time which one can live. There is also a sane limit to the amount of wealth which it is healthy for one to own.

It may be that the proportions which I suggest are too high or too low, but for the present I ask the law-makers to provide that when a man gets enough wealth so that he has one hundred times as much as the average family in the country, then we say he has reached his limit. Our average wealth at normal values amounts to about $17,000 to each family. So we would say that when one possesses wealth amounting to $1,700,000, he has enough, and that for him to have more than that sum would mean that he has more business to handle than his two eyes and ears can safely manage, but, worse than that, he can have that much only by taking away from his neighbors something they need for comfort.

"Now, we propose that likewise we must not force a family to survive on too little. How much is too little? For the present we have proposed that no family should ever have less than the substantial home comforts of a value equal to one-third of the average family wealth. That is to say, the mother and children of every breadwinner have the right under our laws to expect not to fall further than two-thirds the distance below the average family wealth. In dollars and cents, at normal values based on our accepted average family wealth of $17,000, there would be no family in this country which would possess less than the reasonable home comforts and conveniences of a value of from $5000 to $6000, free of debt.

Now someone may say that the energy, ability and genius of a man whose fortune is limited to less than two million dollars are no longer alive unless he is permitted to accumulate more. Admitting that to be true, though I do not believe it, nevertheless it is better for this nation that it give hope and encouragement to the ambitions and aspirations of 125,000,000 more people rather than to excite the greed of 58. There are probably several millions of people whose genius will prove equal, if not superior, to the good that is to be found in the greed of 58.

There are, however, men in the Congress of the United States who have sacrificed fortunes to serve the people. In the yellow fever epidemics there were men who gave their lives for the cause of science. If America for its greatness must depend on exciting super-greed for the sake of modern and greater development, then we have set a bad example to the great inventors, to our great scientists, and to those of us here who managed the country for a mere living.

And now it is further necessary that I say the time may come when we should declare that a guarantee of one-third of the average is not sufficient for our country's better development. If that time should come, it may be necessary to lower the amount which the big man would be allowed to own. It might so happen that in the future the limit of $1,700,000 to each fortune would be reduced to $1,000,000 or even less than that. For instance, we may have so many more people worth a million dollars or worth a half-million dollars than we have now, because money will be so much easier to make, that we will have to lower our limit. Whatever that limit may be, we will never allow our people to be deprived of the substantial comforts of life.

Now we will further propose that the earnings of no family shall be less than one-third the earnings of the average family, which means that no family income shall be less than $2500 per year, based upon what the best experts of our country estimate if all are allowed to produce. In order to accomplish this we must establish a limit to the amount of earnings which a big man may have. In that particular, we would say to begin with that not one should earn more than one hundred times the average family income, which would mean not more than $750,000 per year in earnings to any one man.

Something must be done about our debt structure and the burden of taxation. Our debts today, both public and private, amount to $262,000,000,000. Figured at an average interest rate of 6 per cent, the interest charges alone on this debt each year amount to $15,720,000,000. To this, if you will add the cost of taxation, each year the interest and taxes demand of the national income more than two-thirds of what has been made during the hard times. Something must be done to reduce the debt structure.

Wherever the Bible decrees a policy, undertaking to defy such a mandate of the Scriptures has never led to other than ruin for any nation. In endeavoring to carry this debt structure on the backs of the masses, this country invites certain ruin.

We will propose an actual old age pension adequate and sufficient to care for those who should be retired from the ranks of labor, without one having to take the pauper's oath, as the so-called Roosevelt legislation requires. Where the income of any person does not exceed $1000 a year or where the possessions of such persons do not amount to a value of $5000 they will be entitled to draw the old age allowance.

Care and attention will be given for the debts which we owe to our soldiers; for the education and training of the youth of this land; for national defense; but above all things, for the general upbuilding and preservation of the country, and for avoiding any foreign entanglements of any kind or nature."

As I was about to conclude, one member arose and asked:

"Would the President permit a question from the floor?"

"Certainly," I answered.

"My question is this: Since you limit the amount which one may own to $5,000,000 to start with, by this tax being collected every year fortunes will be reduced to approximately $1,700,000 to the person in a few years. How will there be any more big businesses; will this mean that all big business will have to be divided up, brick by brick?"

"No," I answered. "I thoroughly explained that point preceding the election, but I will take the time to explain it to you again. It is the same as it would be if a man died and left his property to be divided among his heirs. In this case, it so happens that many of the American people become the heirs instead of a few sons and daughters. We do not propose to break up big enterprises. All that we will do will be to provide that more people will share in the profits and ownership of big enterprises. In other words, instead of one man drawing down several million dollars out of the earnings in a year, the company will make just as much money as ever, but there will be thousands, maybe hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions of people drawing what formerly a few people drew in the way of profits. We do not care how big the business grows so long as it is efficient for the country. Our concern is that their ownership should not be concentrated in too few people, and that their profits should be shared by the people more widely."

A United States Senator arose and said:

"It seems that many of us will have to exercise a great deal of faith and hope."

"Yes, brother," I answered, "and in that connection it would not hurt if some of you would read the thirteenth Chapter, I Corinthians."*

The laws which Congress enacted not only redistributed wealth and income among the people, but the same laws also levied the taxes for the future support of the government in such a way that the wealth of the country would never again accumulate in a few hands. They likewise made simple and ample provision to insure the man at the bottom from ever owning less than the home and comforts of life which he was originally guaranteed, free of any debt.

Thus I had taken the first step to provide every man, woman and child with the proper food, clothing and shelter—as I had promised them in the campaign.

When the Congress had adjourned after passing the Share Our Wealth legislation, I immediately signed the bills and announced that they were the law of the land. The basis underlying most of the legislation was a perfect model to prevent future accumulations of property in the hands of a small number of people to such an extent as would impose consequent poverty upon the masses.

Five die-hard Senators staged a filibuster against the capital levy tax bill, which, while lasting less than two days, aroused such public sentiment as to leave it beyond doubt that the American people not only approved, but in whole heart expected and demanded the enactment of the Share Our Wealth legislation in toto.

A DOCTOR TALKS OF HEALTH

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Dr. Clendening

THE specialist in skin diseases has always been envied by his colleagues in other departments of medicine, because the troubles he treats are out where he can see them. He should be, and is able to make an exact diagnosis in 98 per cent of his cases; those in which the physical appearance of the disease follows characteristic lines.

The comparative disadvantage under which the internist suffers is easily appreciated. He has to say what is the matter with a liver, which is hidden from him by several layers of abdominal skin, fat and muscle, through which he can barely feel, let alone see.

But this especial advantage which the skin specialist has enjoyed is being challenged in many fields. All the exits and entrances and cul-desacs of the body now claim their especial tubes or periscopes so that the dark internal caves and intimate recesses of our human fabric have yielded one by one to the same close inspection which the dermatologist enjoys with the skin.

The stomach has been a rather difficult organ to inspect directly. True, for many years we have had a so-called gastroscope, a rigid steel tube which can be thrust in the stomach if the patient is sufficiently complacent and pliable, but the procedure is uncomfortable and unsatisfactory.

These disadvantages have been overcome by the invention of a flexible gastroscope by Dr. Rudolph Schindler, a visiting professor of medicine at the University of Chicago. This tube will bend, and hence does not make the patient as uncomfortable as examination with the stiff old-fashioned gastroscope. A series of mirrors and a light in the end make it into a flexible periscope.

Seen from the inside in the living patient, it is evident that the stomach practically divides itself into two compartments by means of a circular muscle. This has never been seen before, because when the stomach is viewed during an abdominal operation, the muscle is relaxed.

Various diseases of the stomach, such as ulcer, gastritis and mucous gastritis can be plainly seen. All of them have characteristic appearances. So has cancer of the stomach.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS.

READER: "Is boric acid a good eye wash, and should it be used daily? What is the cause of the eyeball looking yellow or partly so? What is the cause of one's upper lip being swollen in the morning?"

Answer: Saturated solution of boric acid is a standard eye wash and is very good. It should not, however, be used daily unless there is some indication for it. The eyeball may look yellow when there is a jaundice present, or sometimes in later years due to a deposit of fat. The reason for swelling of the upper lip in the morning cannot be answered completely satisfactorily. A possible cause is the condition known as angio-neurotic edema, closely allied to hives.

THERE'S MURDER IN THE AIR

A New Serial

By ROY CHANSLOR

Ruth Tyler Suffers From One of Her Psychic Attacks While Nat Benson Is at Her Home.

CHAPTER THREE.

"I WANT you to make—certain observations," Tyler said. "To do that, you will have to live here in the house with us. . . . And it is important that my daughter does not know why you are here. Is—is that satisfactory to you?"

"Yes," said Nat. "But it may take some arranging."

"I'll take care of that," said Tyler. "Let me see: Let us say that you are the son of an old friend. Your father's name was Nat too, eh? Let us say that he was a college friend. You are here looking for work—my guest. You will be on intimate terms with the family, of course. It will be perfectly natural for you to stay as long as necessary. Nobody can find a job nowadays."

> Ruth Tyler, blind daughter of former District Attorney Danel Tyler, is psychic. She fortells murders at the exact time they are being committed, but is powerless to give sufficient information to prevent them. These weird visitations come upon Ruth while she plays her violin and always at night. Mr. Tyler seeks the aid of Dr. Jan. Karask, celebrated psychiatrist, but the latter must go to Baltimore on another case, so he assigns his young assistant, Nat Benson, to the job, suggesting that Tyler give Nat only Ruth's background and let him find out the details himself. Nat arrives at the old Tyler home on East 79th Street at midnight. He is puzzled when Tyler tries to explain that his daughter is a mental case, but is not unbalanced.

"That sounds practicable enough," said Nat.

"I will explain briefly"—— Tyler began. Then he stopped, turning his head, as if listening. From somewhere in the house came the sound of music, the music of a violin. It was faint, but indescribably beautiful, haunting.

Tyler stood quite still, as if frozen, staring upward, toward the sound of the music. Then, abruptly, in the middle of a bar, the music ceased. Tyler turned swiftly toward Nat, his face drawn.

"Come!" he said. "Come!"

Then he strode from the room, Nat close at his heels. His long legs took the stairs, two steps at a time. Nat followed. Down the hall Tyler went, half-running now, Nat keeping pace just behind him. Before a door at the extreme end of the hall the man halted, raised his hand as if to knock.

Then he brought it down slowly, placed it on the knob and quietly opened the door. It was quite dark inside, and still. Tyler fumbled for the light-switch; there was a click and the lights came on. In the middle of the floor, facing them, a girl in negligee stood rigidly, a violin at her shoulder. The fingers of her left hand were on the strings; the bow drooped at her side in the other hand. Enormous dark eyes stared out of an alabaster face, a face filled with unutterable terror.

"Ruth!" Tyler cried huskily. "Ruth! What is it?"

The great eyes closed; the girl swayed toward Tyler. He took her in his arms, held her closely. She buried her face against his sleeve. She seemed incredibly small and fragile beside his tall figure. She trembled in his arms, drew herself closer to him.

"Ruth," he repeated, but very gently now. "What is it, dear?"

With one hand he tilted her face up toward his, smoothed back the long dark hair. She did not open her eyes. Again he repeated: "What is it, dear?" She opened her dark eyes slowly. To Nat, motionless in the doorway, they seemed to rest upon him. But she gave no sign of noticing his presence.

"I don't know," she whispered. "It began—as always. And then—it stopped! Oh, I don't know what it is!"

Nat stared into her eyes, so large, so fixed. There was still no sign in them. And then, with a shock, he realized that she was blind.

IN the big chair in the living-room, Nat sat waiting for Tyler. He had been there nearly an hour now, trying to compose himself, trying not to puzzle too much about the strange actions of the girl with the violin. What had caused the terror in her face? How could she, blind as she was, play the violin so exquisitely? For it had been exquisite, that fragment he had heard before the strange interruption.

In the grip of whatever emotion had possessed her, she had apparently not realized his presence there, in the doorway. Tyler, when she did not speak, had picked her up suddenly in his arms and carried her to the bed. And she had smiled up at him, then.

"It's no use—now, Father," she had said. "But I'm all right. Good night."

"No," he had said, "I'll stay here with you a bit."

He had glanced up then, at Nat, who had flashed him an inquiring look. Tyler had shaken his head, slowly, and by a movement of his hand had suggested that Nat wait below. So Nat waited, as patiently as he could.

Presently he heard a sound on the stairs, glanced up and saw Tyler's tall figure descending. The man came into the room wearily. He stood in the door, rubbing one side of his face with one of his lean hands. Then he took a chair, facing Nat.

"She is sleeping now," Tyler said.

Nat nodded, said nothing. The man stole a curious look at him.

"That was what I wanted you to observe," he said slowly. Then he shook his head. "But it—it was incomplete. What—what did you make of it?"

"Nothing," said Nat frankly. "Except that she seemed badly frightened."

"She was frightened," said Tyler. "She was terrified."

"What of?" said Nat.

"I wish you'd tell me," said Tyler. "But haven't you any idea—"

Tyler shook his head.

"I don't know," he said. "I hoped she would know, so that you could see—see the thing at work. But something happened. In a way I was relieved. . . . But it will come again. And I want you to be on hand when it does."

Nat explained. "Perhaps you'd better explain," he said.

"I—I'll try to tell you something about her," said Tyler. "She is a remarkable musician, as perhaps you noticed, even though she played only a few bars."

"Yes," said Nat. "It was—superb."

* * *

TYLER nodded and went on: "She's what they call a prodigy, I believe, has been since she was a child. Odius word, prodigy. But she has shown a remarkable talent for the violin from childhood."

"Im surprised that she isn't a very famous violinist," said Nat.

"She has never played publicly," said Tyler. "She's too delicate for that sort of thing. She's led a very quiet, sheltered life. Her mother died when she was born. She has always been blind. When her talent became evident, I gave up my practice, took her to Europe, where she studied under the greatest teachers. Most of them think it's a crime I won't permit her to do concert work."

"I think I can understand your feelings about that," said Nat. "One thing puzzles me. A blind violinist—does she play entirely by ear?"

"Not exactly," said Tyler. "She has a remarkable ear, can play anything she has heard. But she has a very complete musical library in Braille—and an almost incredible memory. She can read the music—then remember every note."

"That is extraordinary," Nat murmured.

"She's an extraordinary person," said Tyler.

"I can see that," said Nat. "Now, about this fear—"

Tyler hesitated.

"Dr. Karasc," he said, "feels that you should—start from scratch, as it were."

"He wants me to observe this thing at work?" said Nat. "I know; that is one of the tenets of his credo. To investigate every phenomenon at first hand, to take nothing from hearsay. Very well. I'll do my best, Mr. Tyler."

"No one can do more than that," said Tyler with a faint smile.

"One thing only," said Nat. "This—this fright—it has something to do with her playing the violin?"

"It has," said Tyler. "That is, it always comes when she is playing—and always at night."

Nat rose.

"I'd better be going now," he said. "I'll report in the morning."

"Oh," said Tyler. "But you must remain tonight!"

He routed out Raines, the old butler, who had gone to bed, and Raines showed Nat Benson to a large room on the top floor, about midway between the rooms of Tyler and the girl. He fetched him tan silk pajamas, slippers, a brocade dressing gown, a cellophane-wrapped tooth brush, dental cream and shaving materials.

A Discussion Of Instability Of Marriage

By the Rev. J. F. Newton

"ARE you going to be, soon, then? I'll promise not to tell if you don't want me to," said little Clarissa, in an Edith Wharton story, as she wound her arms about Susy's neck caressingly.

"Going to be divorced? Of course not! What in the world made you think so?" asked Susy in amazement, as she held her close. "Because you look so awfully happy." said Clarissa very simply.

Such talk in the nursery fills one with dismay, and it is not so rare as some imagine in an age when the difficulty of duty is a reason for shirking it; when we are soft, flabby and morally short of wind.

Today, if a thing is disagreeable we do not do it. Homes are wrecked, social life undermined, and children sent adrift, because "I was unhappy"; as in business laws are broken because a man must get on.

In one of our great cities divorces have increased 80 per cent in one year, in another, 72 per cent. It is appalling how glibly marriage vows are taken, and how lightly they are broken.

Nearly half of the divorces are obtained during the first five years of married life, and most of the other half in the silly season of life, between 48 and 60, when there is a letdown.

If divorces increase at the present rate, a child 10 years old today, will have a fifty-fifty chance of a permanent marriage when it grows up. No one can ponder such facts without a sense of misgiving.

Why should it be so? Is it because we are so touchy, so sensitively selfish, and have so many complexes, that we can hardly live with ourselves, much less with anyone else for very long?

Or is it due to the doctrine now in vogue that each must "live his own life," regardless, which makes it difficult to make adjustment in marriage, and unwilling to play give and take, because we want everything?

No matter; the facts stare us in the face, revealing a sad slump, a devastating depression which threatens the stability of the home and the security of the most precious assets of human life.

The Show Goes on As Quacky Duck Performs His Act

By Mary Graham Bonner

HOW the audience did laugh as the ducks came waddling out on the stage. They were certainly looking their best, and they had odd bits of ribbon and shawls and little jackets they had broug with them from Willy Nilly's Big Box That Held Things Just for Fun.

Mrs. Quack carried her parasol, her water lily leaf fan and her feathered hand bag which Mr. Quacko had given her on her last birthday.

"I think," said Willy Nilly, "there should be a waddling race first of all, and then I believe we should show these good people a fire drill."

So after the waddling race which was won by Quacky Duck, they a went back of the curtain and came forth again wearing their fire helmets, and carrying one of their smaller ladders and a hose.

"Now," said Willy Nilly, my good friends, ladies and gentlemen, boys and girls, I wish to introduce Mr. Quacko Duck, our fire chief.

"He can direct and take charge whenever any fire breaks out. You may not be able to understand all his quacking directions, but you will see that he knows what he is doing and that the others are following his instructions."

First Willy Nilly rang a bell to show that there was a make-believe fire, and at once Mr. Quacko arranged his helmet and shouted quacking directions to the others. They all took hold of the ladder and put it down along the front of the stage and then they dragged the hose to one side of the stage.

Now they climbed up and down the ladder and the audience was amazed. But that was not all.

1. —This sounds like the Middle Ages, but it frequently takes place throughout secondary education in the United States. There is no more reason why a woman cannot go on with her job of teaching after she marries than with any other job. Marriage adds, as nothing else, to experience with life, and one of the chief defects of our public schools is that the teachers have had so few contacts with life and such limited experience.

2. —B. C. Forbes, eminent financial writer, so argues in Cosmopolitan. He says: "America will attain greater prosperity than ever before. More individuals and families than ever before will share this prosperity. Fewer multi-millionaires may be produced; more people will become well-to-do, acquiring from $100,000 to $1,000,000 . . . A better day, higher living standards, a finer civilization will be ushered in." The Show Goes on As Quacky Duck Performs His Act

By Mary Graham Bonner

HOW the audience did laugh as the ducks came waddling out on the stage. They were certainly looking their best, and they had odd bits of ribbon and shawls and little jackets they had brought with them from Willy Nilly's Big Box That Held Things Just for Fun.

Mrs. Quack carried her parasol, her water lily leaf fan and her feathered hand bag which Mr. Quacko had given her on her last birthday.

"I think," said Willy Nilly, "there should be a waddling race first of all, and then I believe we should show these good people a fire drill."

So after the waddling race which was won by Quacky Duck, they all went back of the curtain and came forth again wearing their fire helmets, and carrying one of their smaller ladders and a hose.

"Now," said Willy Nilly, my good friends, ladies and gentlemen, boys and girls, I wish to introduce Mr. Quacko Duck, our fire chief.

"He can direct and take charge whenever any fire breaks out. You may not be able to understand all his quacking directions, but you will see that he knows what he is doing and that the others are following his instructions."

First Willy Nilly rang a bell to show that there was a make-believe fire, and at once Mr. Quacko arranged his helmet and shouted quacking directions to the others. They all took hold of the ladder and put it down along the front of the stage and then they dragged the hose to one side of the stage.

Now they climbed up and down the ladder and the audience was amazed. But that was not all.

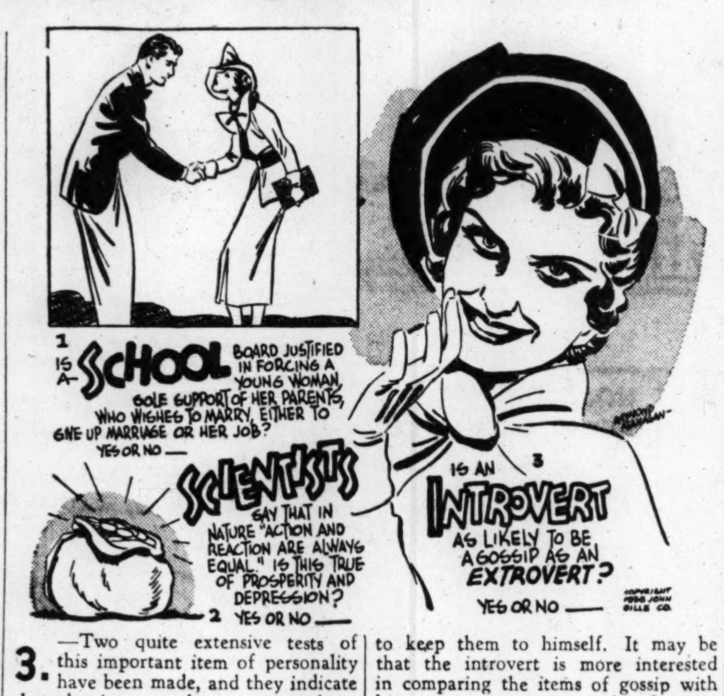
Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.



1 IS A SCHOOL BOARD JUSTIFIED IN FORCING A YOUNG WOMAN, SOLE SUPPORT OF HER PARENTS, WHO WISHES TO MARRY, EITHER TO GIVE UP MARRIAGE OR HER JOB?
YES OR NO —
SCIENTISTS SAY THAT IN NATURE "ACTION AND REACTION ARE ALWAYS EQUAL." IS THIS TRUE OF PROSPERITY AND DEPRESSION?
2 YES OR NO —
IS AN 3 INTROVERT AS LIKELY TO BE A GOSSIP AS AN EXTROVERT?
YES OR NO —
COPYRIGHT 1935 JOHN DILLE CO.

1. —This sounds like the Middle Ages, but it frequently takes place throughout secondary education in the United States. There is no more reason why a woman cannot go on with her job of teaching after she marries than with any other job. Marriage adds, as nothing else, to experience with life, and one of the chief defects of our public schools is that the teachers have had so few contacts with life and such limited experience.

2. —B. C. Forbes, eminent financial writer, so argues in Cosmopolitan. He says: "America will attain greater prosperity than ever before. More individuals and families than ever before will share this prosperity. Fewer multi-millionaires may be produced; more people will become well-to-do, acquiring from $100,000 to $1,000,000 . . . A better day, higher living standards, a finer civilization will be ushered in." He thinks not only America but the whole world is like a spring pressed down and the moment it is released it will rebound to the limit. I believe this.

3. —Two quite extensive tests of this important item of personality have been made, and they indicate that the introvert knows as much as the extrovert about the personal affairs going on around him, but tends more to keep them to himself. It may be that the introvert is more interested in comparing the items of gossip with his own inner experience than he is in talking about them, which seems to be the tendency of the extrovert.

Second Parting

By Geane Allen

JOHN FARWELL, grown arrogant with success, coldly regarded his wife across the breakfast table. In the tone of cruel condescension with which he would dismiss an unsatisfactory employe he spoke to her.

"Gertrude, you and I have come to the parting of our ways. The plain fact is that I have outgrown you, if indeed you ever were my equal." He paused to let his ultimatum impress her.

Gertrude Farwell met his cold gaze with steady brown eyes which somehow she kept expressionless. Somehow, too, she managed to make her voice cool and impersonal.

"You are not fooling me at all, John," she said. "This is just your superior way of letting me down—for Doris. Do you, by any chance, consider her your equal?"

"No, I admit she is not," he told her. "But what Doris lacks in intelligence she makes up for in warmth and sympathy." Calmly he lit a cigarette while watching his wife's face. Gertrude showed no sign of emotion.

In the last few years she had become expert in hiding her feelings from her husband's chilling criticism. But anyone less engrossed in himself than John Farwell would have found her strangely beautiful, with her wealth of red-gold hair framing her cameo-like face.

"Good-by, John," Gertrude said, calmly enough.

Two years passed, and John Farwell's thirst for success should have been somewhat appeased. Everything made way for him. Again and again the Farwell Paper Company doubled its volume of business.

But though he had divorced Gertrude, he did not marry Doris. While he was piling success on success, too busy for courtship, Doris had married another man.

Then—the crash came. In a few months his splendid enterprises toppled into ruin, his investments became worthless scraps of paper. After fighting desperately to save something from the wreck, he finally emerged, dazed and shaken, to find himself financially about where he had been 15 years before.

"Nothing in particular. Why? What's on your mind?" John asked in reply.

Lawrence was a well-known writer on economic subjects, and as such, John felt, entitled to respect.

"I'm going to a lecture tonight and I'd like to have you come with me. Miss Garson is going to speak and you can take my word for it that she's worth hearing."

Garson? Somehow the name seemed familiar.

John lifted the corner of his mouth in a slightly sarcastic smile "And what is this paragon of intelligence going to talk about?"

"Current economic conditions—and, what's more, she'll talk sense."

John laughed outright. "Thanks, old man, but I can think of better ways to spoil a perfectly good evening than listening to a woman talk about economics. What does any woman know about current economic conditions? Women are——"

"Wait a minute, John," Freeman interrupted earnestly. "It seems to me that we males still have a lot to learn about such matters."

John laughed a little ruefully. "You win," he said.

At the lecture John and Freeman found seats in the front of a crowded hall. John was surprised to see the number of substantial men in the audience.

To a welcoming burst of applause a slender woman came gracefully across the stage.

AND as the head with its crown of red-gold hair bent in gracious acknowledgment of the enthusiastic welcome John looked up to recognize—Gertrude. Miss Garson, indeed! No wonder the name had seemed familiar; it was Gertrude's maiden name.

John listened in amazement to her witty, intelligent, penetrating analysis of current economic conditions. He turned to Lawrence.

"I must meet her," he said. "Can it be arranged?"

"I think so," Lawrence replied. "We can go back stage when the lecture's over."

When Gertrude made her bow and walked off the stage and while the applause of an enthusiastic audience was still ringing John and Lawrence made their way back stage.

Both John and Gertrude went through the formalities of introduction, with no sign that this was other than their first meeting. John managed to whisper: "May I take you to supper?"

"Yes," she answered. "I've some people to see first. Meet me at Monico's in an hour."

John muttered an excuse to Lawrence and left. Gertrude was surrounded by people, all asking questions or murmuring compliments.

An hour later John and Gertrude faced each other over a small table in Monico's grillroom. For the first time in months John felt happy.

"Time we end our foolishness, isn't it, dear?" he said, taking Gertrude's hand in his.

"Our foolishness," Gertrude arched an eyebrow.

He looked at her inquiringly. "Late?"

"I'm married, you know—have been since three months after our divorce."

She laughed again at the astonishment on his face.

"Poor John!" she said "You find it hard to believe that any woman could do anything but pine away in solitude, once having had the supreme honor of being married to you—don't you? But there it is, you see; people can get along without most things if they have to. And I've done very well without you, John."

"But the name," John answered. "You were announced as 'Miss Garson' — your maiden name. I thought——"

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

Room Measurements

Save Shopping Time

When shopping for furniture, you will save yourself no end of time and disappointments if you take along a drawing of your room.

It should be scaled—say one-fourth inch to the foot—and height of walls, location of windows and doors and irregularities noted. Then you will know before you set your heart on a piece of furniture whether it will fit your room.

Egg Salad

Three hard cooked eggs, diced
One-half cup diced cooked ham
One-half cup diced celery
One tablespoon chopped pickle
One tablespoon chopped onion
One-fourth teaspoon salt
One-fourth teaspoon paprika
One-third cup salad dressing

Mix and chill ingredients and serve on lettuce.

Lines and Curves of Furniture

LEAGUE RULES WAR BEFORE DEC. 4 WOULD VIOLATE PACT

Council Gives Notice to Italy and Ethiopia in Calling for Report of Recommendations Under Article XV of Covenant.

ITALIANS LEAVE GENEVA BUILDING

Eden Declares That Britain Will Stand by Its Obligations—Support Promised by Laval of France and Others.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 26. — The League of Nations Council in effect warned Italy and Ethiopia today that they cannot start war before Dec. 4 without violating the League Covenant.

If either one starts aggressive hostilities before then, that nation will be deemed to have committed an act of war against all members of the League, thereby automatically calling for punishment by the other nations.

This notice was implied by a unanimous vote—with the Italian delegates absent—to draft a report of recommendations for the settlement of the Italian-Ethiopian conflict under Article XV of the covenant and a decision that this article was in operation as from Sept. 4. This means three months must elapse from that date before hostilities can be undertaken without disregard of the covenant.

The president of the Council, Enrique Ruiz Guinazu of Argentina, presented the recommendation for procedure under Article XV, to "make and publish" a report on the case and recommendations—violations of which, if adopted unanimously, would be considered an act of war against all League members, under Article XVI, leading to sanctions.

Closed Session Held.

In a closed session before the open meeting, the Council also decided to ask its five-power committee, which submitted a report on its failure to find a basis for peaceful settlement of the East African controversy, to reconstitute itself and to continue to take advantage of any opportunity for mediation.

The members of the Council did not pass judgment on the report of the Committee of Five, but decided to thank the committee for its work and took note that its conciliation efforts failed.

Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy did not attend the secret meeting, which took the form of a consultation "among some members of the Council." Immediately on adjournment of the closed meeting, Premier Laval of France went to a corner lobby with Baron Aloisi and told him what happened.

Walkout of Italians.

As Anthony Eden of Great Brit- [illegible] Premier Laval, Maxim Litvin- [illegible] of Russia, and others went to the Council chamber to cast their votes the Italians met.

Included in their number were members of the delegation and other prominent Fascists. They strolled up to the bar in the League's glass-roofed lobby, ordered drinks, stood stiffly in a circle, and raised their glasses in a toast. Then, after downing the drinks, they ostentatiously marched down the steps and out of the building.

As on the occasion of the recent walkout by Baron Aloisi, their chief delegate, from a Council meeting, the other delegates and spectators were left in the dark as to the meaning of this new gesture.

It was not immediately indicated whether this meant the delegation's final departure or was merely a repetition of the previous gesture by Aloisi.

A spokesman for the Italian delegation, however, later explained that the second version was correct—namely, that "Italy will not sit at the same table with Ethiopia." This time, moreover, the act was a little stronger, since the Italians had walked all the way out of the building.

Council's Public Meeting.
